Now, without attempting to decide whether or not these candidates were qualified to perform the duties of the offices to which they aspired—Port Chester's voters knew or ought to have known the answer to that question—it can be said without chance of error or the giving of just offense to anybody, that service in the war, while it establishes the best of claims to honor and gratitude, is quite irrelevant to what is done on Election Day and when presented as basis of a demand for political preferment should be ignored.

That a good soldier may be a good civilian official is true, but true, also, is it that a good soldier may be a very poor civilian official. If the Port Chester voters had rejected the soldier candidates as such, more than resentment would have been justified, but the supposition that the rejection was so based is too absurd for consideration.

Sure of Hearty Welcome.

Of course it is easy for a royal personage to win praise almost anywhere. He need only show what for other man would be ordinary good manners to be credited with finest courtesy, and for him little kindnesses and affabilities cause delighted surprise on observers who in others would only notice the lack of such amenities. Now and then, however, and oftener, perhaps, than our more fervid republicans would like to admit, there is a royal personage who earns as well as gets the favor of title-scorning folk by showing what is evidently a natural and therefore sincere inclination to be friends with all he meets, who has no illusions as to his rights or his superiorities—who is, in short, estimable in exactly the way he would have to be to win esteem if he were not royal.

The King of the Belgians was of that sort, and now another guest, the Prince of Wales, has arrived to test the welcome democratic America as distinguished from the mitigated monarchism of Canada has to give him. According to all reports and descriptions from the north, he, too, is going to make us admit that royalties can be all right—as good as anybody and better than not a few who are not of regal birth.

The Canadians, who are not servile or snobbish, liked him immensely—liked his youth, his interest in what he saw, his humanness all of the time and his princeliness when it be princely was fitting and appropriate to ceremonial occasions. In this country EDWARD ALBERT will be among people glad to be friends with him in both his personal and his representative capacities—honestly hoping that he may live long and prosper.

The Treaty in the Senate.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial article in today's TIMES entitled "Sabotage Openly Arrived At" is fine. My only prayer is "keep it up!" Expose those Senators who today in the United States Senate are trying to pull our country down into political chaos for generations to come, possibly until another and greater war will raise up an America that will not stand for such disgraceful transactions as are now being "openly arrived at" in the Senate.

We witness today a majority of United States Senators, who represent a minority of the American people, regardless of party, branding our country as a selfish nation before the other nations of the world, who have already ratified the treaty, and are ready to shoulder a humane responsibility that America balks at.

America needs to be awakened to what is going on in the Senate at this time, that she may demand an explanation from those Senators whose intent is to make a purely political issue of the Treaty of Peace and the League of Nations.

THE LAST TO FALL.

(In memory of the soldiers who died on Nov. 11, 1918.)

Guardians of our glory, Defenders of our faith,
Most hapless and most holy of our immortal host,
They felt within their weary grasp almost
The gathered palms of Peace and Victory,
Only to yield them up ungrudgingly
For other hands to hold and lift.
God grant our hands be worthy of their Gift!

Upon their burdened brows
The lengthening light of dawn,
Unhoped, was falling warm, after the endless night;
Yet—faces lifted to the Morning Star—
They closed their eyes lest their beholding bar
Their brothers from the vision white.
God grant our eyes be worthy of their Light!

They, our Last Fallen, by mire, flame, and mine
Tried utterly to the end, like gold burned fine—
Listening at last to long-hushed hopes and dreams.
Heard, but with dying ears,
The sharp-stilled thunder of the Line
And paeans of deliverance rise
Triumphal to the torn gray skies.
These by their wealth of utmost giving,
Their youth and love and beckoning years,
Have made us passing rich, the poorest living.
God pity us, soul-dead, if we forget
Their Battle Agony and Bloody Sweat!

AGNES KENDRICK GRAY.

DENIES LEAGUE WAS ISSUE.

R. W. Bingham Says Morrow Won in Kentucky on State Appeals.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 11.—Robert W. Bingham, publisher of The Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, in a signed statement tonight replies to the assertion by William Randolph Hearst in an article in The New York American, that Edwin P. Morrow was elected Governor of Kentucky on the issue of opposition to the League of Nations. Mr. Bingham warmly denies that this was a fact. He says:

"The platform on which Governor Morrow was elected was silent upon the treaty and the League, and Mr. Morrow on every occasion on which he spoke specifically disclaimed the League as an issue in the Kentucky campaign. His opponent, Governor Black, indorsed the League and sought to force Governor Morrow to take a stand upon it, which he refused to do, because his chances for success lay in confining the campaign to State issues and in obtaining votes of Democrats and independents by promising to improve conditions in the State Government.

"In a speech at Harlan he declared: 'The League of Nations is not an issue in the Kentucky campaign,' and The Courier-Journal marked this utterance by frequently quoting it editorially. Mr. Morrow stood by that statement, and two weeks before the campaign ended Governor Black forsook his vain attempt to draw out the Republican candidate.

National Committeeman A. T. Hert declared that the fight had been won exclusively on State issues and added, 'The people could not be misled by an attempt to bring the League of Nations in as an issue.'

"Mr. Hert was the absolute director of the Republican campaign policy, and his word is authentic."

SPAIN TO AID ARGENTINA.

Alfonso Initiates Large Loan from the Federal Bank.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 11.—Negotiations are in progress by which the Bank of Spain, with the approval of the Spanish Government, will make a large loan to the Argentine Government, according to the Madrid correspondent of La Nacion. Although the exact amount of the loan has not yet been fixed, it is said that 500,000,000 pesetas is the sum under consideration.

Dominga Salaberry, Minister of Finance, today confirmed the advices from Madrid and said the negotiations were initiated by King Alfonso, who is interested in closer financial relations between Spain and Argentina.

The Minister of Finance added that it was easy to comprehend that Argentina was similarly interested, and that the republic would give the matter all the attention required, not only because of the loan itself, but because the arrangement of it would serve to bring about a closer connection with the mother country.

HARVARD DRIVE IN FAR EAST.

Graduates in Japan Working for $15,250,000 Endowment Fund.

Harvard graduates who are citizens of Japan and other foreign countries have notified the Harvard Endowment Fund Committee that they have been soliciting subscriptions for the fund of $15,250,000 which is to be used to increase the pay of Harvard professors. Japanese who are Harvard graduates are conducting a vigorous campaign among Harvard men in their country. Only twenty subscriptions have been received thus far from the thousands who live in foreign countries.

The total of the fund approached the $10,000,000 mark yesterday, the latest tabulated figures being $9,605,543. Boston still leads, but New York City is a close second. In giving out the figures, the committee announced that the members would have as guests at a reception at the Harvard Club next Wednesday afternoon, President Lowell of Harvard, President Hibben of Princeton, and President Schurman of Cornell.

DEFENDS MORMON CHURCH.

Smoot Protests Against "Libelous Matter" Published About It.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Praising its integrity and patriotism, Senator Smoot of Utah today in the Senate defended the Mormon Church and its members.

"I protest against the libelous matter that has been published about the country," Senator Smoot declared. "The Mormon Church has nothing to conceal. I want the people of the United States to know that so far as polygamy is concerned, it is dead, and these scandal mongers in the future must find something else to write."

Senator Smoot declared he was not in the Senate as a representative of the Mormon Church but as the representative of the people of Utah, who, he said, "have been so vilely misrepresented."

Senators Ashurst, Arizona; Thomas, Colorado, and Henderson, Nevada, joined with the Utah Senator in praising the integrity, thriftiness and patriotism of the Mormon people.

JEWISH FUND $6,417,570.

Nearly Half a Million Subscribed for Charity at Breakfast.

Approximately $6,417,570 has been obtained toward the $10,000,000 fund which is being sought for the United Building Campaign of the Federated Jewish Institutions, according to an announcement yesterday by Col. H. A. Guinsburg, chairman of the campaign. Additional subscriptions of $417,000, he said, were obtained at a breakfast meeting of industrial chairmen of the drive at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday.

Israel Unterberg, chairman of the shirt and blouse industry, announced that $42,500 was raised by his industry at a dinner at the Hotel Astor on Monday evening. This industry has already raised $93,000, although its original pledge was $70,000.

Morris Asinof, of the clothing manufacturers' committee, reported additional subscriptions of $21,100, and Max Cohen, of the fur trade, reported an additional $47,000.

Plans were also made for a testimonial dinner to be tendered Felix M. Warburg, president of the Federation for the Support of Philanthropic Societies, by industry chairmen and others. The dinner will be held on Sunday night at the Hotel Biltmore.

Among the individual subscriptions announced yesterday were contributions of $12,000 from Harry Liebovitz and family.

KING ALBERT AT BREST.

Belgian Royal Pair Will Motor to Ostend.

BREST, Nov. 11.—King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium arrived here today aboard the American transport George Washington from the United States. Short stops were made by the transport at Ponta Delgada, Azores, and Lisbon to permit the royal couple to make sightseeing trips.

The King and Queen will proceed by automobile to Ostend, without visiting Paris.

OFFERS TWO REMBRANDTS.

Russian Prince Smuggles Them to London and Asks $3,000,000.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The Chronicle learns that two Rembrandts are being privately offered for sale in this country by a Russian Prince. He succeeded in smuggling them to London under the nose of the Bolshevist régime.

As the Prince has suggested a price of $3,000,000, the dealers are not "dis-"bting."

SAYS WAR CLAIMS WERE OVERPAID

House Committee Recommends Review by Baker and Action for Recovery.

THINKS FRAUD TAINTS SOME

Blame Otherwise Put Upon War Department Rules and "Laxness and Inefficiency" of Representatives.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The select House Committee investigating the conduct of the war presented to the House today a report on the settlement of war claims which recommends that the Secretary of War make a review of certain settlements and that if this review shows that sums are due the Government on account of fraudulent or excessive settlements, proceedings be instituted by him to recover the money illegally paid.

The report bearing upon the investigation of the committee says:

"House Resolution 381 requests the Secretary of War to make a review of certain settlements made under the act of March 2, 1919, commonly known as the Dent act, and that if on such review it be found that sums of money are due the Government on account of such settlements being fraudulent or not according to the tenor and effect of that act, proceedings be instituted by him to recover the sums of money due the Government.

"The resolution originated in Subcommittee No. 5 on Ordnance of the Select Committee on the War Department, and is the result of a very considerable investigation that sub-committee has made on certain settlements of claims made by the War Department or by the various claim boards under its jurisdiction since Nov. 11, 1918.

"This investigation, as shown by the hearing of said sub-committee, has taken a wide range. It has included investigations of the rules that have been formulated by the War Department for the settlement of such claims and the machinery that has been devised. It has gone into a few of the great mass of claims that have been adjusted, all of which is incorporated in 500 printed pages of committee hearings that is too voluminous to be even briefed in this report.

"The sub-committee, among other things, has investigated the following settlement of war claims and contracts to wit: American Can Company, contract for hard bread can; Stein-Burn Camp and Field Equipment Company, contract for fireless cookers, cooks' chests, and bread boxes; Henry Moss & Co., contract for branding irons; Brier Hill Steel Company, contract for corrugated roofing; National Enameling and Stamping Company, contract for boilers and kettles; Standard Steel Car Company, contract for howitzer carriages; Jones & Laughlin Company, contract for by-product coke ovens; United Metals Selling Company, contract for copper.

"In all these cases, except the last two named, supplies were furnished by Government agents and army officers on special facilities furnished by the Government, sometimes buildings, and sometimes machinery and equipment, which were, in the opinion of the committee, insufficient and unjust to the Government. In some of the cases cited they seem to have been obviously tainted with fraud. Part of the blame for this condition is due to the rules adopted for the settlement of such claims, and partly due to the laxness and inefficiency of the Government representatives.

"In the last case cited, that of the United Metals Selling Company, immense profits were made by the producers of copper, by virtue of a combination of the low price of copper producers, which combination was aided and encouraged by the Government, although in violation of the law of the land.

"In some of the cases cited, the committee is of the opinion that constructive if not actual fraud vitiated the settlement. The committee is of the opinion that millions of dollars are involved in these settlements, which the Government might have a right to recover if a proper review of such settlements were made."

ASKS PHILANTHROPY'S AID.

Needed for Housing, Says State Charities Conference President.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 11.—The twentieth New York State Conference of Charities and Corrections opened this afternoon with about 350 delegates. The Rev. Dr. Augustine M. O'Neill of Rochester, State President, in his report pointed out acute conditions regarding housing accommodations in State institutions and large cities and asked the aid of philanthropists in relieving the situation.

John S. Kennedy of the State Prison Commission tonight in an address urged the delegates to indorse the movement for the erection of a State Reformatory for misdemeanants and a State farm for vagrants, legislation for the establishment of both having been enacted by the 1912 Legislature. He advocated the elimination of the Justice of the Peace system and the fee system, as it applies to constables, and the establishment of a State commission for corrections.

GIVE UP HOSTESS HOUSES.

Y. W. C. A. Transfers All Except Seven to Government.

The Government is now making use of the hostess houses which, during the war, were operated by the affiliated welfare organizations. Fifty such houses were transferred by the Young Women's Christian Association on Nov. 1, it was announced yesterday by the War Work Council of the Y. W. C. A. The statement says there are now only seven still conducted by that organization.

The seven houses which remain under the Y. W. C. A. are those at the Marine Barracks at Quantico, Virginia, and at Paris Island, South Carolina; those at the Naval Base at Hampton Roads, Virginia; at the Naval Station at Great Lakes, Illinois; and at the Naval Training Station at Newport, R. I., and those at Camp Merritt, N. J., and in Forty-first Street, New York City. These hostess houses will be conducted by the Y. W. C. A. until the Government wishes to make other disposition of them.

$12,000 FOR TEMPLE ISRAEL.

Gifts Announced Toward $100,000 Building Fund Sought in Drive.

Announcement was made yesterday that $12,000 has already been contributed toward the $100,000 fund sought to build a synagogue and community house for Temple Israel, Washington Heights. Samuel Untermyer is honorary Chairman of the Campaign Committee, and Adolf Rosenbaum, President of Temple Israel, is directing the canvass for the funds. The drive was organized by Dr. Maxwell L. Sachs, rabbi of the temple.

The synagogue and community house is to be located at 560-566 West 180th Street. The sale of tickets has been begun for a concert to be held at the 23d Regiment Armory, Broadway and 168th Street, on Saturday evening, Dec. 6. The Cantors' Association of America, consisting of more than 100 voices, will sing at this concert.

GERMAN CARDINAL DIES IN COLOGNE

Von Hartmann Carried the Kaiser's Peace Message to the Pope.

LEADER OF PAN GERMANISTS

At His Request Allies Ceased Air Raids on Cologne for Corpus Christi Day.

COLOGNE, Nov. 11.—Cardinal Felix von Hartmann, Archbishop of Cologne, is dead at his residence here.

Cardinal von Hartmann was a prominent figure during the war. In the early days of the struggle he caused some adverse comment in Germany by issuing a pastoral letter directing that a petition for peace be included in the prayers of Catholics. In the latter part of 1915 he was sent to Rome by the then Emperor William on a mission to the Pope that was supposed to have peace for its object.

In 1916 Cardinal von Hartmann was a leader of the Pan-Germanists, and while on a visit to the Western front he assured the Emperor that all Catholic soldiers were ready for further sacrifices.

In May of 1918, in response to Cardinal Hartmann's request that the Allies refrain from air attacks on Cologne on Corpus Christi Day, the city was not molested.

Monsignor von Hartmann was born at Muenster, Westphalia, on Dec. 15, 1851. He was created a Cardinal on May 25, 1914, and in January, 1916, was appointed a member of the Prussian House of Lords.

Canadian Veteran Dies at 104.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 11.—Charles Joseph Leroy, recently credited with being the oldest man in Canada, died here today at 104. He was born in Versailles, France, the son of one of Napoleon's soldiers, and he fought for the North in the American civil war.

BELLBOYS TO GIVE BALL.

Park Avenue Hotel Guests Invited to Attend Negroes' Dance.

Notice was served last night by the employes of the Park Avenue Hotel that if the guests wanted any ice water, newspapers, magazines, stationery, stamps, mail, or anything else generally asked for the request must be got in by 7 P. M. today. No, it proved not to be a strike, but simply that there is to be a ball given by the negro bell boys and doormen of the hotel at the Manhattan Casino, 155th Street and Eighth Avenue. They have shown their good-will by inviting the guests, but they are firm about their intention to look after all the needs of the guests before 7. The following notice was issued there yesterday.

"For a long time we have watched you enjoying yourselves at banquets, dinners, balls and dances. We have tried to do our part in helping you to have a good time. Now we want to have a good time ourselves. We can do it if you will help us. Tomorrow night, Nov. 12, we expect to hold a ball of our own at Manhattan Casino, 155th Street and Eighth Avenue. All we ask of you is that if you want any ice water, newspapers, magazines, stationery, stamps, mail, or anything else we generally take to you, won't you please ask for them before 7 P. M.? After that we'd be glad to have you join us at the above address. Tickets of admission are 50 cents. Please wear evening dress."

P. H. Ashmead Dies of Pneumonia.

Percy H. Ashmead, 52 years old, a consulting engineer, who was head of the Costa Rica-Nicaragua boundary dispute arbitration commission, died of pneumonia yesterday at St. Luke's Hospital. He was born in Philadelphia and was graduated from Lehigh University. He planned a railroad for the Chinese Government many years ago and also worked on the Madeira-Mamore Railroad in Brazil. At one time Mr. Ashmead was in charge of the construction of railroads in the Philippine Islands, and for many years he was chief engineer of J. G. White & Co. of this city. He was a Major in charge of the supplies for the Engineer Corps at Washington during the war.

"Willie" Weston, Dancer.

"Willie" Weston, character comedian and dancer, died at his home, 866 Wadsworth Avenue, last night, following a nervous collapse some months ago during a performance at Philadelphia. Weston, who was born in Brooklyn thirty-five years ago, learned to dance when 15 years old, and became a leading clog dancer. He was a member of the Friars' Club, the Elks, and other societies. A Masonic funeral will be held at the Campbell Funeral Church.

David Asa Baldwin.

David Asa Baldwin, for more than fifty years active in Republican politics in the old Twenty-third Ward in Brooklyn, died of pneumonia yesterday morning at his home, 325 Monroe Street, Brooklyn, in his eighty-eighth year. Mr. Baldwin was for six years Chairman of the Kings County Republican General Committee. In early life he was a liquidator in the New York Custom House and later entered the employ of the Bowery Savings Bank, where he remained until his retirement on a pension two years ago. He was a member of the Sons of the Revolution.

Mrs. Corinne de Garmendia.

Word has been received by friends in this city of the sudden death of Mrs. Corinne de Garmendia, widow of Carlos G. de Garmendia, which occurred on Saturday at her home in Basle, Switzerland. She was born in Frederick, Md., about sixty years ago. Her husband died about twenty-five years ago, the family at that time living at 43 West Forty-eighth Street, this city, and five years later she went to Germany to be with her son, Cordova de Garmendia, who was in the American diplomatic service.

Obituary Notes.

JOHN S. MOULTON, 54 years old, of 561 West 180th Street, an attorney on the legal staff of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, while waiting on the platform of the Eighty-sixth Avenue station in Brooklyn last night for a subway train, suddenly became ill and fell to the platform. An ambulance from the Kings County Hospital responded, and Dr. Height pronounced Mr. Moulton dead. Heart disease was given as the cause of the attorney's death.

JOHN A. FOOTE, 82 years old, one of the founders of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Catskill, N. Y., died in New York Hospital on Monday of pneumonia.

GEORGE ODELL, a retired builder and contractor of Patchogue, L. I., died of heart disease on Sunday at the age of 80 years.

CHARLES EMERY DAVENPORT, formerly in the Assessment and Arrears Department of the Controller's office, died Sunday at his home, 537 Lexington Avenue, Brooklyn.

CHARLES E. HEBBERD, an architect, died on Monday at his home, 1,040 Seventy-ninth Street, Brooklyn, in his sixty-sixth year.

ROBERT ARNOLD, office manager for the glove firm of Lewis & Locke, in Manhattan, died on Monday at his home, 135 Fourth Place, Brooklyn.

RANDALL D. WOOD of Middletown, N. Y., was found dead in his garage there yesterday, having been overcome by fumes from the engine of his car, on which he had been working.

PRINCE GREETED BY WASHINGTON

possess such widespread power in the democratic English-speaking world, for offering to be my intermediaries in conveying this short message to your fellow-citizens in the United States. I assure you that I deeply appreciate the hospitality of your Government in inviting me to pay this visit and in entertaining me so well. EDWARD P."

The royal special train arrived at the Union Station about noon, where a Marine guard was in waiting. Vice President Marshall, General Pershing, Lord Grey, the British Ambassador; General March, Chief of Staff; Admiral Coontz, Chief of Naval Operations, and other notables were standing in the concourse when the train arrived. As the Prince, dressed in the uniform of an officer of the Welsh Fusiliers, stepped from the car Vice President Marshall greeted him, and the two exchanged a few words.

Over the shoulder of the Vice President the Prince caught sight of General Pershing's soldierly figure. He stepped forward with a broad smile and grasped the General's hand impetuously. At once the Prince was introduced to General March, Secretary Daniels, and others, and then the party proceeded up the platform to a point where Lord Grey and members of his embassy staff stood. There were more warm greetings here.

All these meetings had been so entirely informal and so devoid of pomp and ceremony that the crowd gathered outside the station concourse grill had warmed to the Prince. So the vocal reception was very loud and hearty. The Prince appeared to realize this sincerity and bowed right and left. Red Cross girls waiting to swell subscriptions to their organization did not escape his smiling eye.

As he entered the President's reception room the band burst into "God Save the King!" The royal visitor and the officers who accompanied him stood rigidly at salute. Cavalry troopers from Fort Myer, the rain streaming down their brown rubber slickers, stiffened in the saddle and whipped their sabres to salute.

The Prince and his escort, which included his own personal staff, the American army and navy officers who accompanied him from the Canadian border, scores of Secret Service men, and, since his arrival at the Union Station, Cabinet officers and other officials, proceeded swiftly up Pennsylvania Avenue and through Sixteenth Street to the residence of Perry Belmont, where the royal party is quartered for the Washington visit.

After Vice President Marshall, Secretary Lansing, General Pershing, Rear Admiral Grayson, and the other officials who accompanied the Prince from the Union Station had left the Belmont residence the Prince received a delegation of Washington correspondents and representatives of the press associations and local newspapers. They were presented to him by James D. Preston, the veteran superintendent of the Senate Press Gallery. The Prince had doffed his overcoat—a garment of light blue, new to the British Army—and appeared in the khaki uniform of a Colonel of the Welsh Guards. The conversation was entirely informal.

Only once did the Prince consent to be quoted. That was when he was asked about a report printed in a Toronto newspaper that he might be appointed Governor General of the Dominion of Canada. "The newspapers know more about it than I do," he answered with a smile.

He commented on the long distance between the Union Station and the Belmont residence and indicated surprise over the size of Washington. In shaking hands with the newspaper men he used his left hand, and it was explained afterward by one of his suite that his right hand was crippled from too much handshaking in Canada.

In answer to a question he said that he had met President Wilson in Paris and expressed gratification that the President's condition was improving.

When he had completed his conference with the Washington correspondents the Prince lunched informally with the members of his suite and the American officers attached to his party. As soon as luncheon was over, he visited the White House, where, on entering, he faced with evident good humor one of the inevitable batteries of moving-picture cameras.

Vice President Marshall's Dinner.

Calls were paid upon the Prince in the course of the afternoon by various diplomats and Cabinet members, and later he spent some time resting. This evening he attended a dinner given by Vice President Marshall at the Belmont house. Among the guests, besides the Prince's party, were the members of the Cabinet, representatives of the British Embassy, and the French, Belgian, and Japanese Ambassadors.

In proposing the health of the Prince at the dinner tonight, Vice President Marshall expressed regret that the President could not be present. After alluding to the fact that one year had elapsed since the armistice was signed, Mr. Marshall remarked that he wished to express gratitude that the Allies had stood together in the great war.

"The old order ceased one year ago today," said the Vice President. "The new order then began. The conflict which started at Runnymede was ended by Haig and Foch and Pershing on the fields of France. The right of men to have a Government controlled by themselves, law-encrowned, is never more to be disputed in this world of ours if those who made the fight to put down military autocracy will make the fight to put down prejudice, suspicion and doubt among the Allies.

"I cannot forget that, while we hesitated, while we doubted, while we wondered whether it was any of the part of our national mission to come to the defense of stricken Belgium and devastated France, England put her back to the wall, and stood upon the far-flung battle-line of Europe, making freedom and Christian civilization possible even for the American Republic.

"I shall not say that it was altogether altruistic. There may have been some element of self-defense in it. But may God give us all, when the time of self-defense comes, the same high altruistic ideals of the British Empire. More and more it seems to me that the fate of the future rests on the faith and confidence of the allied nations for each other."

Proposing a toast to the Prince the Vice President said:

"So, ladies and gentlemen, to the hope that the tie that binds may never be broken by doubt, suspicion or treachery, that it may bind all of the allied peoples for all of the years to come, I propose, as the faith of the American people, long life, health and prosperity to His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales."

In his response to the toast proposed by Vice President Marshall, the Prince said:

"I regard it as a great honor, and I am finding it also a great pleasure, to have been invited to pay this first visit to the United States. I wish, indeed, that the President, whose visit to England last year I am so happy to be able to return on behalf of my father, the King, had been with us here tonight. I have followed his illness with the deepest concern, and I associate myself most earnestly with the hope of his fellow-countrymen that he may soon be restored to health.

"The United States has recently lost one of its noblest citizens in Theodore Roosevelt—a man, a sportsman, and a force. All who knew him feel the poorer for his loss.

"Your President is revered far beyond this country's shores, and the great world is as deeply affected as his own people by his absence from active political life. I was happy to hear a better report of President Wilson at the White House this afternoon, and hope to see him before I leave Washington.

Pays Tribute to Jusserand.

"This is Armistice Day, and it is indeed a happy coincidence to have been invited tonight to meet the representatives of so many countries which were gallantly allied in the great struggle and gloriously associated in victory. I am particularly glad to be able to greet his Excellency the French Ambassador, M. Jusserand, pre-eminent amongst the diplomatic representatives accredited to this great capital, just as his country—la France immortelle—was pre-eminent amongst the Allies.

"As you know, I have recently been traveling in Canada, and I am the richer since that three months' journey by a wonderful experience. I come here, therefore, not only as an Englishman and as a representative of the British Empire, but also as a Canadian, who is as intimately and personally concerned as you yourselves in the life of this North American continent. The British Empire is held together by the common aims and the united sentiment of five sister nations, all of which are devoted to the same cause of democratic self-government. But Canada shares with the United States the splendid territories of this rich continent.

"She is divided from you by no physical barrier, no military line, no frontier other than a boundary guaranteed by international law and good-will. North of that frontier we cherish our British institutions, our British form of freedom, our British allegiance to the King. South of it you cherish equally the institutions into which the American citizen is born. The forms are different, but the human aim of both systems of government is the same.

"It seems to me that this example of nations living side by side in a spirit of political tolerance and human liberty is entirely incompatible with the militarism which threatened Europe in the great war, and is thus a living example of the great principles for which we gave our best in that terrible ordeal. * * * As the representative here of the British Empire, and also—I hope I may say—as a friend and great admirer of the American people, I reflect with pride that our common victory was a victory for the ideal to which we, with our institutions and you with yours have given practical shape upon this continent for a hundred years."

Later in the evening the Prince visited the National Press Club, in the Riggs Building, opposite the Treasury Department, where he delivered a short address.

The dinner at the Belmont home was served in the frescoed dining room, with the table set in the form of a horseshoe. A section of the Marine Band played throughout the evening. Owing to a sudden indisposition of Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. Lansing assisted in receiving the company, which, in addition to the Prince and Vice President Marshall, included Miss Wilson, Rear Admiral Sir Lionel Halsey, K. C. B., K. C. M. G., Chief of Staff; Major Gen. Sir Henry Burstall, K. C. B., K. C. M. G.; Lieut. Col. F. W. M. Grigg, C. M. C., D. S. O., M. C., Military Secretary; Sir Godfrey Thomas, Private Secretary; Commander Dudley North, C. M. G., R. N.; Captain Lord Claud Hamilton, D. S. O.; Captain the Honorable Piers Legh; His Excellency the Ambassador of the French Republic and Mme. Jusserand; His Excellency the Belgian Ambassador and Baroness de Cartier de Marchienne; His Excellency the Ambassador of Great Britain on Special Mission, the Right Honorable the Viscount Grey of Fallodon; His Excellency the Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Kijuro Shidehara; Sir William Tyrrell; the Honorable Ronald C. Lindsay; the Secretary of State and Mrs. Lansing, the Chief Justice and Mrs. White, the Speaker and Mrs. Gillett; the President pro tempore of the Senate, Senator Albert B. Cummins.

DINNER FOR BRITISH OFFICERS

Those of Renown and Constance to be Entertained by City Tomorrow.

Arrangements have been made in New York for a dinner to be given to the officers of the British warships Renown and Constance in the Ritz-Carlton ballroom tomorrow night, with Rodman Wanamaker as Chairman. The petty officers and seamen of the ships are to be entertained by the New York War Camp Community Service on the same night with a dance at the Community House at Ninety-seventh Street and Riverside Drive, and plans have been made for sightseeing tours during their stay.

The Renown and Constance will be anchored off the foot of West Eighty-seventh Street.

The Renown was scheduled to arrive today from Rio de Janeiro, but the United States naval radio officials said late last night that they had been calling the warship for two days and so far had not received any reply.

Another function which the Prince of Wales will attend on his arrival next Tuesday for a five-day visit to New York was announced last night. One of the largest dinners the Pilgrims have ever held will be given in honor of the Prince on Friday night, Nov. 21, at the Plaza Hotel. The Prince, if the program of the Mayor's Committee on Distinguished Guests is followed, will attend a performance at the Hippodrome after the dinner.

GUARD OF HONOR FOR PRINCE.

British, Canadian, and Australian Great War Veterans to Compose It.

A Guard of Honor composed of British, Canadian and Australian war veterans will greet the Prince of Wales, on his arrival in New York next week. The Prince will land from the Renown at the dock of the Columbia Yacht Club at 10:15 A. M. and will inspect the guard of honor, which will be drawn up there.

A meeting and preparatory drill of veterans of the British, Canadian, and Anzac forces will be held in the 71st Regiment Armory at Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue, at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, when those to compose the guard will be selected. Veterans are requested to wear uniforms.

Preparations are in charge of the British Great War Veterans of America, whose headquarters are at Room 813, 1,465 Broadway. Further details may be obtained from them.

Just Two Letters
By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER

With permission of the writers, I publish the following two letters:

Mr. Frank E. Campbell,
The Funeral Church,
Broadway at 66th St., N. Y. City.
Dear Sir:—

I want to express as far as words will enable me to do my sincere appreciation of your great generosity and the splendid manner in which you conducted all of the funeral arrangements of William Madden. You are truly a public benefactor, and I don't believe you can appreciate yourself how much good you are doing in helping these poor people. They are caught unaware and without warning. There is no emergency in their lives in which they are so helpless; and your magnificent institution, so thoroughly equipped in every way, comes to their rescue; it supplies that something that was badly needed in a great city.

I also wish to thank you and those employed about your establishment for their courtesy to myself.

Very respectfully,
WM. MULDOON.
White Plains, N. Y.

My Dear Sir:

The purpose of this letter is to try and thank you for the unusual services which your organization recently placed at the disposal of the family in our hour of trouble.

I think that you have an unusual personnel of employees; I cannot praise enough their courtesy, their never ending efforts to please and their willingness to try at all times to be of assistance to those in sorrow.

The arrangement of your building, with its beautiful chapel, is such that, taken with the sympathetic assistance of the various employees, Death seems to lose much of its terror.

Thanking you for your most efficient services, I beg to remain,

Very truly yours,
J. F. BACK.

SIR BARTON HAS MERELY A PRACTICE GALLOP TO WIN THE THIRD PIMLICO SERIAL

SIR BARTON WINS HOLLOW VICTORY

Captures Pimlico Serial No. 3 with Ease from Stablemate and Lucullite.

GRIMALKIN TAKES SPRINT

Defeats Pastoral Swain at Six Furlongs in Driving Finish—Lunetta Leads Two-Year-Olds.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 11.—The Pimlico Serial No. 3, at a mile and an eighth, the last of this series of races for horses of all ages, was run here today over a sloppy track and proved to be almost a fiasco. There were only three starters and the race was practically a walkover for the entry of Commander J. K. L. Ross. Sir Barton won with the greatest of ease, and his stablemate, Billy Kelly, was second, with Sam C. Hildreth's overworked Lucullite third. Commander Ross received $1,000 extra because his Sir Barton won two of the three races.

The attendance was one of the largest of the meeting. Though rain fell all day, the enclosure was packed and the overflow from the stands filled the open space to the rail. The holiday provided the last opportunity for many to attend the meeting which closes Thursday.

Though the Serial was the feature on the card, it was regarded as a joke race, and there was not much support for the entries, except by those who were willing to take a very short price. Sam C. Hildreth permitted Lucullite to run to prevent the race from being a complete walkover, though he had realized after the last race of the son of Trap Rock that his horse was stale and could no longer perform as he had in New York. It was the last race for Lucullite for this year and he will be turned out for a long rest.

In Front All the Way.

The conditions were against the Hildreth horse, but despite this there was enough support for him by those who figured he might show a flash of his best form to make his quotation less than 3 to 1. The Ross entry was played down to 3 to 10.

Sir Barton had the race in hand all the way. He passed the stands the first time leading, gained the rail, and remained in front all the way. Lucullite ran a better race than on his last appearance. He went to the outside on the first turn, and then began to move up and seemed to be full of running. He made a dash at the leader half way through the back stretch and came up to within half a length of him. Kummer saw Lucullite approaching and gave Sir Barton one nudge. The star Ross colt sprang forward into a lead of nearly two lengths.

That was the last effort for Lucullite. He continued to run, but was dropping back slightly all the time. Sir Barton turned into the stretch and came home in a canter. Billy Kelly, which likes a shorter distance, had no trouble in landing second place.

The rest of the card provided some good contests, one of the best being the fifth, a six-furlong dash for three-year-olds, which brought out some good sprinters. This went to R. F. Carman's Grimalkin, which defeated Pastoral Swain in a driving finish. Pride of India, one of the most disappointing horses of the year, was third. Toto, which raced today under the colors of H. W. Fry and which was made the public choice, finished last.

Kummer Rides Good Race.

Grimalkin led all the way from the barrier and was skilfully handled by Kummer. The jockey got the best of the break and then remained close to the rail and forced Pastoral Swain to go to the outside at the last turn when the latter attempted to come up. Pastoral Swain made a strong bid in the stretch, but Kummer gave his mount his head and won by nearly a length. Pride of Indian, which has a habit of pulling up, finished with good speed, while Toto did not seem to like the going.

J. J. Hallenback's Lunetta scored an easy victory in the Country Club Purse, a six-furlong sprint for two-year-old fillies. Lunetta made a show of her field, winning by five lengths from Siren Maid, while the latter took the place from W. R. Coe's Sweet Music at a long price. The third horse paid $18 to show and had been 50 to 1 to win.

Lunetta raced away from the barrier in front and crept away from her field with every stride. Lucie May ran close to her for a quarter of a mile, but then gave it up and Lunetta went on to win as she pleased. Siren Maid, which had been winning in Kentucky, was much the best of the others and was five lengths in front of Sweet Music at the finish.

E. Sweeney's Bob Redfield captured the Patapsco Steeplechase at two miles and a half, with Quel Bonheur second and Cresthill third. Bob Redfield was always in front, but did not begin to draw away until the last turn of the field, when he took the race in hand and was never seriously threatened. Quel Bonheur made a rush at the finish, but was beaten two lengths. Jockey Williams threw his cap in the air as he crossed the finish line and looked back at his nearest rival.

Mudders in Their Glory.

Mud runners were in their glory, and A. L. Austin's Belario proved to be one of the best of these in the second race. He defeated Asterisk and Indian Chant, among others, and was in front all the way over the mile and a sixteenth test.

The day opened with a long shot, when H. W. Fry's Who Cares, which had been knocking at the door for some time, romped down in front in a six-furlong dash for two-year-olds, defeating the favorite, Jean Bullant. The winner paid $20.60 to holders of a two-dollar ticket. Who Cares was away well in the large field and raced in front all the way. The favorite broke slowly and was in close quarters through the back stretch, but made a game finish.

Sam Lewis's Dottie Vandiver made a runaway race of the seventh event, at a mile and a quarter, and won by three lengths from Romeo, the favorite, which just nosed out Melancholia for the place. Dottie was at home in the sloppy going, and was far in the lead when she reached the first turn. She ran away from the others in the back stretch and had the race all to herself. The seven starters were strung out for a city block going through the back stretch, and no horse was within two lengths of another. Melancholia made a strong finish, and Romeo just lasted for second.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.

For two-year-olds; claiming; purse $1,813. Six furlongs.

SERVATIUS BEATS JAMESON.

Takes Game in N. A. A. B. P. Class C Metropolitan Billiard Tourney.

Louis Servatius defeated A. Stedman Jameson by a score of 150 to 77 at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night in the second game of the National Association of the Amateur Billiard Players' Class C 18.2 balkline billiard tournament, being played for the metropolitan championship. Servatius got off to a flying start, and while he did not show his best form he was good enough to make high runs of 14 and 11 and to make an average of 3 44-53. Jameson's high run was 8 and his average was 1 24-53.

The low averages of both players can be accounted for by the open playing. Both players did very little close playing at any time throughout the match. It was the first tournament that Jameson had engaged, and there is not the slightest doubt that he will show improvement. He displayed enough billiard ability to convince those who saw the play that he is a much better player that his work indicated last night.

GOLFERS GO SOUTHWARD.

Winter Season Opens with Fourth Annual Tourney at Pinehurst.

Winter golf is on. Both amateurs and professionals from the northland are packing their grips for the invasion of the Sunny South, and simultaneous with the opening today of the schedule of events on Southern links comes the announcement of the professionals who have closed up shop in the country clubs hereabouts and who are heading for warmer jobs. At Pinehurst, N. C., today the fourth annual Carolina golf tournament will begin and will continue until Saturday, when the final will be played. No less than five of the Northern pro-instructors have been engaged to chaperone the golfers at Pinehurst for the Winter. Chief of the pros there will be Don and Alex Ross. Don Ross, the Boston architect of the links, will supervise the improvements on the two courses at Pinehurst, and Alex, the Detroit pro who won the Ohio open title last month, will act as instructor. Others who will join the Pinehurst forces for the cold months are Herbert Lagerblake of Ohio, Walter Howe of the Worcester Country Club, and John Peacock.

Herbert Strong, another pro who has inherited considerable importance as a links architect by reason of his success in building the new Engineers' Country Club course at Roslyn, L. I., will again report at St. Augustine for the Winter. Other professionals from the Metropolitan clubs who will return to their customary Winter berths are Alex Smith of Wykagyl, who is going back to Belleaire, and W. H. Potts of Apawamis, who will return to Ormond Beach. Charles Thom of Shinnecock Hills, L. I., is making a change this Winter and will handle the affairs at Royal Palm Golf Club at Miami, while Lee Nelson of Indianapolis will succeed him at the Miami Beach G. C.

A. J. Christie, who during the Summer presides over the golf house at Ekwanok, will return to Daytona, and Jack Croke of Exmoor will be found at Fort Myers, Fla. D. E. Miner of Rangeley Lakes, Me., will go to Deland. Eugene McCarthy of Charleston, S. C., will go to Jacksonville, and Alex Girard will succeed C. W. Singleton at Lake Wales. Thomas Mulgrew of the Hackensack Golf Club goes back to Summerville, S. C., and Emmet French of York, Penn., will resume his Winter work at Southern Pines, N. C.

SHAMROCK IV. WILL TAKE WATER TODAY

Sir Thomas Lipton Views His Cup Challenger and Says She'll "Do the Trick."

After being on the shelf for five years the Shamrock IV. will be launched this afternoon at the Shewan dock in Brooklyn. It will be a private launching, with only Sir Thomas Lipton and the officials of the Shewan Company present. Sir Thomas is anxious to ascertain how the racer takes the water and is eager to give the craft a thorough testing. The boat will be launched without its rigging.

At the time the yacht was put in dry dock, just before the races were expected to be held five years ago, the rigging was stripped, and it is doubtful whether Sir Thomas will want to change it or not. It is generally believed that he will stand upon the rig that he had on the boat before. The Irish sportsman is anxious to see the hull in the water and then will decide whether he will need new canvas or will be able to race with the same amount of spread that he had in 1914.

The hull, it is said, seems to be in excellent shape, and that is what chiefly interests Sir Thomas. He wants to find out whether it is still weather-worthy and whether it can stand a fairly high sea.

The Baronet went over yesterday afternoon to get a bit of a look at the craft. "There's the boat that will do the trick," he said, his eyes glistening as the canvas was pulled off the sailing yacht.

The Shamrock IV. was to have been launched yesterday afternoon, but owing to the low tide it was decided to wait until today.

Experts among the spectators, who included Commodore Willard Taylor, said that the Shamrock is of an extreme type. The keel measures 35 feet, and the body is of canoe type, cut off short on the after overhang, the bow being carried to an extreme length. The interior of the boat is partly of steel and partly of wood. Some yachtsmen yesterday termed the boat a freak. It carries about sixty tons of lead.

Sir Thomas posed for the newspaper men, and then walked to the boat and felt the side of it. He asked Commodore Taylor to touch the side too, and the two men thereupon smiled confidently at each other.

"If we lift the cup," said Sir Thomas, "Americans will undoubtedly be more interested in the future races. Americans desire to see the cup change hands."

He said he had participated in yacht races all over the world, especially in Germany, and had won many cups. He is particularly anxious to win this one, however, he said, but only on condition that he has the best boat. Sir Thomas added that he thinks his is the best. "I find the Americans to be good sportsmen," he said, as he got into his automobile with Commodore Taylor and his secretary.

SERINE WINS GOLF PRIZE.

Beats Poinsette in Final Round of Newspaper Cooper Cup Tourney.

Something of a surprise was sprung in the New York Newspaper Golf Club yesterday when Hiram Serine defeated A. F. Poinsette 3 and 2 in the final round for the Cooper Cup. The match over the tattered and torn Van Cortlandt Park links had its exciting features throughout the thirty-four holes played, and although Poinsette was rated as a favorite by reason of his recent work on the links this Fall, he was outclassed by Serine, who at one time was 6 up.

Serine benefited by a handicap of four strokes on each round, and without them the match would have had quite a different aspect. On the morning round Serine won three of the holes at which he took his strokes and succeeded in halving the fourth. On the eighth he won without the allotment. In the afternoon Poinsette held his opponent in the pinches, and Serine won only one of the four holes where he took strokes. It was the fourth. He lost the eighth and succeeded in halving the thirteenth and fifteenth.

The two finalists played give and take golf during the morning, and at the halt Serine was 3 up. After lunch he won the first and second, halved the third, won the fourth as a result of his allowance of one stroke, lost the next, but became six up by capturing the sixth hole. By the twelfth Poinsette had cut this margin in two, and by the fourteenth he was only two down. Poinsette played remarkable golf over the hill holes, and on the fifteenth sank a 20-foot putt for a 3. Serine took a 4, but this was shaved down to a 3 with his allowance. Serine then proceeded to win the sixteenth, ending the match. Poinsette played better medal golf both morning and afternoon, taking 82 and 79 against Serine's 84 and 87.

Their cards:

MORNING ROUND.

Serine—
Out	5	5	5	5	5	5	4	3	7—44
In	5	6	5	4	3	4	5	4	4—40	—84
Poinsette—
Out	5	4	3	5	6	6	5	4	5—43
In	5	6	6	4	4	3	4	3	4—39	—82

AFTERNOON ROUND.

Serine—
Out	4	5	4	5	6	5	4	3	7—45
In	6	5	5	5	5	4	4	4	4—42	—87
Poinsette—
Out	5	6	4	5	4	6	4	3	5—42
In	4	3	6	4	4	3	5	4	4—37	—79

The New York newspapermen also held their annual gymkhana yesterday at Van Cortlandt, in observance of the end of the golfing season. W. C. Wood won the eighteen-hole medal play handicap with a gross of 83, which was cut to a net of 68 with a handicap of 15 strokes. H. L. Perez took the nine-hole handicap with 44—8—36 and E. F. Teague won the competition over the second nine holes with 43—10—33. Teague also tied with E. B. Davis for the hill holes handicap, but under the regulations could win only one trophy, and Davis took this contest with his score of 24—5—19. David Hall won the putting prize, having needed only 32 for the round.

BROCCO IN SIX-DAY RACE.

Cable Announces That Italian Rider Will Compete at Garden.

Maurice Brocco will be among those present in the lineup for the start of the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden on Nov. 30, the rider signing a contract to ride at a meeting of the European stars in Paris yesterday. The cable announcing the signing of Brocco also stated that Oscar Egg, Swiss champion, agreed to terms.

Brocco was the sensation of the 1913 race, his last start here, when he drew down fifth prize with Verri. The Italian's wonderful sprinting was the feature of the race, and had it not been for the illness of Verri the team would probably have stolen a lap and won the race, for on more than one occasion Brocco had the better part of a stolen lap when Verri was called in only to lose it again. The point system is to Brocco's liking, and Promoter Young intends to give him the pick of the foreign riders for a partner.

Greenleaf Wins Two More.

Ralph Greenleaf won two more games from George Clark at Maurice Daly's Academy last night. In the afternoon he defeated the former champion of New York State by 100 to 76 and in the evening he beat Clark by 100 to 85, running out the game with an unfinished run of 46. In the afternoon Greenleaf's high run was 26 balls against Clark's 28. In the evening he had a high run of 46, while Clark's best was 22. In the four matches that have been placed the score stands: Greenleaf, 400; Clark, 318. At the time that Greenleaf made his best run, that of 46, Clark was leading by 85 to 54.

BEEKMAN VICTOR AT SQUASH TENNIS

Defeats Jarvis Cromwell in Princeton Handicap Tourney on Courts of Yale Club.

New recruits for the increasingly popular game of squash tennis were lined up yesterday on the courts of the Yale Club, when the Princeton Club, at present sharing the alumni quarters of the Blue, started its annual Fall handicap tournament with twenty-five entries. Prominent among the new contenders was Leonard Beekman, last year's captain of the Princeton lawn tennis team, challenger for the Middle States title, and ranked for several years among the top-notch racqueters of the country.

Beekman's debut in competitive squash was made auspiciously, as he won his opening match from Jarvis Cromwell by the close score of 15—11, 16—18, 18—15.

Both players had streaks of wildness, mingled with some exceedingly hard and accurate hitting, and the point totals were never far separated.

The wearer of Princeton's 'Varsity tennis letter was the first to get the range of the court, and he kept a winning edge throughout the initial game, putting lots of speed into his fore and backhand drives, and eventually claiming a leg at 15—11. Cromwell, however, was far from beaten, and began a stubborn resistance in the second session. His knowledge of angles and his judgment of the rebound seemed slightly better than that of his rival and, although Beekman continued to smash the ball all around the varnished walls, the match was all square when Cromwell, after setting the game to extra points, edged into the slightest of leads at 18—16.

Rubber Keenly Contested.

The rubber was bitterly contested, Beekman again running into the lead and holding an advantage of 8 to 3 before his opponent got well started. Cromwell, however, braced once more, using good headwork to make up for his lack of killing shots, and steadying his defensive play remarkably. The game was again set for extra points and by this time both contestants were so wearied with their strenuous efforts that they could scarcely get out of the way of the ball as it carromed about the inclosure. The final ace came after a close service by the tennis expert, Cromwell returning weakly down the middle of the court. Beekman annihilated the ball with a full swing, scoring cleanly off the back wall, and landing the decision at 15—11, 16—18, 18—15.

Frank Lafforgue, the Yale Club professional, expressed himself as greatly pleased with the showing already made by Beekman in the indoor game, and predicts for him a future at squash approximating the distinction of his lawn tennis record. Certainly the young Princetonian has ever physical asset for successful squash tennis, and with careful coaching should develop rapidly. His handicap in the present tournament is 8 aces, and as his opponent yesterday was rated at the same level, they played from scratch.

H. R. Mixsell, one of Princeton's strongest representatives on the squash courts, and a former holder of the national Class B title, had to allow R. Catlin a start of five aces in each of their games yesterday, but won without great difficulty at 15—6, 15—10. Mixsell's variety of shots and complete command of angle play utterly bewildered his less experienced opponent in the opening game, Catlin scoring only one point in addition to his handicap. But in the second session the loser put up a far better resistance, adding five well earned acres to his gratuitous allowance and keeping the result in doubt up to the last few hands, when Mixsell rushed ahead with a burst of speed and finished a decisive winner.

Harold Tobey Defaults.

The defaut of Harold Tobey, a national "first ten" player, removed the only other scratch man from the tourney, which thus becomes largely a question of whether Mixsell can overcome the handicaps allowed to the rest of the field.

R. Piel had a hard time yesterday in eliminating G. W. Vanderhoef, who enjoyed a two-point advantage, the scores being finally recorded at 15—7, 11—15, 15—7, in favor of the former.

The tournament will be continued today, simultaneously with the Yale Club's invitation event on the same courts.

The summary follows:

Princeton Club Handicap Tournament.—First Round—E. C. Olds, (5,) defeated L. J. Doyle, (6,) 15—5, 15—6; L. Richards, (7,) defeated G. H. Walker, (8,) 15—10, 15—9; S. P. Hayward, (8,) won from J. V. Forresthal, (7,) by default; Leonard Beekman, (8,) defeated J. Cromwell, (8,) 15—11, 16—18, 18—15; J. R. Greenwood, (8,) won from W. Black, (8,) by default; R. Sealy, (8,) won from Cortland Handy, (8,) by default; G. Muller, (8,) won from G. Graham, (5,) by default; H. D. Harvey, (4,) won from Harold Tobey, (scratch,) by default; H. R. Mixsell, (scratch,) defeated R. Catlin, (5,) 15—6, 15—10; R. Piel, (5,) defeated G. W. Vanderhoef, (7,) 13—7, 11—15, 15—7.

MUNROE WINS AT SQUASH.

Defeats Strong in One-Sided Fashion in Yale Club's Tourney.

One match left over from the first round of the invitation squash tournament at the Yale Club was played yesterday, resulting in a one-sided victory for J. Munroe of the Harvard Club over T. G. Strong, one of the home representatives. The games were scored at 15—0 and 15—6. Munroe's walkover in the opener was a surprise to the gallery, as he was a late entry of the dark-horse type, and such a whitewash is exceedingly rare in first-class squash.

The entire second round of the tournament will be played this afternoon and contains some unusually interesting matches, including R. E. Fink of Englewood vs. F. H. Johnson of Yale; H. W. Harvey of Princeton vs. R. E. T. Riggs of the Squash Club, G. Piel of the New York Athletic Club vs. Anderson Dana of the Harvard Club, a former national runner-up; F. S. Keeler of Columbia vs. D. S. Baker of Yale, Rudolph Goepel of the Greenwich Field Club vs William Adams, Jr., of Yale, R. E. Wigham of Columbia vs. Livingston Platt of Yale, Alan L. Corey of Yale vs. Frank Kidde of Columbia, the New Jersey State champion, and A. J. Cordier of Yale vs. H. Duncan Bulkley of Columbia.

Tomorrow afternoon the first of the interclub team matches of the Metropolitan Association, Class B, will be played on the Yale Club courts, the home players entertaining the Crescent Athletic Club, while the Princeton and Harvard representatives clash in a parallel encounter.

GOWDIE WINS CLOSE RACE.

Captures Five-Mile Chase of Bronx Church House.

In the initial run of the Bronx Church House over a five-mile course last evening, Robert Gowdie, with a two-minute handicap, captured first honors in a close finish from Jack Horne, who ran from scratch. Gowdie's actual time was 32:20. Horne's time was 30:21.

Other runners who followed in the order named were: Harry Rippe, 1 minute handicap, time 32:10; August Selgner, 1 minute handicap, time 32:50; Charles Westerholm, 30 seconds handicap, time 33:30; E. Schmidt, 2½ minutes handicap, time 35:40; Daniel Scheffduck, 2½ minutes handicap, time 36:30.

White Makes Run of 69.

In the Brooklyn 18.2 Balkline Billiard Handicap Tournament at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy last night Charles E. White, playing for 250 points, defeated M. P. MacManiman, playing for 180, by a score of 250 to 112. During the game White made a high run of 69, which is considerable billiards. He averaged 11 8-22. MacManiman made a high run of 26 and had an average of 5 11-21. White played consistently good as is shown by the fact that, besides his high run of 69, he made runs of 39, 29 and 27.

Army and Navy to Meet in Varied Competitions

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 11.—Arrangements have been made for the Naval and Military Academies to meet in every branch of sport in which they both engage, and this will add basket ball, fencing, and field and track games to football and baseball. These arrangements have been made by Colonel Charles H. Dafforth, Commandant of Cadets at West Point, and Lieut. Commander W. A. Richardson, representing the Naval Academy. The contests will take place alternately at West Point and Annapolis and are expected to begin this season. Other sports will later be added to the list.

217 ENTER COLLEGE CROSS-COUNTRY RUN

Record-Breaking List Received for Championship Race at Van Cortlandt Park.

A record-breaking number of entries has been received for the renewal of the intercollegiate championship cross-country run, which will be held at Van Cortlandt Park Nov. 22. This was disclosed yesterday when the list of prospective starters was made public by L. C. Owens, Jr., of Columbia University, Secretary of the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America. Simultaneously with the public announcement of the entries Mr. Owens mailed copies of the complete entry list to the coaches of the different colleges which will be represented.

The names submitted total 217 individuals from fifteen different colleges. This more than doubles the previous record of entries for the title chase. It does not follow, however, that 217 runners will get away with the starting signal. Under the rules of the I. C. A. A. A. A. only ten runners may compete for a college in the hill and dale fixture, although a college is permitted to submit a list of twenty names from which to select its team. When the race was conducted three years ago 107 runners started in the test, representing ten colleges. This field created a high-water mark for the event up to 1916. The entry fell off in comparison in 1917, when the fixture was last conducted. The University of Pennsylvania's team captured the title in that chase. Last year the race was declared off because of the war.

Cornell has had a monopoly on the title, scoring fifteen victories in the nineteen years the race has been held. Yale, Harvard, Maine, and Pennsylvania are the only other colleges which have succeeded in scoring victories. The Ithacans are scheduled for a stiff struggle if they are to resume their reign with the coming race. Coach Tom Keane of Syracuse University has molded a formidable array of hill and dalers from the material at the Salt City institution, while Princeton also is prepared to nominate a dangerous array of cross-country candidates in the coming chase.

That the battle for supremacy has engendered unusual rivalry among the colleges is illustrated in the increased number of institutions which have nominated full teams of twenty men each. Seven have taken advantage of the I. C. A. A. A. A. rule covering the entry conditions and have named the limit number of prospective starters. Harvard, Yale, and Princeton are among the colleges which have followed this plan, the others being Cornell, Dartmouth, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Penn State.

The complete list of entries follows:

Rutgers—Oxley, Eschenfelder, Barbenheim, Crane, Molineaux, Margolies, Robbins.

Syracuse—Johnson, Simmons, Watson, Fellman, Rose, Probisher, Campbell, Fleck, Hart, D. Moore, Scholl, Schneider, Wilcox.

Yale—Hilles, Crosby, Reed, Bubies, Smith, Fisher, Wilson, Kelley, Miner, Booker, Wilcox, Morehouse, Siemans, Rich, Page, Prizer, D. C. Smith, Child, Badger, Kellogg.

Penn State—M. L. Shields, Romig, Snyder, Kohler, Foster, Orr, Maxwell, Moonted, Cooper, Smuel, Love, Stevens, Leothen, Seem, Ball, Rissle, Newcomer, Newbons, Slagle, Ross.

Pennsylvania—Gustafson, Irwin, Kiviat, McHale, E. M. Shields, Brown, Downs, Cummings, Hall, Mitchell.

Princeton—Armstrong, J. H. Bryan, G. H. Bryan, Buterbaugh, Foresman, Helm, Martin, Montgomery, Rogers, Paul, Penfield, Rogers, Swede, Woodruff, McCullough.

Harvard—Ames, Beams, Bowden, Buyden, Corning, Costigan, Crosby, Dexter, Douglas, Goodwin, Hatgood, Lewis, Nally, O'Connell, Otis, Page, Roycroft, Wagon, Worrall, Harris.

Lafayette—Crawford, McFall, Evans, Kempner, Gilbert, Albrecht, Heisler.

Maine—Cushman, Emery, Henderson, Herrick, Barnard, Johnson.

Massachusetts Institute—Dorr, McMahon, Stone, Purcell, Carpenter, Flanders, Huring, Owens, Brodin, Shattuck, Hennessy, Bardes, Gill, Poole, Dyke, Hall, Robbins, Maloney, Sandborn, Nolan.

City College of New York—Rosenberg, Sicker, Saigel, Cohen, Biegler.

Colby—Costley, Mayo, Guthrue, Perkins, McCormick, Martin, Conary, Pullock, Urie, Wallace, Song, Whitmore.

Columbia—Turner, Lowenkopf, Higgins, Knox, Bernard, Nelson, Cussee, Margolf, Stewart, Maron, Ellis, Schecker, Schaeffer.

Cornell—McDermott, Wens, Campbell, Dick, Stanton, Way, Ayres, Lentz, Houston, Eddy, Strickler, Duryea, Harper, Hooker, Fernchild, Sprong, Densmore, Gillies, Emerson, Abreu.

Dartmouth—Allen, Bolles, Crathern, McComber, Carter, Whitaker, Clark, Nills, Sleet, Payson, Porter, Dow, Sherburn, Coakley, Treanor, Manchester, Buckley, McGowan.

FOOTLIGHTS ENTICE WILDE.

British Flyweight Boxer May Take Up a Theatrical Venture.

Jimmy Wilde, the sensational little English flyweight, spent a busy day yesterday journeying about the city on trips in which business and pleasure were combined. The little Briton was fagged out last night when he finally gained the shelter of his hotel. Even then, however, Wilde's seclusion was interrupted by the frequent ringing of the telephone bell and the well wishes from hordes of admirers. The visiting boxer declared he had not received any offers for bouts, but that he had begun other business negotiations. It is understood the little Briton is being sought as a likely attraction by many vaudeville managers.

The British boxer was impressed with the great crowd which turned out for the bouts at the Arena Monday night and was pleased with the tremendous reception which greeted him when he was introduced by the veteran announcer, Joe Humphries. Asked his impression of Benny Leonard's form, Wilde declared the lightweight champion a wonderful boxer, fast, clever, and with remarkable hitting powers. The British flyweight gave it as his opinion that Leonard could dispose of Soldier Bartfield with a few punches, if the lightweight felt so inclined. Wilde said he formed this opinion from the dazzling speed Leonard flashed when he went after Bartfield in aggressive flurries.

Wilde did not hesitate to declare Leonard the superior of any boxer of his weight in England, but expressed the belief that Johnny Basham, British welterweight champion, could give Leonard an interesting tussle if a match could be arranged.

La Rue Is Three-Cushion Winner.

George La Rue played some of the best three-cushion billiards that has been seen in this city in some time at Doyle's Academy last night when he defeated Chris Maxwell by a score of 25 to 21 in thirty-six innings. He had high runs of 6 and 3, while Maxwell's best was a cluster of two. In the pocket billiard tourney Harry Calder sprung something of a surprise by defeating Ray Crane by a score of 50 to 41. In the Snooker tournament Charles Leonard Fletcher beat J. Rotlienberg by a score of 100 to 72.

MAY ADJUST MAYS CASE THIS MONTH

Johnson Due in New York This Week for National Commission Conference.

Chairman August Herrmann and President John A. Heydler of the National League, both members of the National Commission, yesterday discussed the delay in the payment of the Yankees' share of the world's series receipts. Their meeting was informal, and the two members of the highest baseball court decided that there was no change in the situation. The commission will hold up the money, which amounts to $13,017.48, until the American League settles its controversy over the Carl Mays case.

Mr. Herrmann late yesterday talked over the telephone with Ban Johnson in Chicago. The American League President expects to come to New York later in the week. Mr. Johnson, it is stated, is troubled with a sore foot and his trip here will be delayed for a few days. When he arrives it is believed that the National Commission will hold a special meeting, during which it is expected that Johnson will explain his stand in the American League muddle to the two National League members of the commission.

Johnson's visit here at the end of the week is taken as significant by baseball men, who believe that there is something in the wind toward a straightening out of the fight over Mays, which now has the American League in a state of turmoil. The Mays case is indirectly holding up the smooth working of the entire machinery of baseball, and the cooler heads in both major leagues are anxious to get the matter adjusted before the annual meetings here early next month.

President Heydler announced yesterday that the annual meeting of the National League would be held in this city on Tuesday, Dec. 9.

THREE KNOCKOUTS SCORED.

Burns Beats Becker in Principal Bout for Red Cross Benefit.

The spectacle of a referee holding aloft the hand of a boxer in token of victory at the end of a professional bout, and of three knockouts in addition, was viewed last night in the First Field Hospital, West Sixty-sixth Street by a crowd of about 500 spectators. The occasion was the series of bouts arranged as a medium for attracting funds to the Red Cross drive. These bouts were originally scheduled for last Friday night, but the police, claiming violation of the law, prohibited them.

The matter was carried to court, where yesterday afternoon Justice Francis C. Delehanty of the Supreme Court, while denying a motion to restrain the police from interfering with the matches, suggested a means of holding the bouts without violating the sacred law. Justice Delehanty advised that patriotic speakers be enlisted to address the spectators as part of the program and urge them to subscribe to the Red Cross as they made their way from the armory after the show.

This suggestion was followed to the letter, Major J. Franklin Dunseith, commanding officer of the First Field Hospital, making an appeal for the organization of mercy before the start of the principal bout, and advising the spectators to join the Red Cross by writing their names on slips of paper and handing them to one of seven uniformed girls who were stationed outside the armory as the crowd left.

Before the start of the program Police Inspector Dominick Henry appeared on the scene with a squad of his men, and discussed the situation with Major Dunseith and other officials of the show. Receiving assurances that there would be no violation of the law, Inspector Henry left, after placing Captain Michael A. Lyons of the Twenty-eighth Precinct in charge. The Captain had nothing to do but sit back and enjoy an interesting series of bouts.

A program of five boxing bouts and a wrestling match was conducted. Three of the fistic matches ended in knockouts. The principal bout brought together Paddy Burns, formerly of the 3d Division, A.E.F., and Joe Becker, 15th Division, 42d Artillery, who replaced Bushey Graham when the latter sustained an injury which prevented his appearing. Burns knocked out Becker in the fourth round of their match, which was scheduled for ten rounds. A right smash to the jaw finished the bout. In the third round Burns twice floored Becker, first for a count of seven and then for a count of six.

Fred Dyer, Australian welterweight, knocked out Charlie De Baetes of Belgium in another bout which was scheduled for six rounds, but which ended with De Baetes on the floor in the second session. In a scheduled four-round match Barney McGovern disposed of Irving Sutton in three rounds. Ben Rosenthal, officiating as referee, lifted Jimmy Sullivan's hand in token of victory at the end of four rounds with Charlie Goodman, and in another four-round match Rosenthal raised Kid McAvoy's hand, giving him the honors over Young Smoke. Sailor Williams and Cyclone Peters grappled fifteen minutes to a draw in the wrestling match.

NOTED FOREIGNERS TO SEE HORSE SHOW

Delegates to the International Trade Convention Accept Invitation to Attend.

As an opportunity to study the different breeds of the horse that will be exported to restock the devastated farm areas in the allied countries, the foreign delegates to the International Trade Convention, recently held at Atlantic City, and who have since been on a tour of American industrial centres as the guests of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will on "Championship Night," Friday, Nov. 21, be the guests of the National Horse Show Association at Madison Square Garden.

As this is regarded as one of the most important industrial movements since the signing of the armistice, and of the greatest possible interest to the exporters of the horse, as well as of all other commodities from this country, the forty foreign delegates, the 110 members of the Reception Committee of the New York Merchants' Association, headed by the President, William Fellowes Morgan, and the representatives of the United States Chamber of Commerce will be received at the Madison Avenue entrance of the Garden by R. Lawrence Smith, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Horse Show Association, and a committee that will include Robert A. Fairbairn, President of the organization; John R. Townsend, I. J. R. Muurling, Alfred B. Maclay, and Reginald C. Vanderbilt.

The visitors who have accepted the invitation are the French delegates, including Eugene Schneider, head of the famous Creusot Iron Works; Baron du Marais, the Vice President of the Credit Lyonnais; Pellerin de la Touch, President of the French Line; Albert Tirman, representative of the French Government with the mission; Andre Homberg, Vice President of the Société Generale de France; Frederick Arthur Waddington, the great weaver of Rouen; Julien Potin, President of Potin et Cie of Paris; Jean Jules Godet of the Parisian Chamber of Commerce, and Pesson Didion, Director of the Central Society of Electrical Industry.

NADHERNY WINS TITLE.

Defeats Hirai and Lewis for Class D Straight-Rail Billard Crown.

E. V. Nadherny, representing Maurice Daly's Academy, won the American Amateur Billiard Association's Class D straight rail metropolitan championship at Cranfield's Academy last night by defeating both M. Hirai and Nat Lewis. A three-cornered tie had existed until Nadherny took the measure of both players. He defeated Hirai by a score of 150 to 121, and immediately defeated Lewis in the closest match of the tourney by a score of 150 to 149. In other words, Nadherny won the championship by one point.

In the last inning it seemed that Lewis was sure to defeat Nadherny. He needed three points to run out when he stepped to the table for the last time. He made two and the balls lined up. He tried a difficult follow shot and missed counting by the proverbial bug's whisker. At the time Nadherny needed ten to complete his string of 150. He made the ten points and won. As a result of the night's play Hirai and Lewis will have to play off for second and third places tonight.

In the game against Hirai, Nadherny made high runs of 24, 21 and 18. He averaged 3 18-41. Hirai made high runs of 28, 21 and 11. The Japanese player averaged 3 1-40. Later, against Lewis, Nadherny made an average of 2 28-51 and registered high runs of 19, 16 and 15, while Lewis's best runs were 15, 13 and 12 and his average was 2 29-50.

JACKSON DEFEATS McCOURT

Makes Best Average in National 3-Cushion Billiard Title Tourney.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 11.—Playing sensational billiards, Clarence Jackson of Detroit tonight defeated Charles McCourt of Cleveland, 50 to 38, in thirty-eight innings, and took the lead in the three-cushion billiard championship tournament of America here. It was the fastest game of the tournament.

Jackson scored 26 points in ten innings. His high run was 6, while his average was 1 12-38. McCourt's high run was 10, also a record for the tournament.

Pierre Maupome of Milwaukee won from Hugh Heal of Toledo, 50 to 46, in seventy-four innings.

In the afternoon Otto Reiselt of Chicago easily defeated Byron Gillette of Buffalo in the three-cushion billiard championship tournament by the score of 5 to 7 in 46 innings. Reiselt's average was 14—46 and his high run 8.

Jess Lean of Cincinnati won from Tiff Denton of Kansas City, 50 to 37 in 59 innings.

Values speak louder than words!

It's a curious thing that with all clothing prices so high, there's actually less difference than ever between the prices of poor clothing and fine.

The cheaper cloths generally have advanced more than the finer fabrics; labor cost, which is always a larger factor as the quality of raw materials declines, bears heaviest upon the lower grade goods in this season of universal increase of wages.

To the advantage which fine clothing generally has this season in value per dollar, add the special advantages which we enjoy in purchasing and you understand something of why we're so proud of the values we offer in our clothing for men and boys.

Besides the best fabrics America produces, we've a most surprising showing from the Scotch and English mills which stood by us so loyally all through the war and kept our goods coming, even in the most difficult days.

SHIFTS MADE IN YALE LINE FOR GAME WITH PRINCETON

SWITCH FORWARDS OF YALE'S 'VARSITY

Galt and Dickers Move to Right Wing, and Former May Face McGraw on Saturday.

HARD SCRIMMAGE FOR MEN

First and Second Elevens Show Dash and Power Against Scrubs—Murphy May Play Next Week.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 11.—Yale's rush line received a double twist today when Carter Galt and Tom Dickers were moved from left guard and tackle, respectively, to the right wing, John Acosta and Leon Walker shifting over to the left. The coaches volunteered no explanation of the move, but it is thought that the change may be designed to bring the rugged Hawaiian giant, Galt, opposite McGraw, the backbone of the Tiger rush line, next Saturday. This may result in a duel which, for scientific, inside football, has seldom been matched since the occasion when Ned Glass took his position in the Yale rush line at guard opposite John De Witt of Tigertown.

The two sections of the Yale rush line have shifted back and forth during the season, and it is thought that the change which was made today will be unscrambled next week when Yale organizes its rush line to face the Harvard phalanx. Galt weighs 220 pounds, and has played every game and every daily practice for Yale this year. Parker Allen came out of retirement today and answered present to the roll call at right end. The coaches believe that he has fully recovered from the injury to his shoulder, and they plan to start him against Princeton. He divided the scrimmaging today with Barclay Robbins, the third string player, whose game was of almost All American quality against Brown last Saturday.

Lay and Aldrich Half Backs.

Behind the line Joe Neville had a vacation, although every other first string player was in the scrimmaging. Bob Lay was installed in Neville's shoes at left half back, while Malcolm Aldrich was placed in the unsettled right half back berth. Otherwise Yale lined up as against Brown and as the coaches now intend to start the team against Princeton.

Howard Campbell, who has about the same chance of playing the position that Lay and Aldrich have, was at left half back on the second team. Fred Webb, two of whose ribs were found to be broken after the Brown game, is out of question for the Princeton game, but the coaches think that he will be able to play against Harvard the following Saturday. With the exception of this position it is unlikely that further changes will be made in the Yale team, barring accidents.

Following a three days' rest after the Brown game, Yale resumed scrimmaging this afternoon and it was announced that another scrimmage program was slated for tomorrow, probably closing actual football preparation for the Princeton bout.

Today the coaches sent the first and then the second eleven against the scrubs for about fifteen minutes apiece. Two touchdowns were made by the first and one by the second team.

Kempton Makes a Great Run.

The coahces said tonight that they regarded the ground gaining exhibition of both elevens as satisfactory, for both took the ball on three separate occasions from their twenty-yard line fully twenty yards for the touchdowns. Two of the scores were made in series of consecutive gains on short rushline plunges, while Quarter Back Herbert Kempton skylarked around seventy yards in a whirlwind rush when he caught the kick-off of Edward Gaillard, the scrub quarter back, and tore through the entire reserve eleven to the goal line, dodging several scrub tacklers and throwing off many more. His field generalship this afternoon was deceptive in the extreme. Unexpected plays in rapid succession being hurled at the scrub defense, which, without knowledge of the 'Varsity signals, was unable to diagnose them at any time. Bob Lay bored a five-yard path through guard for a total after he, Braden, and Aldrich had alternated in short smashes following the kick-off.

The second eleven, which, as composed and coached at present, appear about as formidable as the average Yale 'Varsity, also took the ball practically the length of the field without losing it. Donald Welles and Howard Campbell were in great ground-gaining form. Welles went over the goal line in the final plunge for the touchdown and Paul Crane kicked goal.

Drilled in Dummy Football.

For more than an hour the first and second eleven were drilled in dummy football, tripping through skeleton plays without tackling, and allowing the coaches to emphasize the individual positions in the various formations. No injuries were received and the coaches are beginning to feel that they are likely to present a lineup against Princeton which will contain every first-string player of outstanding merit.

The absence of Thorne Murphy will deprive the eleven of its most valuable drop-kicking specialist on Saturday, but Braden, Crane, Neville, and French are all improving under the deft instruction of Dr. Billy Bull. Murphy, it is now announced, will probably get into the Harvard game next week.

Visiting coaches today included ex-Captain Barry Chamberlin, Clarence Alcott, Percy Ainsworth, Pudge Heffelfinger, Guy Moseley, Douglas Bomeisler, and Ted Lilly. The 'Varsity second team lineup:

COLGATE MAKES SHIFTS.

Browne Goes to Centre and Hanson to a Wing.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 11.—The Colgate football squad participated in practice this afternoon on a muddy and slippery field which made clean handling of the ball out of the question. The first team was pitted against the second team for a half hour scrimmage.

Two new faces appeared in the lineup of the regulars, Browne at centre and Hanson at end. Hanson's work was scrutinized closely, as he is just beginning to develop. Due to his late start and the injuries he sustained earlier in the year, his progress has been materially retarded. His work with the forward pass is both clever and skillful.

Browne at centre is aggressive, accurate with the forward pass, and will undoubtedly be given a chance.

The close of the practice saw Laird, Anderson, and Captain West devoting much time to kicking, and in this department of the game West is showing steady improvement. The squad is without the services of Substitute Guard Brewer, who was rushed to the hospital last Saturday with a serious case of appendicitis. His absence weakens the already weak substitute list.

N. Y. U. HAS HARD SESSION.

Eleven Is Working Under High Pressure for Stevens Game.

New York University's football team resumed hard work again yesterday afternoon on Ohio Field, after a day of easy drill on Monday. The Violet eleven put in one of the hardest sessions of the season in anticipation of its meeting with the Stevens Tech team Saturday on the University Heights field. This contest is looked upon by the New Yorkers as the hardest game of the schedule, since the victory of the engineers over Columbia.

The practice yesterday was utilized by Coabh Gargan in correcting the faults exposed in the Union game. Although the Violet scored a decisive victory over the up-State aggregation, Gargan saw many places which needed improvement and set about to correct them. The first department which received attention was getting down under punts. A long session with the tackling dummy followed and, after that, the scrubs lined up against the first string team for a light scrimmage.

In the game with Union, the New York team received a setback when Jack Adams was injured. He will be unable to play in the Stevens contest, and this will handicap the Violet team to some extent, but expects to be back for the Columbia game on Nov. 22. Parshurst, who substituted so well for him at Union, will probably fill the place against the Hoboken team.

STEVENS IS GETTING READY.

Deghuee May Replace Bajusz in N. Y. U. Game Saturday.

Coach Durborow had his Stevens team out for practice in the drizzling rain yesterday giving it the opportunity of a workout with a slippery ball and heavy field. In the Stevens-Rensselaer tilt, the Jersey team could not hold the pigskin and it was guilty of several costly fumbles. Yesterday's drill was interminged continually with fumbling but not so marked as on some of the rainy day workouts.

Signal drill held sway for the first part of the afternoon behind closed gates when the plays to be used against N. Y. U. were introduced. Very little headway was gained owing to the mist and early darkness. The electric lights were turned on later.

Owing to Deghuee's wonderful showing in the Columbia game he was back at his old position of halfback, replacing Bajusz. In the scrimmage against the scrubs, which wound up the day's work, Deghuee and Bloss were the only ones who could move around on the soggy field.

The game with N. Y. U., considering their three consecutive victories over Rensselaer, Trinity, and Union, is looked upon as a harder one than the Columbia tussle and the coach intends to put in some extra hard licks before Saturday rolls around. Considering both teams' showing against Rennselaer, the Engineers should have an edge on the New York team.

COLUMBIA RESUMES WORK.

New Backfield Is Tried Out—Captain Kennedy Makes Speech.

The Columbia football team, shattered by injuries and dissension, slowly began to gather itself together yesterday. Headed by the new captain, Jack Kennedy, the remnants of the 'Varsity resumed practice on South Field, while the campus still buzzed with discussion of Monday's sensational episode, in which Canapary was deposed as captain and a successor elected.

Coach Fred Dawson continued to keep silent on the entire affair, and would give no detailed reasons for Canapary's removal, beyond the comment that "a team can have only one boss." He answered newspaper criticism of Columbia's play in Saturday's game by pointing out the number of 'Varsity players who either were crippled when they began the contest or were injured shortly afterward. These, coupled with Canapary's disobedience of orders, he said, were the main causes of the disaster.

Kennedy began his régime as captain yesterday by making a vigorous speech at an Armistice Day meeting of the undergraduates in the gymnasium. He admitted that the eleven had "fallen as low as it could fall," and was facing the most critical period in many seasons. He predicted, however, that the team which had been branded a failure would show Wesleyan on Saturday what an eleven could do when it determined to fight. He refused to concede Wesleyan anything more than an even chance of victory.

Eccles, Farrell, Johnstone, and Applebaum composed the new backfield at yesterday's workout. Charlie Shaw failed to report, and may be hampered for several days by an injured shoulder. Tower and Forsythe, line men, are also on the disabled list. Stockhammer, Healey, Schluter, Herman, and Davis were the new men who were assigned places in the line, with Kennedy and Weinstein at the wing positions. The Poly rep eleven from Brooklyn scrimmaged with the 'Varsity in a long battle.

SHIFTS SYRACUSE LINEUP.

Coach O'Neill Preparing for Colgate's Sledgehammer Attacks.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Playing against the freshman team, the Syracuse 'Varsity eleven had one of the hardest scrimmages of the year this afternoon in preparation for the annual Colgate battle, the big game of the season for Central New York, which is to be staged in the Archbold Stadium next Saturday afternoon. Nearly 30,000 gridiron followers are expected to view the sport. Every player who is likely to start against Colgate was in the lineup at the beginning of the scrimmage drill, and Buck O'Neill, advisory coach, and his assistants, Meehan, Horr and Kellatt, were on the jump every second picking out any flaws that showed up during the workout. It was more of a regular game than any practice held in the bowl this Fall. Dean Watkeys, a football official, refereed the drill and called offside and holding plays on the 'Varsity. During the workout the 'Varsity scored several times on the yearlings.

The 'Varsity team, as it trotted out on the field and as it probably will line up against Colgate, follows:

DARTMOUTH LOSES STARS.

Youngstrom and Holbrook Will Not Play in Brown Game.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 11.—Dartmouth's preparation for the Brown game received another severe jolt this afternoon with the definite announcement that "Swede" Youngstrom, the giant right guard, and "Pat" Holbrook, veteran left half back, would be unable to play Saturday. Hope had been held all the week that those two 'Varsity stars, who were badly smashed up in last Saturday's fray, would be in shape for Dartmouth's last game. That Dartmouth paid a high price for its victory over Penn is putting it mildly. Youngstrom's loss is felt not only in the line, but, after Robertson had been laid out Saturday, the big right guard did the punting, averaging a good 40 yards in his kicks. Now Coach Spears faces the problem of finding a dependable kicker. Holbrook, the other veteran to go to the side lines today, is also a punter of no mean ability.

Today's practice was held on the campus because of the wretched condition of Alumni Field, which will not be fit for use again this season. The regulars who survived the Penn contest reported today and managed to hobble through signal drill. Prospective punters received a large share of attention from the coaches.

TIGERS' SCRIMMAGE PREVENTED BY RAIN

Roper Gives 'Varsity Long Drill in Tackling—Keck Likely to Play in Yale Game.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 11.—Only three days of scrimmage were on the program this week in preparation for the game at New Haven on Saturday and Jupiter Pluvius's unwelcome intervention today reduced that number by one. It was almost beyond the realm of possibility that last week's superb football weather could continue for the rest of the season and the break came with today's cold, penetrating drizzle.

Bill Roper kept his men on University Field this afternoon and the turf there was soon plowed into so muddy and slippery a condition that the head coach refused to risk his first string players in a long battle with Team B.

Stan Keck, the huge tackle who has been on the sidelines during the last two weeks, has about recovered from the injury which incapacitated him and was roaming about the gridiron this afternoon in togs. The coaching staff did not let him get into any heavy action, however, but the belief is prevalent here that he will be in shape to be at his regular post at left tackle against the Elis.

The ragged tackling shown by most of the men in the Harvard contest resulted in a long drill in that department this afternoon. The entire 'Varsity was put on the defensive and went through a long workout in stopping the second string backfield men as they came slipping and sliding up the field with the ball. The uncertain footing and the heavy going made it impossible to get a very good line on the accuracy of the first string tacklers and the men will get a lot of this kind of work tomorrow and Thursday.

Post-mortems do not win games, but, judging from the ability shown by Maury Trimble and Jack Strubing in breaking up the Crimson's aerial attack last Saturday and from the work of these players in smearing a forward pass attack launched today by the second team backfield, there is much speculation among the Princeton students as to whether or not the pass that enabled Casey to score Harvard's touchdown would have gone through if Referee Bill Langford had not called Trimble out of the game by mistake. The scrub backs tossed their passes from behind the protecting wall of the 'Varsity line, and the entire first-string backfield was on the defensive.

Mike Callahan, whose wretched passing last Saturday finally resulted in his removal, was back in his old place in the 'Varsity line this afternoon. In spite of the water-soaked spheroid, he directed his leaves with such accuracy that it is considered practically certain that he, and not Whitey Thomas, will open against Yale.

PENN PRACTICES IN RAIN.

Coach Folwell Puts Quakers Through Drill on Wet Field.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—Despite the rain that continued from an early hour today, soaking the Franklin Field gridiron almost to a condition impossible for walking, Coach Folwell of the Penn football team ordered the men to don uniforms late this afternoon. The 'Varsity, with one or two changes due to injuries, waded through a signal drill lasting an hour or more. Henry Miller, who has been holding down an end position on the 'Varsity all season, was shifted to the second team today. On the 'Varsity wings during the "sliding" were Ray Miller and Bud Hopper. Lou Little and Johnny Titsel ran through the tackle positions, with Thomas and Alex. Wray guarding. Captain Reli directed the play of Derr, Straus, and Brunner in the back field.

Herb Dieter reported for the first time since Saturday, and from what the trainers reported on his ankle, it is hardly likely that he will play against Pittsburgh on Saturday in the biggest game of the season. Hobey Light, another man who was injured in New York last Saturday, has not been seen this week. Reports indicate that he will not be in condition to face the Panthers on Saturday.

Those players who can get away from classes from now until game time Saturday will journey to Pine Valley, N. J., where secret practice will be held in preparation for the Panther struggle. Folwell must do some reconstruction work this week in hope of beating Warner's team. In case Light is unable to play, Straus will take his place.

Doubtless the Texan will get into the game against Pittsburgh, as he has already played two years against them and has always been successful in breaking through Warner's machine.

CORNELL HAS HARD WORK.

Red Eleven Builds Up Attack for Penn State Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 11.—Cornell's drive for the Penn State game was in full swing this afternoon. Practically every 'Varsity man was on the field and most of them got into the offensive scrimmage practice. The workout was held on Alumni Field, the 'Varsity gridiron being rather soft after a heavy rain and the management being desirous of keeping it from being cut up in order to provide a good field for Saturday's game, which is the last home contest of the schedule.

The outdoor practice in the open consisted of a long drill in offensive play close to the goal line. Mindful of one experience in the Carnegie Tech game last Saturday, when the 'Varsity was held on the two-foot line for downs, the coaches had the ball put in play on the scrubs' five-yard line and for an hour the 'Varsity backs were sent crashing into the scrub line or attempting to work trick plays for touchdowns. On the whole, the work of the first team was encouraging and marked another day's development toward an offensive with a big punch.

Captain Shiverick did not get into the scrimmage. He is close to his best form and the coaches feel that a rest will do him no harm. Mackenzie and Davies, who played last Saturday, were in the lineup, as was Lechler, an inexperienced but rugged halfback in whom Coach Rush seems to have much faith. His recent work certainly marks him as a comer. Shuler played in the 'Varsity backfield for the first time in weeks, and there was no evidence that he was troubled any longer by the injury that has kept him out of the lineup for a long time.

Cuneen and Colvin were at ends, Taylor, Sutton and Dodge at tackles, Pendelton and Miller, guards, and Horrell, centre. Knauss, the big tackle whose work in the Tech game was sensational, is recovering from minor injuries.

MOUNTAINEERS AT WORK.

Coaches Keep Cripples from Scrimmaging and Practice Passes.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 11.—All of West Virginia's cripples except Ice were on the field today, but Stager was not in uniform, and Harrold, Archer, and King were not allowed to do anything more than jog around the field. With these men all out and Rodgers, Neale, Hite, and Lents making up the 'Varsity back field, the short but strenuous scrimmage was staged in which the forward passing game of the 'Varsity featured. Rodgers and Neale threw passes with unusual accuracy, and Lents, Hite, Neale, Mills, and Martin all participated in gathering them in, in spite of the desperate efforts of the scrubs.

Hager, Ice, and King will likely not be in shape to play against Rutgers Saturday, and Harrick and Archer, the tackles, do not promise to be able to last throughout the game.

HAUGHTON WATCHES CRIMSON AT WORK

Former Harvard Coach Makes First Appearance to Help Build Up Backfield.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 11.—Percy Haughton, coach of so many winning Harvard football teams in the past, paid his first visit to the Crimson squad behind the secret practice fence this afternoon. No "hurry call" has been issued to Haughton, but he was down at Princeton the other day, and was not very much impressed with the work of the Crimson backs against the Jersey forward passing game.

Haughton watched the long workout between the substitutes and the scrubs today and did what he could to help Fisher's backs show more alertness and sense for the ball on the variety of short passes that have netted so much ground for the Harvard opponents in the last two games. He will be out again later but says that business will not allow him to take an every day place on the staff.

The scrimmage, which wasn't all for Haughton's benefit, was the real thing. There was no special drive, but the substitutes, including Gatwick, the only man of the lot who played against Princeton, banged away at the scrubs, and the scrubs, using the Yale formations, did what they could to blast the 'Varsity's defenses.

The second team did not succeed in scoring, but had its own goal line crossed when, after intercepting a forward pass on the scrubs' 35-yard line, the substitutes drove over the goal line. It took ten plays to turn the trick, however. Another 'Varsity touchdown was lost by fumbling, this being a frequent happening on both teams.

Fisher sent all the players he had on tap into the play which lasted more than an hour. He first used Gratwick, Church, and Lancaster as his backfield, but later all the other subs were tried. Ryan and Frothingham were at end, the tackles were Hubbard and Faxon, and Gaswell played centre, flanked by Brown and Thorndike. At the end of the day's work, Faxon blocked a scrub team kick.

Tomorrow the regulars will settle down to business. The line is not likely to be shifted much, but the backfield problem is one that it is going to take some ingenuity on the part of the coaches to solve. Harvard has shown plenty of open field stars, but except for the two Horweens the coaches seem to have been dissatisfied with all the heavier types suitable for line breaking.

The backfield situation is serious at Cambridge now with R. Horween hurt and A. Horween still needed for the middle of the rushline. The material has been here all along, but there has been a miscue somewhere.

RUTGERS MAKES PROGRESS.

Sanford Working on Theory That Strongest Attack Is Best Defense.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 11.—Buck Rodgers, the main reliance of West Virginia's football team, will be covered throughout the game with Rutgers here this week by Budge Garrett, one of the surest tacklers and best defensive players in the East, who made the All-American team in 1917. Garrett is playing at end and he has been instructed to keep his eyes on Rodgers all the time.

Alexander, Rutger's star tackle, may be out of the game on Saturday, as it is believed that one of his ribs was broken in the Boston game last week. An X-ray of the injured rib was taken this afternoon to determine whether it would be safe to use him Saturday.

CHANGES IN ARMY LINEUP.

Coaches Groom Substitutes for Bryan and Blaik.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 11.—The Army football squad had a workout on a muddy field today. Four teams were sent through a fighting scrimmage. Time after time the big team was sent with the ball from one end of the field to the other against a strong scrub team. It seems that the coaches are determined to make or break the team. It is felt that the only way to correct the many glaring faults that popped up in the game Saturday is by long and hard scrimmages.

The most strenuous work of the season was going on at West Point today. No excuse for nonperformance on the part of the players was accepted. Coaches were camping on their heels and driving them for all they were worth.

During the practice Vogel and Shacker on the 'Varsity succumbed with slight injuries, while Spottle, Meaker, and Singer on the scrubs joined the hospital squad. It was reported today that Bryan and Blaik, who have been sick in the hospital since the latter part of last week, may not be able to rejoin the squad again this season. Breidster and Pitzer are being groomed specially to take Bryan's place at guard, while George may be shifted from quarter back on the second eleven to end, to fill Blaik's berth.

A Year Ago and To-day

Just a year ago the glorious news was flashed around the world of the enemy's capitulation and the declaration of an armistice.

And though Peace hasn't yet formally been declared, it will be as soon as some clarifying reservations that will let the world know what we understand it's all about are tacked on to the Official Document.

Meanwhile, the lads who went over—notwithstanding their growls about the grub—learned they had put on about twenty pounds in weight and that last year's overcoat is much too small—are now flocking to the Monroe Shops, where overcoat stocks are ample and prices most moderate.

Monroe Overcoats are nothing short of marvelous—every good style is here for you, and every garment is priced so much less than elsewhere because of our selling

DEPORT BERGER, LEGION DEMANDS

Delegates Also Ask Congress to Investigate Record of Representative Voight.

FAVOR UNIVERSAL TRAINING

Message Read from Gen. Pershing—Indianapolis Chosen as Headquarters—Lindsley Not to Run.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 11.—The first convention of the American Legion today started pronouncement of its policies by adopting resolutions declaring the organization to be "non-political," demanding the deportation of Victor Berger of Milwaukee as "A disloyal citizen," and asking investigation of the record of Representative Voight of Wisconsin, who supported Berger in the recent vote in the House of Representatives.

The resolution asking cancellation of Berger's citizenship and his deportation, drawn by Theodore Roosevelt Post, No. 1, of the District of Columbia, was adopted on motion of the Wisconsin delegation. A similar resolution requests Congress "to it finds Representative Voight to be disloyal, to take steps for his expulsion from the House of Representatives."

A stormy session of the convention began late today, after the Legion had observed Armistice Day by a parade which ended with the presentation of decorations to members of the 151st Field Artillery, a regiment composed largely of Twin City men, at the Parade Grounds before the armory.

Holders of public office or candidates are barred from office in the Legion by an amendment to the constitution adopted late today declaring that the organization will take no part in politics.

The resolution reads as follows:

"While requiring that each of its members perform his full duty as a citizen according to his own conscience and understanding, the organization shall be absolutely non-political, and shall not be used for the dissemination of partisan principles or for the promotion of the candidacy of any person seeking public office or preferment, and no candidate or incumbent of a salaried elective public office shall hold any office in the American Legion or in any branch or part thereof."

A certificate from the French Government for the family of each American soldier killed in France was presented to the convention with the statement that the French Government requested the legion, as far as possible, to deliver these certificates to families of ex-service veterans with appropriate ceremonies on next Washington's Birthday. The convention voted to undertake distribution of these testimonials.

The flag, said to be the first American flag carried over the top in France, by Martin Walberg of New Jersey, a member of a Canadian contingent, was presented to the legion by Delegate A. P. Conley of New Jersey.

Debate on an amendment to the constitution affecting membership privileges threw the convention into confusion. Proponents of an amendment seeking to admit those who served with the American or allied armies, and hereafter become American citizens were defeated.

The present legion button was approved as the permanent emblem.

Indorsement of universal military training with a small standing army and no compulsory military service in time of peace was voted enthusiastically. It is recommended that the national citizen army be under local control and administration, subject to general national regulations.

Indianapolis was chosen to be the national headquarters of the organization, defeating Washington, D. C., on the second ballot. Cleveland was chosen for the holding of the next convention.

The delegates stood silent for a moment at 11 A. M., the first anniversary of the hour when firing ceased in the war. Chairman Lindsley asked that the delegates bow their heads in prayer for their comrades who gave their lives during the war.

The Committee on Organization recommended Thomas Houston Niles of Colorado as Chaplain, Alexander H. Johnson of Rhode Island as Sergeant at Arms, and the appointment of an Executive Committee including a representative from each State.

Greetings from General Pershing were read by Chairman Lindsley, who, at that time, announced that he was not a candidate for head of the legion.

General Pershing's message read as follows:

"On this first anniversary of Armistice Day, my best wishes go out to the delegates of the first convention of the American Legion. May the same patriotism and devotion with which you were inspired as soldiers in the great war guide and direct your deliberations in this convention."

A message of sympathy, with the hope for his speedy recovery, was sent to President Wilson.

AIDS BRYN MAWR FUND.

Former Ambassador Gerard Speaks to Graduates in $1,000,000 Drive.

Former Ambassador James W. Gerard was the chief speaker at an Armistice Day luncheon yesterday at the Bryn Mawr Club, 127 East Fortieth Street. He spoke briefly of the great part played by America in the war, and the significance Armistice Day would always have for Americans everywhere. He praised the women for the part they played in the struggle, and urged them to enter just as zealously into the struggle now before the country—that of combating Bolshevism.

Miss Dagmar Perkins, graduate of Bryn Mawr and one of the directors of the $1,000,000 campaign to increase the salaries of the professors, told of the plans for raising money for the fund, and the efforts of the clubs in other cities. One of the chief affairs to take place in New York will be the ball at Hotel Plaza on Dec. 5. The patrons will include Mr. and Mrs. James W. Gerard, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Taft, Miss Helen Taft, Alton B. Parker, Dr. John Grier Hibben, Mrs. Charles Dana, Mr. Charles Tiffany, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kahn, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim, and Miss Florence Waterbury.

NOGUCHI TELLS DISCOVERY.

Believes He Has Isolated Micro-Organism of Yellow Fever.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 11.—Hideyo Noguchi of the Rockefeller Institute today described to the National Academy of Sciences, in session here, his research work at Guayaquil in relation to yellow fever. He expressed the belief that he had isolated the micro-organism which produces the fever.

R. A. Millikan, in reading a paper on "The Extension of the Ultra-Violet Spectrum," said he had extended the spectrum to a greater distance beyond the violet ray than any previous experimenter. He showed that Einstein's theory of relativity made after the solar eclipse of May 27 is not conclusive. Einstein held the theory that rays from stars to the earth are deflected by the sun. Mr. Millikan showed that such rays may be deflected by refraction of gases around the sun.

Francis G. Benedict in a paper on basal metabolism said that experiments on students taking examinations at Wesleyan University showed that thought produces no heat in the body such as is caused by digestive or muscular exertion.

FIND MUNCIE'S MAYOR GUILTY OF SWINDLING

Indiana Prosecuting Attorney and Five Others Also Convicted of Mail Fraud.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 11.—Seven alleged swindlers, including Mayor Rollin H. Bunch of Muncie, Ind., and Prosecuting Attorney Horace G. Martin of Delaware County, were found guilty in the Federal Court here late today of conspiring to use the mails to defraud.

The action came with part of a group of twenty-four indicted in connection with the Muncie case, which involved more than a year, ended in a bribing case and a total of $150,000. All the other defendants had pleaded guilty, some having changed their pleas to guilty during the trial.

TO FILL BERGER'S SEAT.

Republicans and Democrats to Unite on Candidate.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 11.—Governor Philipp has called a special election for Dec. 16 in the Fifth Congress District to name a successor to Victor Berger.

Berger has decided again to be a candidate, says Washington dispatches. Legal steps will be taken here to keep his name off the ballot on the ground that the decision of Congress makes him ineligible to hold office.

The Republicans and Democrats probably will unite on a fusion candidate. Joseph P. Carney, who lost to Berger in the election, says he will be a candidate, and William Stafford, former Congressman, is willing to make the run. The Good Government League, an organization prominent in city politics, probably will decide on the man to fight the Socialists.

AUTOIST FOUND GUILTY.

Lewis Fass, Who Ran Over Teacher, Convicted of Manslaughter.

Almost one year ago, Lewis F. Fass, 41 years old, of 331 East 167th Street, ran over and killed Florence Elizabeth Fraser, 21 years old, of Forest Avenue and 167th Street, the Bronx. Yesterday he was found guilty of manslaughter in the second degree by a jury, following a trial lasting four days in the Bronx County Court. The jury recommended mercy.

The school teacher was struck and fatally injured by a speeding car driven by the defendant south on Bronx Avenue, this avenue on Nov. 25, 1918. It was testified at the trial that the car was speeding at the rate of seventy miles an hour, but Fass denied this.

Judge Louis D. Gibbs, who presided, reserved the defendant until Nov. 17 for sentence.

4 KILLED IN FERRY CRASH.

Four Are Hurt Also in Collision at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—Four men were killed and four others injured today, when a Delaware River tugboat rammed a crowded Philadelphia and Reading Railway ferryboat, plying between Camden, N. J., and this city. The dead and injured, residents of New Jersey towns, were on their way to work. Despite the great hole torn in the side of the ferryboat there was no panic, the several hundred passengers being taken off the boat by other vessels which responded to the distress call of the ferry's whistle.

Joseph P. Cannon, mate of the tugboat, was arrested on a charge of involuntary manslaughter and released on bail pending action by the Philadelphia coroner. Cannon said the collision occurred in a fog, and he was reported as saying it was due to a mistake in signals.

OHIO SUFFRAGISTS LOSE.

Court Refuses Injunction Against Referendum on Amendment.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 11.—The Ohio Supreme Court today upheld the Franklin County courts in refusing to enjoin Secretary of State Smith from submitting the Federal woman suffrage amendment to a referendum next year. The suffrage case probably will be taken to the Federal Supreme Court, as was the decision in the prohibition referendum.

The woman suffrage amendment was not submitted to the voters at the recent election because the referendum period had not expired between the Legislature's action in ratifying the amendment and the time for holding the election. It will be voted on next November unless the United States Supreme Court holds Federal amendments are not subject to a referendum.

Brazil Celebrates the Day.

RIO JANEIRO, Nov. 11.—The anniversary of the signing of the armistice was not celebrated extensively. A new street was named the "Avenida November Eleventh" in honor of the occasion. The British Patriotic Society requested that British subjects observe King George's request for two-minute cessation of work at 11 o'clock.

Packard Trucks For All-Winter Transportation

No More Guess and Gamble in Trucking Costs—
Packard Figures Based Upon Severest Service

WHAT does it mean when thirty cities report demands for more housing construction and increased industrial building? What does it mean when members of the National Association of Builder's Exchanges promise to "attempt to carry on building all winter regardless of weather conditions"?

It means that if demands and plans are carried out, motor trucks must do their bit.

And motor truck users must know how big a bit they can do when cold is extreme and going is hard.

Winter building has always been more or less a gamble with the contractor. A man cannot work a system when the weather deals the cards.

In winters gone by, transportation has fallen down first. Materials were delivered behind schedule or not at all—expensive workmen were forced to slow down—costs were increased accordingly.

Replacement of horses by motor trucks helped to an extent. But reliable figures on winter motor truck performance have been hard to obtain. Consistent figures have been even harder.

Now the gamble is being taken out of winter hauling by Packard transportation figures.

Records of Packard trucks during last winter and the winter before are available.

Many of these trucks did not lose a trip or a minute's time during the winter.

Gasoline and oil consumption and repairs run at the same low average that Packard owners expect to find—

Average loads were hauled, even where they consisted of cement or gravel or other materials whose weight and bulk increased where wet or frozen.

Trailers and special dumping and loading equipment were kept in use according to schedule.

Packard transportation figures and Packard trucks necessarily go together.

For it is the extra margin of strength and stamina that enables the Packard to meet the emergency when it comes.

And it is that same margin—that extra factor of safety—which has kept Packard trucks in continuous service, some of them over ten years. We have yet to hear of a Packard truck going out of active service.

Building contractors and others will find valuable help in solving truck transportation problems by calling upon the Freight Transportation Department of the Packard organization in this city. Its services are without charge.

URGE AID AT ONCE TO SAVE GERMANY

Foreign Relations Council Declares for Immediate Renewal of Commerce.

FEAR SOCIAL REVOLUTION

Speakers Call on Government to Furnish Credit, if Necessary, to Re-establish Industry.

INCLUDE OTHER NATIONS

Say Germany Industrially Dominant Is Preferable to a Germany Bolshevist-Ridden.

Bankers, lawyers and business men of national standing, speaking last night at a dinner of the Foreign Relations Council at the Hotel Astor, were unanimous in declaration that trade with Germany and the rest of Central Europe should be resumed at once, both as a measure of practical benefit to this country and to the world, and as a moral duty, lest a "red menace of Bolshevism" engulf these countries and sweep beyond their borders.

Such men as Otto H. Kahn, Frederic R. Coudert, and Frank A. Vanderlip went further and asserted that the United States Government, either by moral support or practical assistance, should see that the defeated nations get credits with which to re-establish their industries. Mr. Vanderlip went to the length of saying that even a Germany industrially dominant would be preferable to a Germany Bolshevist-ridden.

Manifesting their approval of the course urged by the speakers, the council without dissenting vote passed these resolutions:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting, that from the points of view of both self-interest and humanity, this country should, without delay, furnish needed foodstuffs and raw materials to the countries of Europe, including Germany and the other Central Powers; and, further,

Resolved, That the moral and, if found necessary, the actual support of our Government should be put forth in order to make available such credits and funds to European nations, including the Central Powers, as are required to start the processes of normalizing and stabilizing the trade conditions of the world and to guard against the grave menace inherent in a further continuance of the present economic state of the nations.

Fear Social Revolution.

Darwin P. Kingsley, who presided, reviewed conditions in Germany as indicated by late reports he had received. He said there was serious ground for fearing social revolution, and pictured the people as in such woeful state they were not likely soon to be "up to their old tricks." He read a letter from the head of his company in Berlin, dated late in October, asking that twenty-six boxes of the ordinary necessities of life, such as lard, butter, and soap, be shipped from this country to the company's employes in Germany.

Mr. Kingsley said, and several later speakers agreed with him, that Germany never can pay her war indemnities unless she is industrially rehabilitated and that such failure to pay well may lead to an economic crisis in France.

That Europe cannot wait until our people are educated in buying foreign securities, and that the most rapid and practical method of teaching them that lesson is to offer them inducements to invest was declared by Mr. Kahn. He continued:

"The incredible shortsightedness of our system of taxation has virtually killed America as an investment market. It has been our ambition to continue to be such a money centre as we became during the war, but a country cannot be a money centre unless it has a big, broad, eager investment market. Now, our taxation laws have been so framed that any one with an income of $50,000 a year, for example, who invests in 4½ per cent. municipal bonds actually gets a return of 9 per cent. as compared to what he would receive if he invested in non-tax-exempt bonds, and this divergence increases as one's income increases.

"The result is that the man with a large income has withdrawn from the investment market, which now appeals mainly to the man of small income. But the man of small income is the very man not inclined to make investments, and not accustomed to make them. The situation has become such that the well-to-do man has difficulty in getting income from other sources than speculation and investment in tax-exempt bonds.

Urged as a Moral Duty.

The first thing to do to correct this situation and restore the investment market is to bring pressure to bear upon our legislators for a revision of the taxation laws. The second thing is to bring pressure to bear upon our Government, so that it shall be induced to take the lead, actually or morally, to see that Europe gets financial support from America to which she is entitled, and which it is our moral and practical duty to supply."

Mr. Kahn spoke of his personal relation to the subject, pointing out that, though he was born in Germany, his course, both before we entered the war and during this country's participation, proved he was acting from unquestionable Americanism alone, and went on:

"Here is a people, still sixty millions strong, springing from one of the great racial stocks of the earth, intelligent and efficient, naturally given to good order and hard work, having in past times contributed much to the common assets, spiritual and material, of the world. To the east of them the red flood of Bolshevism is threatening to engulf the nations.

"What the German rulers and people have done within the recent past will stand forever among the most horrible crimes of history—perhaps as the most horrible crime. It can never be forgotten nor forgiven. But neither should this be forgotten: Here is a people, still sixty millions strong, springing from one of the great racial stocks of the earth, intelligent and efficient, naturally given to good order and to hard work, having in past times contributed much to the common assets, spiritual and material, of the world. To the east of them the red flood of Bolshevism is threatening to engulf the nations.

England's Attitude Toward Germany.

"England, wise with the wisdom of centuries of activity in world affairs, has taken the lead in shaping relations with Germany, impelled by both self-interest and humanity. Sir Auckland Geddes, a member of the British Cabinet, in an address delivered last month said: 'The people of Germany are hopeless, dispirited, unsettled. * * * Many men in this country are trembling before a shadow of what Germany used to be, and they will not believe what Germany is now. She is down, and I wish in our interest that her trade showed some more signs of elasticity, spring, and development than it does, because Germany is one of our great markets, and she cannot buy from us unless she is producing wealth within her own borders.'

"A French Minister of State, in a recent speech, is reported as having wisely advised his compatriots to buy from Germany rather than from other countries, so as to take advantage of the depreciated state of the German exchange and because of the recognition that Germany manifestly cannot pay the indemnities assessed and to be assessed against her unless and until she is in a position, to a reasonable degree at least, to re-establish her trade and commerce.

"America should not lag behind. The argument that we can do nothing until the Peace Treaty is ratified by the Senate is not conclusive. We can and should act now in making available for Germany, as well as for other countries, foodstuffs which are urgently, indeed vitally, needed, and essential raw materials. Our self-interest requires it. Our duty to the world at large requires it. The charitableness and humanity which are part of Americanism require it. 'Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord.'"

Would Have Government Help.

J. G. White talked of the practical importance of inducing the Treasury Department to rule that duty on goods purchased in Germany shall be assessed on the "ad valorem" rather than on the par value of the mark. He gave examples of the destructive effect upon importations of the present practice, which often makes the duty many times the price paid for the goods. Others voiced their approval of his suggestion.

That the question of resuming trade relations was not debatable was the assertion of Paul D. Cravath, who called it a "political and practical necessity for the world," a view with which Theodore H. Price, the next speaker, agreed.

Mr. Coudert said he thought organizations formed during the war of individuals who pledged themselves never to buy or use German-made goods were unwise, and predicted that Germany had learned a lasting lesson that such aggression as she attempted does not pay.

"There is no possibility of Germany paying her war indemnities, and France especially will suffer by her default, unless her trade is re-established," said Mr. Vanderlip. "I doubt if this can be done now without Government help, but it is absolutely essential as well as humane that food, raw materials, and the means of again starting up their transportation facilities be supplied to the Central Empires.

"We may even have to revise our views on the tariff, for we are now become a creditor nation, and those countries which owe us huge debts certainly cannot pay in gold; they can pay the interest even, only in goods. And with our raw materials, our fuel, our industrial equipment, and our facilities for mass production, I think we do not need longer to fear the labor of any country in the world."

It was in response to a question from Mr. Coudert as to whether Germany, with American aid, might not again become industrially dominant, to the hurt of some of our best friends among the nations, that Mr. Vanderlip replied:

"Even granting that in this sense Germany may yet seem to have won the war and may yet become the dominant nation, still I say it is better to have that than to have Germany overrun with the red menace of Bolshevism and to have that pestilence spill beyond her borders."

House of Lords Vote Refuses to Admit Women as Members

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The House of Lords today rejected the clause in the bill for the removal of sex disqualifications which would permit women to sit in the House of Lords.

The clause, in the form of an amendment, was added to the bill by the House of Commons on Oct. 27.

HOLD NEW YORKERS UNDER LEVER LAW

Two from Here, One from Brooklyn, Indicted for Food Profiteering.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The first arrests and indictments for food profiteering under the recent amendments to the Lever act were announced by Attorney General Palmer today. These arrests followed instructions from the Attorney General to United States District Attorneys throughout the country to speed up the investigation of food profiteers in order that every possible means may be employed to bring down the high cost of living. The amended Lever act was signed by President Wilson on Oct. 22.

One of the first to come within the provisions of the new law was John Burke, a grocer of Baltimore. He was charged with deceptive practices and with making unreasonable rates and charges. Acording to the testimony he wrapped up sugar and rice in packages, and the packages were found to be of short weight. He also charged prices greater than those indicated by the Fair Price Committee. A warrant was issued for Burke, but he waived hearing and was held for the Grand Jury.

Israel and Harry Greenberger of Scranton, Penn., were also arrested on a charge of conspiracy to restrict distribution and exacting excessive prices. They were held in $1,000 bail for the Grand Jury.

The District Attorney of Atlanta, Ga., also reported the arrest of a dealer named Frank, who was held for the Grand Jury on a charge of profiteering.

Indictments already have been found under the new act against Jacob Lerner and George and Julius Roth of New York City. They were indicted under Section 4 on the charge of conspiracy and of profiteering in sugar.

An indictment also has been found against Louis Leavitt of Brooklyn on a charge of hoarding 1,300,000 pounds of bacon.

The Attorney General has instructed United States District Attorneys to prosecute these cases with the greatest vigor.

BERLIN, Nov. 10, (via Copenhagen.)—Many royal monuments, and all the statues in the Siegesallee, or Avenue of Victory, were found this morning to have been painted red from head to foot.

Others bore the following inscription painted in red oil colors:

"Hail to the world revolution! Down with capitalism!"

BERLIN, Nov. 10, (Associated Press.)—Two of the offenders who defaced monuments here on Sunday night were arrested, but the others resisted the police and escaped. The defacement is attributed to Spartacides.

EXPERTS SEE NEED FOR 8-CENT FARES

Stone & Webster Find a Lower Rate Insufficient to Restore B. R. T. Trolleys.

TRANSFERS NOT ADEQUATE

Nixon Goes to Mount Clemens for a Rest and to Study Transit Property Values.

The final report of Stone & Webster, the experts employed by direction of Federal Judge Mayer to investigate the financial condition of the various railroad properties in the hands of receivers, has been completed so far as it relates to the trolley lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system. According to the figures compiled by the experts, nothing less than an 8-cent fare will suffice to restore the lines financially, and perhaps the fare would even have to be increased to 10 cents.

It is admitted that any rate of fare charged on the surface lines would have to be duplicated on the rapid transit lines. Otherwise, the rapid transit lines would be overburdened by persons seeking to ride for a lower fare. Tables of figures in the report disclose the various additional earning power of a 6, 7, and 8 cent fare.

An 8-cent fare, beginning Jan. 1, 1920, the report states, would leave the company with a trolley line deficit on June 30, 1922, at the rate of $1,262,000 a year. The deficit at a 7-cent rate would be $1,974,000. But if the fare remains at 5 cents the loss for the year ending June 30, 1922, is estimated at $5,336,000. At a 6-cent rate the estimated loss for the same period is fixed at $3,296,000.

Nixon Studies Lines' Values.

"Neither 6, 7, nor 8 cent fare," the report estimates, "will be sufficient in view of the recent 25 per cent. wage increase, to pay expenses, taxes, and the fixed charges, including rentals on leased property, even with the transfer charges in effect and such additional economics as appear feasible."

Concerning the transfer situation the report says that the expected additional revenue coming from the elimination of the 15,000,000 transfers between surface and rapid transit lines will amount to about $75,000, and that if all transfers between surface lines were eliminated, including those for which a charge of 2 cents is made, the estimated increase in revenue would be from $875,000 to $1,050,000. The introduction to the report explains that while the figures differ slightly from those in the preliminary report submitted to Judge Mayer in September, the changes "do not alter but rather emphasize the conclusions of the earlier report."

Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon has gone to Mount Clemens, Mich., for a rest and has taken with him a mass of information out of which he hopes to obtain some idea of the value of the various railroad properties in the city. At the last meeting between Mr. Nixon and officials of the companies the need of knowing the value of each railroad property before any agreement could be reached as to the best method of overcoming the financial difficulties of the companies, became apparent, and Mr. Nixon was chosen to make the appraisals.

To Organize Bus Line.

Mr. Nixon may be away for a fortnight. In the meantime a decision as to whether the Brooklyn City Railroad Company has the legal right to charge a double fare on its lines may be given by Deputy Public Service Commissioner Glennon.

The Property Owners' Association of Flatlands intends to organize a 5-cent bus service for the use of its members between Flatlands and the Long Island Railroad Depot, at Atlantic Avenue. The purpose is to prevent the Brooklyn City Company from benefiting by a double fare charge. Assistant Corporation Counsel, Carswell has been asked for an opinion concerning the right of private individuals to operate a bus service.

The bus service between Bay Ridge and Fort Hamilton has gone out of business. This is the first failure of a bus line established by the Mayor. The bus route ran mainly along the Shore Road, where the traffic was light and the owners of the buses quit because they were losing money. Residents of the section have resumed patronizing the Brooklyn City lines.

FRANCE COLD TO "REDS."

Nation Wants No Bolshevist Experiment, Says Professor Bruhl.

Bolshevist attempts to overturn the republican form of government in France are foredoomed to failure, according to M. L. Levy Bruhl, French exchange professor at Harvard, who delivered the first of a series of addresses at Columbia University yesterday.

"There is an agitation going on in France, as elsewhere," he said, "instigated by the 'Reds.' Without knowing exactly what the Bolshevist institutions are, some persons feel attracted by the new principles of revolutionary Russia. Before the war, many members of the left wing of the Socialist party opposed the capitalistic form of present society. They hate it more now, because they deem it responsible for the horrors of this war, and they wish to see it torn to pieces or done away with.

"But the great bulk of the French nation is averse to any Bolshevist experiment. It abhors political violence and would fight against the tyranny of any social class. The peasants want to work in peace. So does the middle class in the towns. Even in the Socialist party, and in the unions, many leaders know that a revolutionary attempt, even though it should seem to succeed for a while, is doomed to fail if it is not supported by a large majority of the nation."

THIEVES IN BERLIN HIGH LIFE

Two Titled Women and Two Men Held for Big Robberies.

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—Among the numerous daily arrests of all kinds of criminals is an interesting gang of aristocratic burglars whose chief is Countess Eda Colonna. Her principal aids were Lieutenant Joachim von Boetticher, Architect Erich Stutz and Baroness Belly, all very popular in Berlin West, where they had access to the best houses.

Countess Colonna and Baroness Belly, it is charged, would invite rich bankers and war profiteers to their splendidly appointed homes, and meanwhile Boetticher and Stutz burglarized the houses of the victims, robbing them of millions of dollars' worth of goods, jewelry and money.

They might have remained undiscovered had not Stutz, disguised as a policeman seized stolen goods sold by Boetticher to a certain fence, who got suspicious and notified the police.

Ibanez Mexican Union Club's Guest.

Vicente Blasco Ibanez, the Spanish novelist, was the guest of honor at a dinner of the Mexican Union and Friendship Club at the Hotel Pennsylvania last night. Señor Ibanez told of his interest in Mexico, and said that after his tour of the United States he will go to Mexico to collect material for his next book. Under the club's auspices Señor Ibanez will deliver a lecture this evening at the Hotel Pennsylvania on the Mexican situation.

Paris Papers Join in a Strike Edition; 5,000,000 Copies Sold of Their Single Issue

PARIS, Nov. 11.—The principal morning newspapers joined forces and produced an edition this morning under the title Presse de Paris. This was forced by the strike of linotype operators and typographers called last night. The following note is prominently printed on the front page:

"Notwithstanding a contract binding them until June 1, 1920, the Paris printers' unions suddenly declared a strike last night. This action is all the more regrettable as it occurred the very day on which we celebrate the anniversary of victory and on the eve of the Parliamentary elections.

"In a sentiment of union the newspapers of the capital have agreed to publish during the strike a single newspaper."

The Socialist papers have also decided to publish a joint newspaper.

Agitation among the newspaper workers began with the strike in October of the distribution employes. The printers offered to support them with a sympathetic strike, but eventually decided to demand extra pay of 5 francs daily in view of the high cost of living.

Directors of newspapers subsequently met employes' representatives and pointed out to them the difficulty of granting the increase. The possibility of increasing the price of newspapers from 2 to 3 cents was discussed.

As nothing further was done, the unions voted to strike.

When the composite newspapers appeared, it developed that the Socialist journals had ranged for their organ, La Feuille Commune, only five dailies, namely, Humanite, L'Oeuvre, Le Populaire, La Bataille and France Libre. The Presse de Paris, the composite organ of the Nationalist, Conservative and Catholic press, however, displayed on its front page the names of fifty newspapers, as its editorials when it appeared at the usual newspaper hour this morning. The Socialist newspaper was issued at noon.

Five million copies of the Presse de Paris had been printed and distributed by 10 o'clock this morning, and it was expected that by noon six million copies would be in the hands of the reading public. This is a new record in the circulation of a daily newspaper in the capital. The newspaper was printed on the presses of Le Petit Parisien.

At the meeting yesterday of the linotype operators, at which the strike was decided on, the men's leaders advocated allowing Humanite, L'Oeuvre and France Libre to appear this morning, but the editors of these newspapers refused to publish, sending word to the meeting that it would be a poor political move which might have a bad effect upon the populace if only Socialist papers were permitted to print.

The printers met at 6 o'clock this evening, and, after hearing a report from the Directors' meeting, decided to continue the strike until they had obtained complete satisfaction.

SHONTS PAID WIFE $20,000 A YEAR

Separation Agreement Signed in June, 1917, Made Public by Widow's Counsel.

GAVE UP HER DOWER RIGHTS

Trust Fund of $100,000 for Two Daughters—Only Half of Wife's $80,000 Debts Paid.

The 1917 separation agreement by Theodore P. Shonts and his wife, Milla D. Shonts, whom he cut off in his will with a $5,000 life insurance policy and an oil painting, in favor of Mrs. Amanda Thomas, residuary legatee of the estate, was made public yesterday by Warren Dixon and George W. Files, of 115 Broadway, attorneys for Mrs. Shonts. Argument on a motion to oust Mrs. Shonts as temporary administratrix came up before Surrogate Fowler yesterday, but was adjourned until next Monday.

The agreement, which was signed June 29, 1917, after Mr. Shonts had been living for some time apart from his wife, stipulated that in consideration of his paying her debts up to $80,000, in addition to other provisions contained in a private agreement, each was to permit the other to live the rest of his or her life "as if unmarried." Mrs. Shonts promised not "to harass, molest or annoy" her husband or any of his friends or associates. She also agreed not to institute proceedings of any kind against him. Mrs. Shonts relinquished all her dower rights.

After reciting the personal history of the two and the birth of their children, Theodora (Duchesse de Chaulnes) and Marguerite (Mrs. Rutherford Bingham), the document stated that the agreement had been drawn up as the result of "divers disputes" which had arisen between husband and wife.

Promised Wife $20,000 a Year.

After obligating himself for Mrs. Shont's debts to the extent of $80,000, the Interborough President agreed to pay his wife $20,000 a year during their joint lives, the provision to expire upon his death. Provision was also made in the agreement for establishing a trust fund of $100,000 with the Guaranty Trust Company for the benefit of his two daughters.

In addition to this trust fund Mr. Shonts also provided that he should pay each daughter $7,500 a year, but the total amount in either case should not exceed $10,000 a year.

The argument before Surrogate Fowler was postponed at the request of Mr. Files, who said that he needed a week to prepare certain essential affidavits.

Defending his client for her action in seeking to be appointed temporary administratrix of her husband's estate after, according to the attorneys for the executors, she had agreed not to institute any proceedings until the arrival of the Duchesse de Chaulnes from Europe, Mr. Files said at his office:

"Mrs. Shonts is trying to find out what has become of furnishings and valuables which have been removed by some one from her husband's apartment at 930 Park Avenue. It was therefore necessary for her to seek the appointment."

Mr. Files declared that the agreement made by Mr. Shonts to pay his wife's debts up to $80,000 had not been fulfilled, and that Mr. Shonts paid only about $40,000 of her obligations. The attorney contended that the $100,000 trust fund mentioned in the agreement for the daughters was distinct and apart from a similar fund devised in the will.

Mrs. Shonts will appear on the witness stand and testify at the first opportunity, according to Mr. Files.

SOCIALISTS WOUND ITALIAN CANDIDATE

Capture Boaris, Democrat, and Seize His Car for Their Propaganda—Violence Grows.

ROME, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—As election day approaches, the excitement throughout the country is growing and acts of violence are increasing.

The latest victim of violence is Adamo Boaris, the Democratic candidate in Ferrara. He had driven in an automobile to the village of Marroca to address the electors and had hardly begun to speak when Socialists invaded the meeting and wounded him.

The Socialists seized the automobile for their own propaganda and kept Boaris a prisoner. Soldiers were sent from Ferrara to rescue him.

D'Annunzio to Fly to Rome?

The Progresso Italo-Americano prints the following cable dispatch from its Rome correspondent this morning:

"The papers are publishing the announcement coming from Fiume that D'Annunzio will come to Rome in an airplane in order to treat with the Foreign Minister, the Hon. Tittoni, in regard to the question of Fiume.

"The announcement has excited a deep and most lively interest."

TAKE SINN FEIN M.P.'S IN PARLIAMENT RAID

Nine Arrests Are Made When the Authorities Break Into Offices in Dublin.

RIOTS IN DUBLIN AND CORK

Soldiers at Cork Break Through Police Cordon and Engage in Free Fight with Crowd.

DUBLIN, Nov. 11.—The offices of the Sinn Fein "Parliament" were raided today by the authorities. Nine persons were arrested.

Those taken in custody included John O'Mahony, John Hayes, and Frank Lawless, Sinn Fein members of the British House of Commons.

Many documents were seized by the raiders.

During the celebration of Remembrance Day, Sinn Feiners, parading the streets singing soldiers' songs, met a body of Trinity College students who had been singing the national anthem on St. Stephen's Green. The parties engaged in a free fight lasting an hour. Stones and sticks were freely used before the combatants separated.

CORK, Nov. 11.—Constant collisions between the military and civilians here culminated in serious rioting last night, when soldiers, enraged in consequence of frequent attacks upon them, broke through the police and came into conflict with the crowd.

Sticks and stones were freely used, and belts were removed and forcefully swung. There were also a few revolver shots. A Captain and a private of the troops were badly wounded.

The police eventually dispersed the crowds and got the soldiers back to their barracks.

BRITISH TO DISCUSS RUSSIA WITH POINCARE

Lloyd George's Reference to Possible Peace Regarded by Diplomats as a Feeler.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The Daily News lobby correspondent says:

"The Prime Minister's reference at the Guildhall to the possibility of peace between the warring factions in Russia which would involve allied recognition is regarded in dipomatic circles as a d'essai ballon. It is stated with some show of authority that the Allies have not yet collectively given their acquiescence to any such policy. The matter will be discussed between members of the Cabinet and President Poincare during the next few days.

"What is not explained in political circles and is still an official mystery is why the burden of the Russian adventure in men and money has fallen on the shoulders of Britain and is not shared by four of the allies."

Bonar Law's explanation in the Commons yesterday of Lloyd George's speech does not satisfy the Northcliffe press. The London Times describes it as "mere parliamentary prevarication designed as a fence to cover the extremely embarrassing and vulnerable ministerial position."

The Daily Mail says:

"Bonar Law's prompt effort to water down Lloyd George's words and his promise that the House shall be consulted before steps are taken are only proof the weight of the public outcry, notably accentuated by French opinion, against the infamous proposal."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—A proposal that the international labor conference go on record as favoring immediate acceptance by all the allied and associated powers of the request of the Russian Soviet Government for peace negotiations will be submitted tomorrow to the conference, it was announced today by Gino Baldesi, Italian labor delegate.

In making the announcement Mr. Baldesi declared himself strongly opposed to any soviet form of government, but asserted he was not in sympathy with the attempt of the allied and associated powers to force a definite form of government on Russia.

POINCARE AT GUILDHALL.

City of London Welcomes Him Before Distinguished Gathering.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—President Poincare of France, Britain's guest this week, was heartily welcomed by the city today at the Guildhall, where the corporation presented an address to the French executive. At the ceremony were Stephen Pichon, the French Foreign Minister, Premier Lloyd George and most of the members of the British Cabinet; Prince Albert, the King's second son; Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, his aunt; Prince and Princess Arthur of Connaught, other members of the royal family and numerous prominent citizens.

Thousands of persons cheered President Poincare during his progress through the beflagged thoroughfares to the Guildhall.

ALL LONDON SILENT AT ARMISTICE HOUR

Traffic Stops, Men Uncover, and Women Bow Their Heads at 11 o'Clock Signal.

HONORS FOR WAR'S DEAD

Memorial Services Held in All the Churches with Special Observances by Veterans.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—For two minutes, at 11 o'clock this morning, England paused in memory of her glorious dead, in response to the suggestion of the King. Every train halted, every carriage came to a standstill, and every one stopped in the midst of his work or play.

The scenes in London were most impressive, as on the stroke of the hour the stream of traffic ceased, men removed their hats and women bowed their heads, and a deep silence fell.

A great crowd had gathered near the Cenotaph in Whitehall and, just as the hour struck, a royal carriage drove up, bearing a wreath from the King to lay on the memorial.

Maroons, fired as in the air raids, gave the signal for the minutes of remembrance. They startled the pigeons into wild flight, but they froze the assemblage still. It stood and thought of the dead, while the distant maroons sounded like minute guns.

Cabinet Ministers and relatives of humble Tommies, representatives of the French President, and chance passersby stood silent together. No one gazed at his neighbor curiously, but many shed tears, and for two minutes the crowd might have been turned to stone.

It was a marvelous demonstration in its simplicity and sincerity and brought back overpoweringly the heroism and sacrifice of the war.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Great Britain today celebrated the first anniversary of Armistice Day with impressive ceremonies. The foremost and striking of these came in response to the appeal of King George to commemorate the event by a universal simultaneous suspension of activity throughout the country and the observance of silence for two minutes at the moment corresponding with the signing of the armistice—the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month.

The royal call, which appealed to the imagination of the people, had been published and commented on widely throughout the length and breadth of the country, with the result that everybody was prepared to join with appreciative readiness in the unique celebration. The arrangements for carrying out the plans were made with great thoroughness, extending even to ships at sea.

The orders for silence and the standing at attention for two minutes, which were prescribed by the British Navy, were adopted also by all the American warships in British waters on instructions issued from the American Naval Staff here. The military arrangements were similar to those of the navy.

The most impressive scenes were witnessed everywhere as the solemn moment was observed. Civic employes stood still at their posts. Judges in their courtrooms, Cabinet members in their offices, or wherever they happened to be, ceased their duties and stood at attention when the clock struck and the rockets burst that signalled the hour. Every man bared his head, and in many instances men and women stood sobbing in the streets.

Afterward the bands in the open spaces played the "Doxology," "God Save the King," and the buglers "Last Post." Thousands of persons gathered around the monuments erected to the soldiers and deposited wreaths.

In addition to a general suspension of industrial and commercial activities and the cessation of traffic by railroads and tramways, the celebration included solemn religious ceremonies in churches of every denomination. Conspicuous among the churches which celebrated were St. Paul's Cathedral, Westminster Abbey, and the Westminster Catholic Cathedral. One large department store in London had a clergyman conduct services in its building so that all the customers present might attend.

Among other celebrations in London which served to accentuate the impressiveness of the anniversary was a procession organized by the Comrades of the Great War and of other patriotic associations to a cenotaph in Whitehall dedicated to "the glorious dead." This ceremony embraced solemn musical rites and the laying of wreaths at the foot of the cenotaph.

The newspapers today devoted columns to the anniversary, printing among other things messages from numerous public persons appreciative of the occasion. Among these messages was one from Dowager Queen Alexandra to The Daily Mail, saying: "We all pray that God will hear our silent prayers in remembrance of all our brave departed, who laid down their precious lives on the battlefield."

All the churches remained open from 11 until 12 o'clock for silent meditation, while in the schools the teachers read the King's letter, the children standing.

President Poincaré spent the period of silence with the King in Buckingham Palace.

Around the cenotaph in Whitehall thousands had gathered from early morning, most of them bringing wreaths. A guard of honor, both soldiers and sailors, was mounted, with reversed arms.

A minute before 11 o'clock, Colonel Blavier, representing President Poincaré, placed a wreath on the cenotaph and stood at salute.

Premier Lloyd George walked bareheaded about the same time from Downing Street and placed another wreath on the cenotaph.

FOCH ATTENDS MASS.

Paris Observes Armistice Day with Service at Invalides.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—The first anniversary of Armistice Day was celebrated this mornin at the Chapel of the Invalides with a solemn mass in memory of those who gave their lives in the world war.

Marshal Foch, General Pau, and many maimed soldiers were present. A choir composed of war orphans sang the Te Deum.

ABSOLVES BRITISH GIRLS.

Committee Finds Charges Against Air Force Service Unsubstantiated.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The House of Lords committee which has been conducting an inquiry into allegations that girls of the Woman's Royal Air Force Service at the Hurst Park camp had not always conducted themselves properly, concluded its labors today. Baron Wrenbury, the Chairman, announced that the committee unanimously found the allegations of immorality absolutely unsupported by any of the testimony presented.

The Hon. Violet Douglas-Pennant, daughter of Baron Penrhyn, testifying before the House of Lords committee on Oct. 20 in an inquiry into her dismissal as commandant of the Woman's Royal Air Force Service, charged the girls at the Hurst Park camp with improper conduct. She declared that they had night passes and were taken to London in Government cars and brought back the following morning, sometimes in an intoxicated condition.

CAPITAL OBSERVES ARMISTICE DAY

Memorial Trees Planted Opposite the White House with Special Ceremonies.

MESSAGES TO THE NATION

Gen. March Exhorts Veterans of the War to Work for True Americanism.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Two events of national importance not on the arranged program—the arrival of the Prince of Wales as the guest of the nation and President Wilson's leaving his bed for the first time since illness forced him to abandon his speaking tour last month—marked the celebration of Armistice Day in Washington. A general feeling of relief in official circles over the decision of the soft coal miners to rescind the strike order was another high point in the day set apart to commemorate the ending of hostilities in the war.

Rain fell almost continuously during the day, so that many of the arranged events of the celebration took place indoors in departments and bureaus. The rain, however, could not dampen the ardor of those participating in the ceremonies connected with the planting of two memorial California redwood trees in Lafayette Square, opposite the White House. At the anniversary hour, 11 o'clock in the morning, the rattle of musketry from the army firing platoon formally announced that the trees were in place, banked by earth brought from many States for the purpose, and with memorial documents to be sheltered for years to come beneath their roots.

President Wilson's message to the nation was read by Fairfax Naulty, and addresses were made by members of Congress.

Services were held at 11 o'clock in all the Government departments, which suspended activities for ten minutes.

General Pershing and Secretaries Baker and Lansing pointed out in statements to the American people the deep and solemn meaning of the day, while General March, Chief of Staff, in a message "to the veterans" said:

"The first anniversary of the armistice finds the country holding in most affectionate remembrance the work you performed so cheerfully and gallantly during your service here and overseas. The story of your participation in the war will inspire future generations.

"You have now turned your attention to civil problems, in which the lessons you learned in war may be aptly applied. Patriotism, self-control, and unity of action make for the future welfare of the country as well as for success in battle. You have stood fast under fire, and today your country expects you to stand as firmly in aiding your Government and establishing the doctrines of true Americanism so they will endure forever. Having passed through the great struggle, you stand as an example of idealism to coming generations. Be inspired with the thought that you must continue to be a good example of the glorious spirit which actuated you in your fight for liberty.

"Some of you are still in uniform; some of you are in civilian clothes. Respect the uniform you wore and honor the country and flag for which you fought."

Secretary Daniel supplemented his formal statement in an address to wounded soldiers at the Walter Reed Military Hospital.

"The men who made Armistice Day possible in 1918," he said, "will never permit anarchy or autocracy to rule here in America. Here, where brave men who made the noblest sacrifices are making ready for future patriotic service, there is no need to make resolution of devotion to Americanism. Your dedication, made in bloody trenches, calls for no peace declarations, because deeds live when words are forgotten.

"This is not a day for doubt or despondency or dalliance. It is a day for national baptism in the faith that sent American boys unafraid over the top.

"My message to civilians is: 'Let us follow liberty as the men in arms fought and died for it. To be worthy of them we must join with them to make democracy safe for the world.'"

ARMISTICE DAY SHOWS OUR TOTAL WAR LOSS

Revised List Is 293,089, with 34,625 Killed in Action and 13,955 Died of Wounds.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—In the midst of the celebration today of the anniversary of the signing of the armistice, the tragedy of war again was emphasized by announcement of a revised list of American casualties, showing a total of 293,089.

The list includes 34,625 killed in action, including 382 lost at sea; died of wounds, 13,955; died of disease, 23,302; died of accident and other causes, 5,336; wounded in action, 215,489; missing in action, 2.

Five flags bearing the inscription "United for Justice and for Right" and signed June 28 at Versailles by President Wilson, Premier Clemenceau, Premier Lloyd George, and Baron Sonnino, brought 52,350 francs. Five flags signed by Marshal Foch brought 8,500 francs; five flags signed by Marshal Joffre, 7,450 francs; five flags signed by President Poincaré, 5,800 francs; five flags signed by Premier Clemenceau, 4,900 francs, and five flags signed by Marshal Pétain, 4,700 francs.

Seventh Anthrax Victim Dies.

The twelfth person suffering from anthrax in the last five years to come to Bellevue Hospital died there yesterday. He was Michael Robinson of 631 East 148th Street, the Bronx. Of the twelve persons treated for the disease at the hospital seven have died, and the others have been cured through operations. Robinson contracted the disease by using an infected shaving brush.

To Extend Americanization Work.

The Council of the United Neighborhood Houses of New York at a meeting last night drafted plans for extending their Americanization efforts and health work. Judge Thomas C. T. Crane was elected honorary President. Owen Lovejoy and Mlle. Basset addressed the meeting. An Executive Committee, of which Dr. John L. Elliott, Miss Helen H. Jessup, Miss Viola Conklin, and Mrs. Lee G. Simkhovitch are members, was appointed.

CITY IN SOBER MOOD ON ARMISTICE DAY

Season of Silent Prayer an Impressive Feature in All Memorial Gatherings.

EX-SERVICE MEN TAKE PART

Speakers Plead for Upholding Ideals of America and Putting Down Radicalism.

PAY TRIBUTE TO THE DEAD

Former Chaplain of 107th Infantry Urges Men to Stand Fast for Cause Which Won.

With a note of solemnity that contrasted sharply with the delirious joy with which the signing of the armistice was greeted a year ago, city, State, and nation yesterday observed the second Armistice Day with tributes to the memory of the heroic dead.

Combined with these eulogies of heroism that rises supreme in the history of the conflict were warnings from clergymen, from soldiers, and from statesmen to take swift action against Bolshevism and other forces of disintegration so "that these dead shall not have died in vain."

In all the exercises in observance of the first anniversary of the signing of the armistice which brought to a close the world's greatest war the most impressive moment was when audiences stood with bowed heads in a moment of silent prayer for those who perished on the fields of battle. None of the speakers failed to point out, and none of the audiences failed to recognize, that those who paid most dearly for victory were the soldiers whose names were missing from the muster rolls when the guns were hushed.

More than 100 separate meetings and memorial services were held in this city yesterday under the auspices of the American Legion and the veterans of the regiments and military organizations which took their part in the war. In the schools the pupils heard tales of new heroes whose bravery rivals that of the outstanding figures of other wars. In many sections of the city these pupils joined the veterans in impressive pageants of victory.

People Think of the Gold Stars.

Throughout the city the joyous celebration of the signing of the armistice was forgotten. Remembered only was the feeling that every citizen felt when he saw that immense field of gold stars borne past in tribute to the dead.

In cities throughout the country the same note of solemnity prevailed, and in none was the ceremony of paying tribute to the fallen a minor part of the exercises. Six States had set aside the day as an official holiday, and in their proclamations, the Governors had expressed a desire that the Armistice Day should be observed in the same manner as Memorial Day has been observed since the idea was adopted, in tribute to the veterans of the civil war.

In twenty-two other States, where no holiday had been proclaimed, exercises were held under the auspices of the State Governments and the State military forces took part in the ceremonies. In this State, the New York Guard turned out to aid in the membership drive of the American Red Cross, which had set aside this day to make a special effort in memory of those who were killed or wounded on the battlefields.

Plea for Unity of Americans.

A warning against the forces of anarchy that would overthrow the ideals and structure of the American Government and a plea for Anglo-American unity as a means of upholding a sane world order were voiced yesterday by the Rev. William T. Manning at the memorial services in Trinity Church.

"We will put down with stern hands those who seek to destroy freedom, who seek to destroy liberty, and who seek to disseminate here the vile and inhuman teachings of anarchy," said Dr. Manning.

"Another thought reminds us of the sacred bond which binds us to our allies, all those with whom we fought for justice and freedom. The worst enemy of America and of mankind today is the man who by tongue or pen will seek to create distrust between us and our allies in the war."

After paying tribute to the dead at the memorial services of the 107th Infantry in the Church of St. Paul the Apostle, at Sixtieth Street and Columbus Avenue, the Rev. Peter E. Hoey, Regimental Chaplain, appealed to the veterans of the regiment and to the families of the dead to uphold the ideals of American Government and to fight the forces of anarchy and radicalism.

"As our brothers died, so must we live, that the ideals for which they died may live and gather strength and power," the Chaplain said. "America today is at a crisis. There are enemies within who would rend the very fabric of liberty, would destroy the very soul of national life. Shall we fail now when there is such great need that every true son of America stand fast in defense of the cause for which men died and died willingly?

"It required no great heroism for them to do as they did. It needed but the firm patriotism and love of the right to send them to their duty and to do that duty well. That some fell, while others were left behind, means that those to whom a longer span of life was given shall, nay, must, uphold the hands of lawful government and crush out the foes who are striving today to destroy us."

A short memorial service was held in St. Patrick's Cathedral at noon, with ringing of the chimes. Two services were held in the Calvary Episcopal Church, at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-first Street, with the sermons by the Rev. Herbert Shipman, who was senior chaplain of the First Army. The Rev. Dr. G. A. Carstensen was the speaker at the services in St. Paul's Chapel.

In the Supreme Court in the Bronx, Justice John M. Tierney, the hearing of cases was suspended for a few minutes and the Justice made a short talk, paying tribute to the dead and telling of the ideals for which American soldiers perished. The same means of observance was taken by Justice Charles L. Guy in the Criminal Section of the court and by County Judge Louis D. Gibbs of the Bronx. As another way of paying tribute to the dead, the commercial cables ceased operation for two minutes at 6 o'clock yesterday morning.

Negro Troops March in Brooklyn.

Brooklyn celebrated Armistice Day with memorial services in a number of the churches, banquets, patriotic exercises, and a military parade. The paraders were about 2,000 negro troops, the column being made up of the 15th Infantry of the New York State Guard and men who had served overseas with the 367th, 368th, and 369th Infantry Regiments of the National Army.

Speaking at the services in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, ex-Ambassador James W. Gerard said: "The free speech guaranteed by our Constitution does not give a right to undermine that Constitution and all our civil and religious life. No avenue of opportunity is closed to this country; there is no excuse for anarchy. There must come a revival of religion. The destroyed cathedrals must be rebuilt in every human heart."

At the same meeting Alton B. Parker appealed for co-operation of America and Great Britain.

Henry Morgenthau was the speaker last night at the exercises of the Harlem chapter of the American Legion held in the Great Hall of City College.

Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown said at the Armistice Day exercises at New York University yesterday that he believed Americanization was one of the best ways to fight radicalism.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday.. 5¼ per cent. for the best names. Monday.... 5¼ per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Something New in Merchandising.

What is believed to be something new in the way of retail merchandising is being done by one of the big local stores apropos of National Blouse Week. The store in question has on display in its show windows a number of examples of ultra modern blouses which are not yet ready for delivery. Consumer orders for the blouses, however, are taken in the department of the store that is devoted to the sale of these goods. In the merchandise on display are a number of models of unusual novelty and richness in design and fabric.

Armistice Day Hit Gray Goods.

With the Massachusetts mills and selling offices closed by a legal observance of Armistice Day, and with most of the leading local commission houses closed, sales in the gray goods market here yesterday were practically nil. The little that was done consisted almost entirely of printcloths for this month's delivery, and the sales were made by second hands. They included Eastern 38½-inch 64-60s at 12¾ cents and 39-inch 68-72s at 28 cents. For 39-inch 72-76s buyers paid 24½ cents.

Novel Hat Trimmings Seen Here.

Several unusual methods of trimming hats are seen in the models embodied in the newer lines shown here. One of these is the use of an entire small sable skin on a shape of hatters' plush. The hat is large, and the sable pelt is laid across the front very close to the side crown. All over the hat, jutting out at various angles, are strands of black paradise. In another unusual hat, of the off-the-face variety, a very novel effect is obtained by covering the upturned flare with flat, glazed leaves in garish Autumn colorings. The body of the hat is covered with castor-colored glazed leaves of duvetyn.

Clothing Prices for Spring.

In discussing prices for men's clothing for next Spring, the representative of a leading house stated that values will about approximate those of the late Fall merchandise. He explained that the retailers who have come into the market with further orders of heavyweight goods have had to boost their prices quite a bit in order to meet the replacement cost. These increases have not always been confined to new purchases but have been extended to stocks in general, so that as a rule retail goods at present are on the new basis of cost. This basis is approximately the same as that which will prevail during the early buying of Spring merchandise.

A Lesson from Blouse Week.

With the intensity of thought which waist manufacturers gave to preparation for Blouse Week, which is now being held, has come some comparison of the relative volume of business taken on waists and on men's shirts. The showing is decidedly in favor of the latter at a ratio approximated as ten to one. If the present plans of the waist houses go through, however, it is understood that a-year-around staple business will be developed in the women's trade to follow the plan of operation in the men's branch. While the manufacturers of waists seem opposed to standard styles, it is believed that some way will be found to provide moderately priced waists the year around with so little or so gradual a style of variation that purchases will become as heavy as in the men's trade.

More Reasonable Prices.

In their preparation for Spring trade there seems to be a well grounded feeling in the women's garment trade that it may be good policy to adopt a more moderate scale of prices than were inaugurated at the start of the Fall season. When the manufacturers talk of moderation, however, it is with a full realization of increased labor and material costs. There are predictions made on all sides that costs, garment for garment, must be higher for next Spring, but there is also the sentiment spoken of that inclines toward offering more moderate values. As one manufacturer put it: "Regardless of the talk, not every woman is buying silk waists by the dozen and $25 shoes every other turn. For this reason I think that moderately priced merchandise will be more extensively shown."

Cheap Goods on the Market.

One of the principal reasons why cheap goods are not used at present in the manufacturing of clothing ... is found, according to a manufacturer, in the high cost of manufacture. The clothing trade has always been accustomed to figure that goods at a certain price would get a fixed quality of tailoring. In other words, so much is paid for the material and so much for the making of a suit. With manufacturing costs so high a clothing house, following the usual rule, will not put expensive labor into poor materials. The result is that the entire low range of fabrics has been practically eliminated, and cheap materials seem to be as much a drug on the market as the finer goods are in demand.

Ostrich Feather Sale Called Off.

The auction sale of ostrich feathers that was to have been held on Friday of this week in the warehouse of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation, 48 Great Jones Street, has been indefinitely postponed. Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by the R. & R. Importing Company of this city, which was to have conducted it. Local prices are said in the trade still to be about 25 per cent. lower than those asked for the same quality feathers in London, but that this situation will not continue very long is shown by a cablegram received here yesterday from Port Elizabeth, South Africa, which said: "The market is unchanged. The arrivals are diminishing rapidly and the quality is bad. Census shows 800,000 birds in the country. A further reduction is expected on account of the drought. Stocks are small." In relation to this it was pointed out that in 1914 there were 1,000,000 ostriches on the South African farms. The shrinkage indicated by the cablegram was said to mean that ostrich feathers will soon be in a class with diamonds as luxuries.

LET ME PAY:
If you could pay all your bills monthly instead of yearly in advance, your business would have a great deal more working capital!
Altho you have been paying for your insurance just this way without protest, it is not necessary. I write insurance of all kinds in the best and strongest companies and give you the lowest yearly rate, but under my new plan you don't pay in advance! Let me explain it to you.
Your money should be working for you all the time.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Fall Abruptly Under Heavy Sales—Bankers Confer on Credit Status.

From several angles yesterday's developments in the money and security markets were extraordinary and filled with promise of important events to come. Stocks broke violently in the last hour of business, following an advance of the call money rate from 14 to 25 per cent., the latter being the highest quotation since the Federal Reserve system was formed. The foreign exchanges generally moved into new low ground, sterling at one time being quoted as low as $4.11½ for sight drafts. Italian exchange fell into a demoralized state early in the day, and the final quotation of 12.65 lire to the dollar not only made a new minimum record but recorded a drop of no less than 25 points from the quotation the day before. Francs at 9.43 were lower by a large margin than they had ever been before in the New York market. To throw the highest lights upon the confused money and exchange outlook it is necessary to do nothing more than refer to the conference which occurred in the late afternoon between Federal Reserve authorities and local bankers. While no information was obtained of the direct purpose of the meeting, the Street knew enough from recent words and actions by the Government financial authorities here and at Washington to decide that something was afoot to relieve the present strain on bank credits. Presumably the foreign exchanges also received attention.

For a time in the morning industrial stocks were strong, assisted by the decision of the coal union leaders to call off the strike. Steel, automobile, and kindred issues advanced from 1 to 3 points. The rise was short lived, and represented the sentiments of only the most persistent partisans of the upward side of quotations. When call money opened at 14 per cent. and the renewal rate was also fixed at this figure—the maximum of the year—the stock market became unsettled and continued to shade off until 25 per cent. money brought forth a tremendous outpouring of offerings. Several shares which had been rapidly inflated of late dropped from 10 to more than 20 points. Declines running from 3 to 7 points were common among the industrials at the close of business, but the railroad group was affected only slightly. The rails had participated hardly at all in the speculative campaign of the last two months and naturally were not subject to liquidation, which represented the undoing of too enthusiastic operations on the long side of manufacturing company stocks. The turnover was in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 shares.

The unfavorable movements of foreign exchange rates were not accompanied by anything new, and nothing may be added to the situation of international finance to emphasize present needs. Until adequate credits are established here it is difficult to see how the exchanges of the lately belligerent countries can record any material betterment. They can count upon the offsetting influence of increased exports to the United States only as a slow and painful process in improving exchange rates, and before exports can expand largely there must be large imports of raw materials to be worked up in European factories. The necessity for arranging credits is receiving greater attention in banking quarters as the days draw nearer for the acceptance of the Peace Treaty, and doubtless this subject occupies a prominent place in plans for conserving credit from use in speculative ventures in various directions.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Market Again Declines.

Following an opening that was from 2 to 5 points above Monday's close, prices on the Stock Exchange went steadily downward yesterday, with another abrupt recession in the final hour on soaring call money rates. The gain at the outset was directly traceable to the recall of the coal strike order, the favorable character of this news being sufficient for the time being to overshadow doubt concerning money rates. Its influence for the rise was not long maintained, as opening prices proved to be practically the top for the day. Just how much short selling contributed to the decline is a matter of speculation, but opinion seems to be general that considerable weight was turned against the market from this quarter.

High-Priced Issues Again Hard Hit.

The market break once more found its victims among the high-priced issues, which was only natural in view of the fact that such stocks have been the ones forced to pinnacle quotations. General Motors suffered a setback such as it has not known for some time, the decline for the day amounting to 21½ points. There were reports that the rumored subdivision of shares had been abandoned temporarily. Cuban American Sugar declined 29½ points, United Fruit 10¾, American Tobacco 11¼, and Mexican Petroleum 13.

Pressed Steel Car Strong.

A gain of 3½ points in Pressed Steel Car was noticeable mainly for the fact that there were only now and then issues which showed strength enough to fight against the market tide. There were several rumors afloat to account for the advance, one being that there was accumulation of the stock by interests which were seeking control. Nothing tangible on this point was to be obtained.

Copper Market Improves.

There was a bit firmer tone in the copper market, with the prevailing price for the metal near the 21-cent level. The encouragement was to be derived rather from the character and number of the inquiries than the actual price. The price recession several weeks ago was mainly influenced by the paucity of orders. Domestic demand was not of great proportions, and there was little in the foreign situation that could be looked upon with satisfaction. Since then domestic inquiries have been increasing, and it is hoped that the long-delayed buying movement will set in along lines that will approximate normal consumption.

U. S. Smelting Firm.

The strength in United States Smelting shares was traceable to the climbing price of silver, of which this company is a large producer. The stock actually gained only a fraction on the day's transactions, but that it could weather the unfavorable developments overshadowing the market was a cause for comment.

One Year Ago.

A year ago yesterday there was an automatic closing of the New York Stock Exchange, to celebrate the signing of the armistice. There was no formal announcement of a suspension of trading, as the entire financial district simply put on its coat and hat and went out to celebrate the end of the war. The following day there was a sharp break in prices, and a comparison of prices then and now is of interest, as shown by the following table:

Stock	Nov. 12, '18.	Nov. 11, '19.
Anaconda	71⅝	65¼
Atchison	97⅛	89⅞
Atlantic Gulf & West Indies	111⅞	170⅝
Mexican Petroleum	165⅝	219⅞
Union Pacific	134⅝	123⅞
U. S. Rubber	71⅝	124
U. S. Steel	99⅝	105½

Until the armistice was signed the rails had been the backbone of the 1918 market. Since then the uncertainties surrounding their return, the piling up of large operating deficits by the Railroad Administration, and a gradual decline in rail prices has occurred with industrials the market favorites.

$1,224,680,154 Payable to Carriers.

One phase of the House committee report of the Esch Railroad bill which attracted attention in the financial district was that dealing with figures compiled under the supervision of Swagar Sherley of the Railroad Administration. This indicated that $1,224,680,154 is immediately payable to the railroad corporations, and that the amount of the appropriation necessary to make immediate payment is $326,541,893. The figures also showed that the total payable to the Railroad Administration was $898,138,261. The balance due the roads on compensation was set down at $885,395,851, and depreciation and retirements were noted at more than $300,000,000.

Rails Show a Better Undertone.

In yesterday's decline in prices the least active railroad shares displayed a decided improvement, with several issues showing fractional advances at the close, while others which were actively traded closed changed. In some quarters this was attributed to the belief that in the more active railroad issues there had been some quiet but substantial scale buying. This apparently was based on the belief that members of both houses of Congress realize that railroad legislation is vital, and are prepared to enact laws which will protect the carriers when they are returned to private ownership.

329 Issues a Record.

More stocks were traded yesterday on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange than ever before in its history. The former record was 325 issues on July 17 this year. Yesterday's record was 329. The aggregate turnover for the day was 1,950,772 shares.

Money at a New High.

After opening and renewing at 14 per cent., which in itself constituted a new high record for renewals, call money on the Stock Exchange went to 25 per cent. This was a high record for the year, and also for the entire period since the institution of the Federal Reserve system. To find a duplicate requires going back to the panic days of 1907. Something like $1,000,000, it was said, was loaned at this figure, and this, as loans go these days, was not a great amount. Yet Wall Street, noting the 25 per cent., frankly became alarmed.

Expecting More Records.

Two weeks ago most persons scoffed at the idea that call money would be allowed to go to 25 per cent. They said 20 per cent., which previously had been reached, might again be attained, but they were inclined to regard that as the limit. Yesterday, when 25 per cent. was reached, there were all sorts of predictions of yet higher figures today, or maybe tomorrow, or in the near future. The frame of mind Wall Street was in last night would forestall surprise at almost any figure.

Liquidation.

Now that every one is talking about liquidation, most customers' rooms are filled with expositions of "liquidation theories." In one house, where a market average chart is displayed, the clients yesterday were trying to charge off to liquidation the amount of the average decline in prices, on the theory that the amount thus lost represented that much reduction in the amount of credit needed to carry the market. The trouble with this calculation was that no one could reduce it to dollars and cents.

Prices Irregular on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—Prices were irregular on the bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 60 francs 30 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 38 francs 73 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 38 francs 72 centimes. The dollar was quoted at 9 francs 32 centimes.

Pollak Steel Co. Buys New Plant.

It was learned yesterday that the Pollak Steel Company, one of the large manufacturers of railroad car axles in this country, has purchased the Interstate Iron and Steel Company's rolling mill property at Marion, Ohio. The acquisition diversifies the output of the Pollak Company, and is in line with a program of extension now being carried out.

Many Good Investments

During the past five months there have been a large number of exceptionally strong securities offered to the public. The difficulty has been not to select good investments, but to choose those that are the best from every point of view. Preferred stocks have been particularly popular and we would like to suggest consideration of two which yield an unusually liberal return, are amply protected, and have excellent markets.

BOTH PARTIES FIGHT FEDERAL RAIL GRIP

Each and Other Opponents Are Applauded During Debate on Regulation Bill.

SIMS WOULD KEEP CONTROL

Webster Announces That He Will Press for Vote on Anti-Strike Legislation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Expressions of opposition in the House today to Government ownership of railroads drew applause from both Democratic and Republican members when debate of the House Railroad Regulation bill began.

"After hearing proponents of the Plumb plan for Government ownership, with employe operation, the committee was convinced that Government ownership was not and never can be the solution of the railroad problem," declared Representative Esch, Wisconsin, Chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee which framed the measure, and the applause he received was repeated when others uttered similar statements.

The only suggestion of the transportation problem as a 1920 campaign issue was raised by Representative Sims of Tennessee, ranking Democratic committeeman. While supporting the committee plan, centring on the extension of the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Mr. Sims reserved the right to offer a substitute later, proposing continuance of Government control until the end of 1921.

"By that time the campaign will have passed, the Congress will have been elected, labor will have gone through its reorganization, and so will Wall Street," he said.

Consideration of the bill was begun under a program calling for sessions continuing late into the night. House leaders hope that the measure can be passed by Saturday, permitting early adjournment of the special session so far as the House is concerned.

The debate developed opposition to many features of the committee measure. Representative Sanders, Democrat, Louisiana, declared against it as "fundamentally wrong" and likely to result in the final "burial of steamboats." Discussion was confined largely to explanation of provisions creating boards for the voluntary adjustment of labor disputes, with provisions for collecting damages from carriers or unions violating a wage contract.

Chairman Esch described the bill as a "superstructure built on a plan that had proved well laid," referring to the Interstate Commerce Commission and past commerce acts. Other committeemen also spoke, prolonging the debate well into the evening.

"If this bill is the best solution of the transportation problem that the mind of man can devise," declared Representative Sanders, Louisiana, "then an outraged people will demand Government ownership."

Less than half a score of members joined the applause provoked by his remark, and Representative Merritt, Connecticut, and Representative Sanders, Indiana, Republican committee members, replied that the Louisiana member's criticism was directed against the bill because of its noninterference with the water carriers.

"The bill restricts the rail carriers, but at the same time tells the water lines to go scot free, competing with the steam roads however they please," declared the Indiana member.

Referring to the Plumb plan and Government ownership, Mr. Sanders of Indiana declared that the Railway Brotherhoods' proposal was not "Government ownership," but a proposal to turn over a big industry to the operation and benefit of a few. Mr. Merritt also criticised the Plumb plan, asserting the "only thing democratic about it is that if there is a deficit everybody gets to pay the bill."

Government acquisition of railroad rights-of-way, terminals and all other immovable property of the carriers, with their lease to private corporations was advocated by Mr. Sims, who said private railroad financing had produced an "inverted pyramid" which is constantly increasing.

"Absolute assurance has been given by the Railroad Administration that rates will not be increased during Government control." He also asserted that further losses would not result from Government operation.

Announcement by Representative Webster, Republican, Washington, at the night session, that he would press the House for a vote on anti-strike legislation met with applause, and when the Washington member concluded his address devoted entirely to the labor provisions of the bill, several members left their seats to take his hand.

"What halo is there about this right to strike that makes it beyond the law?" asked Webster, adding that no class of people should be "permitted to have a strangle hold on the whole public."

For Congress to deal with the strike question in a "milk and honey way," Webster declared, would expose it to the charge of "cowardice," while the proposed means for voluntary arbitration outlined in the bill were denounced by him as "cumbersome and expensive machinery that overlooks the fact that public interest is paramount."

OIL MEN GOING TO RUMANIA.

Standard Begins Work of Reconstructing Balkan Fields.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is opening up its holdings in the Rumanian oil fields where many wells were destroyed by the allied forces when they were forced to retreat from that territory. The Germans got some oil from that region, but it was negligible as compared with the potential production. In the last few months the Standard has been sending men to Rumania, and large quantities of supplies have been shipped for reconstruction work.

An official of the company yesterday said it might be possible to reclaim some wells, but in many cases it would be necessary to drill new wells alongside old ones. Some wells were filled with concrete and others with bits of iron. In the latter instance it has been possible to clean the wells. New development work probably will be undertaken in time, but for the present the work consists largely of reclamation, with reconstruction of refineries and pipe lines. The Rumanian production in 1914 averaged more than 50,000 barrels a day.

There have been several reports that the company had purchased German holdings of oil lands in Rumania. Company officials who should be familiar with such a step disclaim knowledge of a purchase.

To a certain extent the German trade of the Standard has been reopened. The company has sent several shipments to Germany, but it is said to be too early to resume German trade on a large scale. Conditions in Central Europe were described as being in such a turmoil that business at present was almost impossible.

LINSEED EARNINGS RISE.

American Company's Report Shows Net Income of $3,855,827.

Directors of the American Linseed Company yesterday declared a 3 per cent. annual dividend on the common stock, payable in installments Dec. 15, March 15, June 15, and Sept. 15. The dividend of 7 per cent. on the preferred stock, payable Jan. 2, April 1, July 1, and Oct. 1, also was declared.

The report for the year ended Sept. 30 showed a net income of $3,855,827, equivalent after preferred dividends, to $16.02 a share on the $16,750,000 outstanding common stock. In the preceding year, the earnings were equivalent [illegible] was $11,023,776, as compared with $4,365,287 in 1916. Expenses of $6,590,334 were nearly $4,500,000 more than in the previous year. The balance sheet showed an inventory of $12,292,524, as compared with $8,856,938 in 1918. Plant was valued at $5,000,000 above the 1918 figures. The profit and loss surplus was $10,530,478.

At the stockholders' meeting John J. Fitzgerald of Boston asked President Adams if the company's money in the past had been used to buy stocks for officials. Mr. Adams denied this had been done.

Attention is called to the following investment qualities of these Joint Stock Land Bank Bonds:

1 Instrumentalities of the United States Government, secured by first farm mortgages approved by the United States Government.

2 The principal and interest of these bonds are exempt from all Federal, State, Municipal and Local taxation except Inheritance Taxes.

3 Legal investment for all Trust and Fiduciary Funds under Federal Jurisdiction.

4 Acceptable as security for Government Deposits, including Postal Savings Deposits.

5 Secured by first farm mortages made under Federal supervision or by U. S. Government Bonds or Certificates.

6 The Attorney General of the United States has rendered an opinion approving the constitutionality of the act and the validity of the provisions exempting these bonds from taxation. We have also secured the opinion of George W. Wickersham, Esq., of Messrs. Cadwalader, Wickersham & Taft, and William G. McAdoo, Esq., of Messrs. McAdoo, Cotton & Franklin, confirming the validity and exemption from taxation of the above bonds.

We have received similar favorable opinions on these bonds from the following well known attorneys:

JOHN HAMPTON BARNES, Philadelphia, Pa.
SQUIRE, SANDERS & DEMPSEY, Cleveland, Ohio.
LANCASTER & SIMPSON, Minneapolis, Minnesota.
LINES, SPOONER & QUARLES, Milwaukee, Wis.

French Exchange

The present generation in America has never had such unusual opportunities to obtain substantial profits as are now afforded by French exchange rates. Based on present prices, a profit ranging from 43% to 129% on an investment in the French Government 4% Loan of 1917 is quite possible.

Send for Circular No. A-604, which gives further information regarding the unusual possibilities afforded by this Loan.

LATE COTTON PRICES SHOW SMALL GAINS

Market Rules Strong for Greater Part of the Day, but Trading Is Quiet.

BREAKS IN FINAL HOUR

End of Coal Miners' Strike, Bad Weather, and Stock Exchange News Offer Varied Influences.

The cotton market had to contend with two decided influences yesterday, one of which could be construed as highly bullish, while the other was just the reverse. On the whole, the action of the market was somewhat in the nature of a compromise, for while a good deal of strength was manifested during most of the day, trading was relatively quiet, and at the close there was a reaction which took away most of the earlier gains.

On the bull side of the news may be mentioned the termination of the coal miners' strike, and the bad weather which prevailed over the greater part of the belt. The labor situation took a sudden and decided turn for the better, and the weather reports over night showed frost in most places and freezing weather in some important parts.

Against this there was the high money rate on the Stock Exchange and the weakness of stocks, and also the foreign exchange market developed greater weakness than it has shown at any time heretofore. These were factors which could be considered nothing but very bearish, yet it was a notable feature of the cotton market yesterday that the Wall Street houses, which had been the big short sellers last week, were the most conspicuous buyers, presumably to cover the short lines put out last week.

However, none of the market interests traded in excessive volume yesterday, and during most of the time the market moved on comparatively small lots. Even on the big swings which occurred trading was light, and while it took relatively little buying to run prices up 60 to 70 points around midday, it took just as little to force the level down again almost as much in the late afternoon.

The opening of the market, responding to the good news and the improvement at Liverpool, was steady, up 5 points for December and 20 to 40 points for the more distant months. After that the rise continued, until December and January were up 70 points, with the others advanced 58 to 65 points. But in the final hour the market broke, until at the close December was advanced on the day only 35 points, January 28, March 20, and the others only nominally changed.

NEW LOW FOR STERLING.

English Pound Sells at $4.11⅞—France and Lire Also Down.

The foreign exchange market yesterday showed greater demoralization than at any time within the last two months. Rates for all the leading exchanges went to new low records.

Demand sterling bills sold at the new low figure of $4.11⅞, which compares with the previous low of $4.12½, made in July, and equalled in August. French francs were down 23 centimes on the day to the new low record of 9.43 francs to the dollar, and Italian exchange went to a new low, 85 centimes under Monday's figure, when they sold at $12.65 lire to the dollar.

Bankers were somewhat at a loss to explain this latest weakness. For some weeks there is said to have been an accumulation of sterling bills by American exporters who had been holding off from marketing their checks in hope of a recovery after the flotation of the United Kingdom $250,000,000 loan. When the market failed to advance, it was supposed, many of these holders became discouraged and began disposing of their bills for whatever they would bring.

It had been reported for several days that both France and Italy were building up balances at London by selling their own bills and buying sterling. Recent advices from London tend to bear out these reports. It is said that both France and Italy are preparing for extensive financing in the London market, and to this end are collecting all the funds they can there.

Wool Firm at London Sale.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The offering at the wool auction sales today amounted to 11,000 bales. Medium and fine grades were firm, but inferior sorts moved irregularly.

Report Gain in Commodity Prices.

Bradstreet's approximate index number which will be published soon will show new signs of strength in commodity prices as of Nov. 1. The figure as compiled for that date was $19.9026, a gain of 1.9 per cent. over Oct. 1, and a decrease of only ⅛ of 1 per cent. for the record high level on Aug. 1, $20.0017.

Paper Manufacturers to Meet.

The American Paper and Pulp Association will begin today a three days' session at the Waldorf. Headquarters were opened at the hotel yesterday for registration. Paper manufacturers from all parts of the country are members of the association, whose headquarters are at 18 East Forty-first Street.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday 11,653 packages. Tone slightly firmer on top grades of fresh creamery and the finest qualities of storage, otherwise there is no quotable change. Home demand only fair. No new export business but shippers are getting out a good deal of stock this week. Ladles are ½c higher and packing stock firm. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 70@70½c; extras, 92 score, 69½c; firsts, 89 to 91 score, 67@68½c; firsts, 86 to 90 score, 61@65c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 55@58½c; lower grades, 53@54c; held, higher than extras, 69½@70c; extras, 65@66c; firsts, 60½@63c; seconds, 56@58c; unsalted, higher than extras, 72½@73½c; extras, 71½@72c; firsts, 66@70c; seconds, 58@61c; State dairy tubs, finest, 68@68½c; good to prime, 63@67c; common to fair, 52@62c; renovated, extras, 57@57½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 50@51c; seconds, 48½@49c; lower grades, 47@48c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 49@49½c; No. 2, 47½c; lower grades, 46@47c.

EGGS.—11,774 cases. New laid eggs are growing scarcer, and any lots showing a good to large proportion of such are wanted beyond the supply, with prices showing further improvement. Seriously defective lots of fresh gathered and Fall laid eggs are dragging, and offerings of such are still large. Storage eggs of high quality are held steady. The movement is only moderate. Medium and lower grades are rather urgently offered, with tone somewhat unsettled. Nearby white eggs are in small supply, and fancy qualities hold firm. Recent arrivals of California whites are working out at sustained prices. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 72@73c; extra firsts, 69@71c; firsts, 66@68c; seconds, 58@62c; undergrades, 45@55c; dirties, No. 1, 50@52c; No. 2 and poorer, 43@49c; checks, good to choice, dry, 42@45c; under grades, 36@41c; refrigerator; special marks, fancy, charges paid, 53@56c; firsts, 51½@52½c; seconds, 41@51c; under grades, 25@46c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western, Jennery whites, fine to fancy, 66@81c; fair to prime, 56@64c; gathered whites, common to prime, 70@96c; Pacific Coast whites, express, fancy, $1; other Western and Southern, gathered whites, 66@90c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Jennery browns, fancy, 76@78c; gathered brown and mixed colors, graded, fancy, 70@73c; fair to prime, 64@71c.

MONEY— an article of Merchandise

BANKERS EVERYWHERE are realizing the basic fact that money is a commodity, the same as any other article of barter. They receive money on deposit and sell its temporary use for a fee.

COMMERCIAL BANKING is preeminently MONEY-MERCHANDISING.

THE NATIONAL PARK BANK realizes that its customers have the same buying and selling problems in money as in merchandise and it has an organization to meet satisfactorily the money requirements of merchants.

Our officers will welcome the opportunity to talk over any foreign or domestic commercial banking matters with you.

The Oil Wells of Russia

Thirty-five years ago William MacGarvey, a Canadian geologist of international repute and adventurous disposition, on a trip through the Balkan mountains, stopped near the ancient town of Borysław to drill a well. His machinery was hand-made; his employees were ignorant natives. One morning after four months of hard work, when he had reached a depth of 500 feet, a tiny stream of oil was found bubbling slowly from the well. Thus began the petroleum industry which in the early part of the twentieth century reached its climax in the construction of the great tanks and refineries at Baku, Russia.

The war entailed the virtual destruction of all the oil fields in Rumania, Northern and Southwestern Russia.

AVERY BOOK SALE GAINS $44,718.50

Afternoon and Evening Sessions Bring Total for Library Thus Far to $96,222.

HIGHEST PRICE IS $4,250

G. D. Smith Gets Rare 15th Century Manuscript of "Hours of the Virgin Mary."

The sale of the library of the late Samuel P. Avery was continued at the Anderson Galleries yesterday. The afternoon session realized $22,879.50 and last evening it fetched $21,839. The total thus far is $96,222.

The highest price of the day was $4,250, paid by George D. Smith for No. 631, a fine fifteenth century manuscript of the "Hours of the Virgin Mary." It is written on 274 pages, with borders in colors and gold on each page, and is further decorated with fifteen large miniatures and hundreds of initials in gold. It is in full red morocco, with the arms of Camille de Neufville de Villeroy, Archbishop of Lyons, in the centre of each cover.

Mr. Smith also gave $3,000 for No. 408, "Physici anatomice" of Alexander Benedict, 1527, from the library of Jean Grolier. It came from the library of the Comte de Sauvage. Theodore Child, who bought the book from Mr. Avery, wrote to him: "Your Grolier will hold its own for purity of design and freshness. It is genuine and untouched."

Other items sold as follows:

No. 463—"Hours of the Virgin Mary," manuscript in Latin, written on 208 pages of vellum, a desirable example of French workmanship of the seventeenth century; on the first leaf are the arms in gold and colors of J. J. Charron, Marquis de Menars; George D. Smith....$[illegible]
No. 464—Another "Hours," printed on vellum in 1497, by Thielman Kerver, for Guillaume Eustace, the Firmin Didot copy with book plate; George D. Smith....$810
No. 465—Another "Hours," printed at Paris in 1498, by Philippe Pigouchet, for Simon Vostre, an unusual edition, not in Hain-Copinger, nor was it in the collection of printed "Hours" in the library of Robert Hoe; George D. Smith..........$1,125
No. 467—Another "Hours," printed at Paris in 1525 by Thielman Kerver, in binding by Masson-Debonnelle; no copy of it in the libraries of Robert Hoe and Henry Huth; James F. Drake..........$860
No. 468—Another "Hours," printed at Paris in 1544 by Thielman Kerver, in binding by Nicolas Eve, executed probably for Marie Marguerite de Valois de Saint Remy; James F. Drake..........$400
No. 478—"The Works of Horace," London, 1849, bound for Mr. Avery by Canape-Belz and tooled by Dumont; J. A. Thompson $500
No. 485—"Les Orientales," by Victor Hugo, Paris, 1882, in binding by July, original vellum covers bound in, with proof portrait of Hugo, portraits and note by Gerome, pencil drawing and note by Benjamin Constant; George D. Smith.......$440
No. 486—Washington Irving's "History of New York," London, 1821, bound for the author by Charles Murton, presentation copy, "Mrs. Thomas Moore from her sincere friend, Washington Irving, London, July 17, 1824"; presentation copies from Irving are rare; George D. Smith.....$550
No. 501—"Reliures," by Jules F. Jacquemont, Paris, 1861, with inlaid binding by C. Meunier, with a reproduction of the picture painted for Mr. Avery by Francois Fleming of "Grolier visiting the office of Aldus Manutius at Venice," presented to the Grolier Club by him in 1860; E. G. Kennedy..........$850
No. 513—"Authenticai," by Justinian, printed by Peter Schoiffer at Mogentia in 1477, first edition, no copy in the Hoe and Huth libraries; Walter M. Hill..........$1,150
No. 514—"Endymion," by John Keats, London, 1818, first issue of the scarce first edition, with the single line of "Erratum"; J. A. Thompson..........$620
No. 526—"Choix de Chansons," by Jean B. de La Borde, Paris, 1773. Contains the portrait of La Borde, "a la lyre," often wanting; George D. Smith..........$2,600
No. 612—"Eloges et Discours" of Louis XIII., Paris, 1629, in binding by Marius Michel; George D. Smith..........$800
No. 632—"Constitutiones," by William Lyndewode, Bishop of Saint David's, printed in London in 1517, by Wynkyn de Worde; George D. Smith..........$1,125
No. 645—"Tractatus Racionis," by Mattheus de Cracovia, printed by Gutenberg with the same type used by him in the 1460 "Catholicon," and bound by Roger Payne, with one of Payne's characteristic bills laid in; George D. Smith.......$1,625
No. 662—John Milton's "Poems," London, 1645, rare first edition; George D. Smith..........$750
No. 783—"Oeuvres" of Francis Rabelais, Paris, 1553, first collected edition; George D. Smith..........$560
No. 809—"Italy" and "Poems," by Samuel Rogers, London, 1830-34, first editions; J. A. Thompson..........$400

The sale will be concluded this afternoon.

LONG GERMAN STRIKE BROUGHT TO AN END

Metal Workers' Committee Orders Men Back After Seven Weeks' Idleness.

BERLIN, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—The metal workers' strike, which had entered upon its eighth week, was virtually called off last night, when the committee of fifteen directing it ordered the strikers to report to headquarters and proceed to make necessary arrangements for the immediate resumption of work.

The seven weeks' holiday cost a big sum lost in wages and also drained the strike treasury, to which sympathizers in other branches gradually refused to contribute further, as a real political movement began to loom up in the background. That the strikers were seriously embarrassed financially in consequence of their loss in wages is indicated by the fact that the workers failed to report at the official coal depots for fuel rations, chiefly because they were unable to pay for the coal allotted to them by the city.

The big industrial plants also were heavy losers, although it is admitted that coal shortage in the last few weeks would probably have forced them to shut down temporarily. While they are behind with their orders, they say that the seven weeks' cessation of work has enabled them to stock up with coal and raw materials sufficient to permit them to enter upon a busy era.

FRENCH SEE NO WRONG IN DEMANDING COWS

Germany Having Taken 500,000 from Them They Think They Should Have 80,000 Back.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—People here are regarding with amazement the sympathetic consideration given by Lord Parmoor and the British committee to the German plea that the enemy be not compelled to restore any of the cows stolen from France during the war because of the suffering that would be caused to German babies. The French argue that as the war was the direct result of the unprovoked attack on the peaceful neighbors by the fathers of these German babies the first call on the cows belongs to the French babies who are dying today because the Germans rendered it impossible for them to get milk.

The Ministry of Agriculture informed me today that during the war Germans carried off over a million horned cattle from the occupied districts of France. Of these 522,000 were milking cows. The Peace Conference imposed on the Germans the obligation of handing back 80,000, or less than one for every eighteen they stole from France.

"The German plea," said an indignant Frenchman to me today, typical of the middle class refugee from St. Quentin, who has lost every cent he owned, "is as impudent as it is hypocritical. The Americans do not even yet realize the terrible conditions in North France as a result of the war. The vast majority of our children, in spite of the magnificent work the American Committee is doing, do not taste fresh milk once a week. Here and there one finds a milch cow that has been sent to us from America or England, but the principal sustenance of the thousands of children is condensed milk. Even that is by no means always obtainable. Thousands of prisoners, too, who have come back from the horrors of German prisons, nothing but skin and bones, have died through want of milk and other nourishing foods which are indispensable to them to regain their strength. Occasionally it is possible to buy a chicken, but never under between $4 or $5.

"In both America and England, I am afraid, you have heard so much about our ruined houses you have got tired of them. I believe the actual physical misery of our people in regard to food, clothing, and shelter, especially now that bad weather has came, is far worse than is generally realized by the happy people of uninvaded America. The fact that there can be a single person in England to lend an ear to the plea that it is their duty to preserve the lives of the children of our enemies at the expense of French children seems incredible. The Peace Treaty calls for only 80,000, anyway, and they stole over half a million of our cows. Some of these stolen cows were used to feed the German troops but the greater proportion was carried into Germany and now forms a part of the national supply of cattle. The Germans not only deprived us of immediate milk and butter but ruined our breeding stocks. They had, moreover, the benefit of calves bred from our cows during the past five years.

"The fact that German babies may be deprived of milk if these cattle are restored to France is, even from a humanitarian point of view, a matter of entirely secondary importance in view of the much more heartbreaking fact that French babies are dying today for want of the very milk the Germans are getting. Remember that these pitiful babies are all we have to look to to replace so far as possible the million and a half men, the flower of our race, who were killed in the war. Lord Parmoor and his committee seem to think Germany, not France, is their ally. If the German babies want milk that is the fault of their fathers. Ours have indisputable prior claims."

France Reopens Trade with Hungary

BASLE, Nov. 11.—General Graziani, the French representative on the Inter-Allied Military Commission to Budapest, has informed the Hungarian Government that the French Government has declared the reopening of free commerce between France and Hungary, according to a Budapest dispatch to the Frankfurter Zeitung.

French Tax Yield Increases.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—The tax yield for October shows an increase of 204,860,000 francs over the budget estimates and an increase of 284,166,500 as compared with the receipts of October, 1918.

PROPOSALS.

STATE OF NEW YORK.
OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.
Albany, October 27th, 1919.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS:
Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned at his office in the Capitol at Albany, N. Y., until twelve o'clock noon of Tuesday, November 25th, 1919, at which place and hour they will be publicly opened and read, for improving the New York State canals pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 147 of the Laws of 1903, and of the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, and Chapter 570 of the Laws of 1915, as follows:

1.
Erie Canal—Section 9.
For completing prism excavation between Fairport and King's Bend.
Sheets 1 to 3, inclusive.

Erie Canal—Section 9.
For completing the excavation of the canal channel in the Genesee river from the north end of Contract No. 191, near Elmwood avenue, to the Erie railroad crossing.
Sheets 1 to 5, inclusive.

And for the construction of Barge canal terminals, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 746 of the Laws of 1911, and of the acts amendatory thereof, as follows:

For constructing an extension to the existing dockwall and a frame freight house at Cohoes.
Contract Plans Sheets 1 to 7.

TERMINAL CONTRACT NO. 45.
For constructing a Barge canal terminal at Hallets Cove, Borough of Queens, New York City.
Contract Plans Sheets 1 to 8.

5.
TERMINAL CONTRACT NO. 116 (Revised).
For furnishing and installing four three-ton electric semi-portal revolving jib cranes on Barge canal terminals, two each at Greenpoint and West 53rd St., New York City.
Contract Plans Sheets 1 and 2.

TERMINAL CONTRACT NO. 225.
For constructing a headhouse and installing a water main and electrical work on Pier 93, West 53rd St., New York City.
Contract Plans Sheets 1 to 25, inclusive.

Plans may be seen and detailed specifications, engineer's estimates of quantities, proposal blanks, form of contract and bonds required and other information for proposers may be had at the office of the Superintendent of Public Works at Albany, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Middle Division at Syracuse, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Western Division at Rochester, N. Y., at the canal office, Spaulding's Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y., and at the office of the State Engineer and Surveyor, Hall of Records, New York City.

Copies of detailed plans or drawings may be obtained from the State Engineer and Surveyor at Albany, N. Y., upon payment to him of the cost of producing them.

Monthly estimates will be paid of ninety per centum (90 per cent) of the work done at the contract price. Every proposal for said work must be accompanied by a money deposit in the form of a draft or certified check upon some good banking institution in the city of Albany or New York, issued by a national or state bank, (or trust company in the case of terminal contract) in good credit within the state and payable at sight to the Superintendent of Public Works for five per centum (5 per cent.) of the amount of the proposal.

The person whose proposal shall be accepted will be required to execute a contract and furnish bonds within ten days from the date of notice of award delivered to him or them in person or mailed to the address given in the proposal.

Upon execution of the contract and approval of bonds, the certified check or draft will be returned to the proposer unless the same shall have been presented for collection prior to such time, in which case the amount of the deposit will be refunded by the Superintendent of Public Works.

The deposits of bidders other than the one to whom the award of contract shall be made will be returned immediately after the award has been made.

The bond required for the faithful performance of each contract shall be in such sum as shall be fixed by the Superintendent of Public Works, which sum shall not be less than twenty per centum (20 per cent) of the estimated cost of the work, according to the contract price, and an additional bond, known as the labor bond, in the sum of ten per centum (10 per cent) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, will be required as security that the contractor will pay in full at least once in each month all laborers employed by him upon the work specified to be done in the contract.

In the event that more than one surety company is offered as surety on said bonds co-insurance only will be accepted.

Each proposal must be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Works, Albany, N. Y., and must be endorsed on the envelope with the name of the construction for which the proposal is made.

Award, if made, will be made to the person or persons whose proposal shall be lowest in cost to the state for doing the work, and which shall comply with all provisions required to render it formal. Before any award shall be made the lowest bidder will be required to satisfy the Superintendent of Public Works of his ability to provide suitable equipment and materials for the proper performance of the work.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and readvertise and award the contract in the regular manner if, in the judgment of the undersigned, the interests of the state will be enhanced thereby.
EDWARD S. WALSH,
Superintendent of Public Works.

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, Washington, D. C., Nov. 4, 1919.—SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at this office until 2 o'clock P. M., Nov. 24, 1919, and then opened, for the purchase of grease recovered from garbage, collected by the Commissioners, D. C., from Dec. 1, 1919, to and including Feb. 29, 1920. Blank forms of Proposals, Specifications, together with necessary information, may be obtained from the Chief Clerk of the Engineer Department, Room 427, District Building. Louis Brownlow, W. Gwynn Gardiner, C. W. Kutz, Commissioners, D. C.

OFFICE OF THE QUARTERMASTER General, Clothing and Equipage Division, Munitions Building, Washington, D. C.—Sealed proposals in duplicate will be received here until 2 P. M., November 20th, 1919, for furnishing all or any part of 1445 pounds Olive Drab Cotton Thread. Bid must be accompanied by guaranty of ten per cent thereof. Proposal blanks and information sent on request.

REFUSE TOLEDO APPEAL TO LET CARS COME IN Company Officials Won't Yield Even in the Case of Interurban Lines.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Nov. 11.—The controversy between the City of Toledo and the Toledo Railways and Light Company as a result of the latter's removing all its cars from the streets promises to become a long-drawn-out struggle.

President Frank R. Coates of the company declared today that the next move was up to the city, and Mayor Cornell Schreiber and members of his Cabinet are non-committal as to what the next move will be.

All this time the citizens are either walking or paying increased fare for automobiles to get to and from places of business. Twenty-two bus lines are now in operation. Retail trade is reported unusually dull.

President Coates was requested today by Mayor Schreiber to permit the interurban cars to operate inside the city, but he quickly refused, declaring the company could not waive its position under the ouster ordinance.

Manufacturers reported attendance of employes greatly improved over the day before. They declare, however, that the loss in production will be great. The railway officials declared today that the withdrawal of the street cars was costing them about $7,800 daily in loss of fares.

The motormen, conductors, and other employes of the company thrown out of employment number about 1,400. These men are members of the street car men's union. A mass meeting will be held tomorrow afternoon at which W. P. Fitzgerald of Pittsburgh, Vice President of the national organization, will address the men. The electricians and line men still are at work.

The company's cars, which are stored at various points over in Michigan, are being closely guarded.

Settles Suit with Mrs. Donald Brian.

Charles H. Pope, a cotton broker, settled yesterday in the Supreme Court a suit by his divorced wife, Mrs. Florence Meagher Brian, wife of Donald Brian, to recover sums due under an agreement to pay off a mortgage on property in Connecticut, which went to Mrs. Brian under the terms of her divorce settlement. On the application of Mrs. Brian's attorney, Justice Hagerich discontinued the suit.

GOLD FUND FOR PARAGUAY.

Exchange to be Stabilized by Reserve Held in New York.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Nov. 11.—For the purpose of stabilizing exchange with Paraguay, a convention by which Paraguay will establish a gold fund has been signed by the Paraguayan Foreign Minister and Daniel F. Mooney, the United States Minister, acting for the International High Commission which was created some time ago to obtain uniformity of exchange between the Americas.

It is understood that the gold fund will be accumulated from Paraguayan revenues and sequestered in New York. The convention is regarded as a long step toward establishing the finances of Paraguay on a firm basis.

Selling at London Wool Sale Firm.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—At the wool auction sales today 10,460 bales were offered. There was increasing activity on the part of Continental buyers. Prices were firmer. Merinos and fine crossbreds were 15 per cent. and medium coarse crossbreds from 10 to 20 per cent. dearer. American buyers were fairly active.

CAPITAL AND LABOR
SOLVED BY PERSONAL MANAGEMENT

The greatest difficulty of industry is the relation of capital and labor. The growth of great corporations has set up barriers between the employer and employee. The problem has become national and investors hesitate.

We suggest that safety lies in the small industrials. The owners are in daily touch with employes, understand their needs and anticipate their demands.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Yesterday's session on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was a "red letter" day for the "bear" element, losses of from 5 to 18 points being netted in numerous of the active industrials, all of which were under pressure throughout the day, the ensuing carnival of selling being based on forecasts of a recurrence of an abnormally high money rate, which were verified by a marking up to 25 per cent. before the close.

SENATE ASKS FACTS OF JENKINS CASE

King Resolution Calling on State Department for Information Unanimously Adopted.

INQUIRY TO BE RESUMED

Payment of Ransom and Indemnity for Consular Agent Among the Demands of Senator King.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The resolution introduced in the Senate last week by Senator King of Utah, calling upon the Secretary of State to give to the Senate all information in the possession of the Government relative to the case of William O. Jenkins, the American consular agent who was kidnapped recently by Mexicans, as well as to report to the Senate what degree of protection for official representatives as well as other citizens of the United States has been demanded of Mexico, was unanimously reported out by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations this morning and subsequently unanimously adopted by the Senate.

The Senate is now ready to resume its investigation of the entire Mexican situation and Senator Fall, the Chairman of the sub-committee of the Committee on Foreign Relations which is making the investigation, said today that the taking of testimony would be resumed in the near future.

"We are becoming habituated," said Senator King in a statement issued today, "to the mistreatment of Americans in Mexico. There seems to be no protection afforded American citizens and their lives and their property are constantly in jeopardy. Scores of Americans have been killed by Mexicans and property to the extent of tens of millions of dollars has been either taken or destroyed. The Mexican government does not seem to appreciate its duties under international law, or to appreciate its obligations under existing treaties between it and the United States.

"No one desires intervention in Mexico. The American people desire the most friendly and cordial relations with the Mexican people, but the time has come when Mexico must understand that she must discharge her international obligations. Americans must no longer be murdered, and robbed and plundered by Mexican officials, and soldiers, and by the Mexican people. It is an affront to our nation when those representing the Government, such as Mr. Jenkins, can be seized and compelled to pay ransom to secure freedom.

"The Mexican Government should have afforded Mr. Jenkins full protection, and when that protection was not afforded him and he was made a prisoner, every effort should have been made by the Mexican Government to effect his release. Civilized nations must afford protection to the consular and diplomatic representatives of other nations who are within their borders. They have not discharged their duty by affording such foreign representatives the same precarious protection provided their own nationals. International law requires, if need be, special protection.

"It is to be hoped that the State Department will make proper representations to the Mexican Government to the end that in the future there shall be the proper protection afforded the representatives of our Government, and, in addition, that it will require that Mexico repay our consular agent not only the money which he was compelled to pay for his liberation, but recompense him for the indignities and wrongs to which he was subjected."

OPEN PITTSBURGH LIFE CASE

Former President Testifies About Offers by Clarence F. Birdseye.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 11.—W. H. Nimick, the Pittsburgh banker, who was President of the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company when the control of the company was acquired by Clarence F. Birdseye and his associates in March, 1917, was the first witness called by the commonwealth at the trial today of Birdseye, his son, Kellog Birdseye, and George Montgomery, who are indicted on a charge of conspiring to wreck the company and of causing losses reaching into millions to stockholders and policyholders.

Robert M. Gibson, First Assistant District Attorney, asserted it would be proved that the Dare Lumber Company was purchased with $1,000,000 of the funds of the Pittsburgh Life and Trust Company and was afterward used by the defendants in their manipulations to raid the treasury of the local insurance company.

Mr. Nimick testified that Clarence F. Birdseye on Feb. 17, 1917, told him that his (Birdseye's,) purpose was to purchase the control of the company and that he represented Fred K. Wallis of New York City and of others whose names he would not divulge. An offer of $75 a share was made for the stock, but Mr. Nimick told him there was no chance of a sale unless $80 a share was paid and an agreement made to purchase all the stock offered at this figure so that minority stockholders would be protected.

BEGIN STAMP FRAUD RAIDS.

Six Brokers' Offices in Chicago Searched—One Man Held.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—The first step on the part of the Government to break up what is believed to be a nation-wide ring of brokers who have been frequently altering War Savings Stamp certificates, was taken today when United States Secret Service men, under the direction of Captain Thomas I. Porter, raided the offices of six brokers. Among the offices raided were those of Martens & Co., United States Bond Company, Welden Webster, X. W. Kemps, Carl White, and J. S. Lowitz.

In each office visited the Government agents confiscated large amounts of War Savings Stamps. In one office it was said $52,000 worth of the stamps were seized.

Welden Webster was the only broker arrested, and he was held in bonds of $5,000.

Captain Porter explained that the brokers purchased the War Savings Stamps from persons who were unable to wait the required ten days to obtain the currency, and then erased the names and identification numbers from the cards.

MUSIC

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

Hutcheson Plays Three Concertos.

Whether or not he has ever had any predecessors in carrying out the idea, Ernest Hutcheson's enterprise in giving a concert in which only three piano concertos of Beethoven should be played is sufficiently original to deserve to remain unique. The possibilities of a wide adoption of such a scheme in other forms, whether concerned with Beethoven or anybody else, are calculated to cause dismay. A large audience, apparently composed largely of students, found, however, in Mr. Hutcheson's concert enjoyment and edification yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. Mr. Hutcheson played the third, fourth, and fifth concertos—those in C minor, G, and E flat, respectively, with the accompaniment of the New York Symphony Orchestra conducted in the first two by Mr. Willeke, in the last by Mr. Damrosch.

Objectors to Mr. Hutcheson's undertaking might maintain that the C minor concerto was unnecessary and could have been left out without serious loss. It is in these days largely relegated to the use of conservatory pupils, as the first, in C major, is to the use of infant prodigies, when they are of sufficient calibre to play with an orchestra, as Josef Hofmann, who played it in his prodigy days. What the second, in D, is useful for is hard to say. Has it ever been publicly performed in New York? If so, the record is shrouded in obscurity.

It is to be said, however, that the C minor concerto played by Mr. Hutcheson yesterday, has appeared on artistic programs here in the not very distant past. Perhaps he thought to contribute something to its rescue from the rising mists of oblivion and from the conservatorists. If so, his performance was well calculated toward this end. It was vigorous, sincere, abounding at the same time in poetical qualities, and making no effort to lift the work which shows the earlier, the formative influences, especially in the first and last movements, more than some others belonging to this period of the master's artistic development, to a higher plane than that on which it rightfully belongs. It kept throughout to the scale of the work, yet exhibiting its qualities such as they rightfully are. These reach their highest in the largo, in which Beethoven has already put much of the exalted singing style of his slow movements, and in which there is a phrase curiously foreshadowing the opening phrase of the air "Salut, demeure chaste et pure," from Gounod's "Faust."

The G major concerto really needs some rescue work such as Mr. Hutcheson gave it yesterday afternoon. Pianists have gradually been neglecting it in recent years in favor of its bigger and more brilliant brother, the one in E flat; but what a mistake and what a pity to do so! It may be called a lesser work in the breadth of its ideas and the elaboration of them, but Beethoven wrote few things more profoundly poetical, more spiritually significant, than the andante of this concerto, the triumph of the forces of light over those of darkness, of peace over unrest and doubt; few things more captivating than the exquisite filigree of the first movement, or more rhythmically engrossing than the final rondo.

In this Mr. Hutcheson showed a true discernment of the peculiar beauty of the music, the peculiar qualities that give it its charm. He gave them expression in his playing, which touched the poetical contents of the work. His performance of the E flat concerto had the greater breadth and vigor than the work calls for, yet it was contained and restrained within its due limits.

Mr. Hutcheson used in the C minor and G major concertos cadenzas by Reinecke not unfitting to the style of Beethoven's music. He was enthusiastically applauded.

The Philadelphia Orchestra.

The Philadelphia Orchestra which is fighting hard for its life, or for its existence unimpaired by the necessity of making a reduction in its personnel, gave the first of its series of New York concerts last evening in Carnegie Hall. The quality of its performance showed beyond a doubt the seriousness of the loss which threatens Philadelphia unless the necessary endowment fund is raised; a loss which threatens also New York; for the five annual concerts of these visitors have already taken an important place in the musical life of this city.

The orchestra has reached a very high degree of excellence. Its tone is of the finest, in richness, purity and balance of the several choirs; its playing discloses finish, precision, delicacy and power. Mr. Stokowski has developed into a conductor of authority, of imagination and ripe discernment, sure of his classics, sympathetic with his moderns; in both communicative to his men of a buoyant enthusiasm. How thoroughly these qualities have been recognized by New York music lovers and how highly prized, was shown last evening by the large numbers of the audience and the sincerity of its enthusiasm. The Philadelphia orchestra is in fact a musical asset to be highly prized by any community; its loss or a deterioration of its quality would be a disaster.

Those admirable qualities of player and conductor were shown in the playing last night of a program which began with Weber's "Freischütz" overture, found its culmination in Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, introduced a composition new to New York in Dvorsky's symphonic poem "The Haunted Castle" and closed with perhaps unnecessary noise and vulgarity in Wagner's "Rienzi" overture.

The performance of the "Freischütz" overture and the symphony was of great beauty; in rhythm, in phrasing, in the instinctive feeling for symmetry, and the admeasurement of the larger proportions it afforded an unalloyed pleasure.

"The Haunted Castle" by Dvorsky was played by the Philadelphia Orchestra last season for the first time, being one of the latest compositions of this talented young composer, only 20 years old, of whom an affecting account is given again and most recently by the orchestra management. Very little, it is truthfully said, is known of him in this country; and it is afflicting to learn that Dvorsky is still obliged to live at San Sebastian, where he has been reported for several years, on account of "a constitution not overstrong." Can nothing be done to strengthen it?

There were no signs of debility in "The Haunted Castle," which is written with a superb command of modern orchestral resources and the clear expression of a mood. No explanation of the "program" of the piece was given, and none was in truth needed. After the glowing and tranquil introductory section, the idea is conveyed of supernatural possession, of nameless but violent horrors. The same expression has been more subtly conveyed, but perhaps not more forcibly nor with a wider and more ingenious range of orchestral effects. Few are neglected in this piece. The result is correspondingly impressive.

"MAGIC MELODY" TUNEFUL.

New Piece at the Shubert Displays Voices and Vim.

THE MAGIC MELODY. A Play with Music, in a Prologue and Two Acts. Book and Lyrics by Frederick Arnold Kummer. Music by Sigmund Romberg. At the Shubert Theatre.

PRINCIPALS—Charles Purcell, Robert Bentley, Aileen Poe, Tom McNaughton, Fay Marbe, Marie McConnell, Earl Benham, Flavia Arcaro, Carmel Myers, Renee Delting, Emile De Varny, Julia Dean, Lois Leigh, Bertee Beaumonte, Legotie Hoover, Marion Dixon, Claire Horgson, Jeanette Kahn, Adele Freeman, Walter Armin, Gus Stevenson, Louis Morrell, Master Billy Roth, Jean Reborn.

More than the usual show-supply of good music, several excellent voices to match it, a variety of charming and eccentric dances, nonobtrusive comedy that is not infrequently amusing, elaborate settings and gorgeous costumes, all thrown together into a story that holds together most of the time—that is "The Magic Melody," which opened at the Shubert Theatre last night. The production is described on the program as "a romantic musical play," but there is too much of the revue in it for it to be a play, and yet there is too much of the dramatic in it for it to be a revue.

Charles Purcell heads the cast, and his pleasing personality and voice are its chief asset. But by no means the only one. Julia Dean supplies dramatic fibre to the story, and specialty dancing by Fay Marbe, Lois Leigh, and Bertee Beaumonte enlivens the periods between plot. Tom McNaughton is an orthodox comedy Englishman, with a little more wit and humor and peculiar grace in his performance than is usually brought out from the stock part. Earl Benham is another one put in to score laughs, and his average last night, while below McNaughton's by some degrees, was pretty good. Renee Delting, chiefly, but not altogether, because of her singing, would be missed from the cast, as would also Carmel Myers and several others.

Undoubtedly several of the songs in the play will be heard many times. The popularity of "Once Upon a Time" and "Dream Girl, Give Me Back My Dream," both sung by Purcell and Miss Delting; of "Love Makes the World Go Round," sung by Purcell, and of "We Take It, Just Take It From You," sung by Miss Marbe, would seem assured. The most ambitious musical effort of the piece is Purcell's "Giannina." It was received with a genuine demonstration of appreciation last night.

The story begins in a prologue in Sicily, and ends in Paris, so one may gather that it has a continental flavor, which, apparently, the producers sought to strengthen by having Sicilians in their native land speak broken English. The flavor is there, however, even if it is a musical comedy flavor, and with the prologue ending with a violent vendetta, and the second act with vengeance giving way to love, there is opportunity for the story at times to actually make one forget the specialities.

SUE ON WAR CONTRACT.

$2,188,830 Commission Claimed in Sale of Caterpillar Tractors.

A suit for $2,188,830 alleged to be due for the sale of caterpillar tractors to the Allies in Europe was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Jules Schnerb and Joseph Wegimont of Antwerp, Belgium, against the Holt Manufacturing Company, for which, it is alleged, the plaintiffs were appointed agents in Western Europe.

It is asserted that as the result of a demonstration in Belgium in 1914, Col. Swinton, of the British Imperial Defence Committee, first conceived the idea of using the caterpillar principle in constructing tanks. The plaintiffs say the French Creusot Works later bought the machines, and through their efforts more than $40,000,000 of the tractors were sold, on which they are entitled to 5 per cent. commission.

Women's Socks to be Scarce.

While there promise to be no excess stocks of high-grade silk hose for some time, it was said here yesterday that the coming Spring and Summer would see an especially marked shortage of women's socks. The steadily increasing consumer demand for these goods in the last two or three seasons, and the active business that was reported this Summer by stores which made a specialty of them, has led many buyers to regard them more favorably for next year than has heretofore been the case. From the manufacturer's point of view, however, they are a bit dangerous to handle, in that making them in quantity means turning over machines that ordinarily are used for producing men's goods. This, it is contended, means jeopardizing business in the latter for something that may prove only a passing fad. The women's socks most wanted are the kind that will retail around $2.75 to $3 a pair.

French Hospital Cuts Nurses' Hours.

The French Hospital announced yesterday that hereafter its twelve-hour day for nurses in training, will be replaced by an eight-hour day to conform to the practice generally in vogue in other hospitals.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The estate of Herman Hackman has sold to the Guinan Company of 17 South Street, the six-story corner building at 20 South Street, northwest corner of Cuylers Alley and South Street. The property has a frontage of 31 feet on South Street, runs back a depth of 102 feet, taking in one-half of the block. In 1786 it was purchased by John Jacob as part of a plot of twenty-two lots for £312, or $3,900.

It was again sold in 1810 for $6,000 to a Mr. Stuyvesant, who resold it in 1827 for $10,000 to Mr. Watson. In 1840 Watson sold it to Reynolds, who paid $15,000 for the lot, and built the present building and sold it for $30,000, which shows the gradual increase in property in this section.

The present purchaser intends to alter the property into a modern office building, using part for his own occupancy, and the cost of the property, including alterations, will involve over $100,000. The Guinan Company has been located for the past twenty years at 17 South Street, which property has recently been purchased by the Broad Street Hospital, which has acquired the entire block for the erection of a new fourteen-story building. Pease & Elliman negotiated the transaction.

Elias A. Cohen Buys Ann Street Corner.

The Broadway-John Street Corporation, Elias A. Cohen, President, has increased its holdings in the downtown business section by the purchase of 152-154 William Street, the southeast corner of Ann, a four-story office building covering plot of 40 feet on William Street and 50 feet on Ann Street. The Charles F. Noyes Company negotiated the sale.

Through the same brokers Mr. Cohen has leased the three upper floors of the property for a term of years to McKesson & Robbins, who will occupy the premises just leased exclusively for office purposes, retaining, however, all of their present space in 91-97 Fulton Street through to 74-84 Ann Street, a six-story building on plot of 12,000 square feet. McKesson & Robins occupy at this point nearly 100,000 square feet of space. Mr. Cohen has been the most active of all buyers of William Street property, having purchased 118 William Street, the Lehn & Fink property at 120 William Street, and 79 John Street, which he resold to the Employers' Liability Assurance Company, Dwight & Hillis; 136 William Street, 138 William Street, and he is now erecting an office building at 120-122 William Street, the ground floor of which has been rented to Darby, Hooper & McDaniel for underwriting purposes. His operations on William Street, between John and Fulton, have exceded $2,000,000 in the aggregate.

Monroe House Sale Today.

Some lively bidding is looked for today in the Vesey Street Salesroom when Bryan L. Kennelly will offer at public auction the one-time home of President Monroe, of Monroe Doctrine fame, located at 63 Prince Street, northwest corner of Lafayette Street. The sale has created unusual interest among patriotic societies, who desire to conserve this landmark of old New York, and several would save it from falling into the hands of those who would put it to commercial uses.

It is expected that the societies will be able to raise a fund sufficient to cover the cost of acquiring this property, which is part of the block front on the north side of Prince Street, between Lafayette and Crosby Streets, consisting of a group of loft buildings.

Ziegler Sale a Success, Selling for a Total of $400,506.

The disposal of the realty holdings of the Ziegler estate at public auction by Bryan L. Kennelly was brought to a close yesterday after three days' continuous selling in the Vesey Street Salesroom. Scattered in Brooklyn, Babylon, and Flushing, Long Island; Tottenville, Staten Island, and Linden and Elizabeth, N. J., the 335 lots and 16 houses brought a total of $400,506.

The sale was one of the largest and most successful ever held in the salesroom. Many bargains were obtained by both small investors and home-seekers, and the prices obtained were highly satisfactory to all parties concerned.

At yesterday's session, which closed the sale, 201 lots were sold in Tottenville, Staten Island. Lots on Academy Street, opposite the schoolhouse brought $230 each, while those on Brighton Street went for $150 each. The last two lots of the sale, 25 by 102, on Garretson Avenue, opposite the school, were sold to an investor for $350 each.

Many of the buyers have already declared their intention of taking advantage of the offer by the Ziegler estate to furnish reasonable building loans, so that active construction work is expected at an early date on the property just sold.

Murray Hill Business Invasion Continues.

Murray Hill has again been invaded by business in the lease for a long term at an annual rental of $13,000 of the home of Forsyth Wickes, at the northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street, known as 200 Madison Avenue. Douglas L. Elliman & Co. arranged the transaction.

SALESMEN.—Division managers. What is destined to be one of the greatest managerial organizations in America offers you an opportunity to enter its ranks. The Liberty Starters Corporation, entering the airplane and automobile industries, is building an international selling organization, 50 division managers are needed to build a domestic force, and about 5 foreign representatives to handle the overseas markets. The plan is unique in every way. The problem of the day is a man problem; men who can do may be found at any time; men who will do seldom. We want no man working for us, we want men working with us. So, with the central idea of developing a real managerial staff, a few weeks ago we started our training course, along with our financial campaign, and the results so far have been astounding. Our managers are making big commissions in the sale of our securities, and taking their training in the merchandising of our product at the same time; so, as you can see, our staff is making this business possible—it is their business. It is interesting to note that last Saturday we issued 25 weekly commission checks, the average amount of which was $283.95. Come around to 620 tomorrow and see for yourself the results we have obtained, and the opportunity we offer you. It will take but a few moments of your time, and it may mean a revolution of your future. Duff, G. Maynard, President, 620 5th Av. Entire 4th floor.

PERSONS WHO CAN ANALYZE AND LEARN HOW TO SAMPLE
audits, budgets, cost analyses, "balance of income," income tax reports, &c.
If you have an aptitude for figures and a level head, you need not remain long at a high, small desk. We can put you in line for and help you to secure within a year's time a position paying

$3,000 TO $6,000 A YEAR.

If you have ability apply it. The world needs it. America is calling for trained men—PARTICULARLY for trained accountants.

The accountancy field is steadily enlarging as more attention is being given by city, State, and Federal boards, by banks and trust companies, and by business corporations and auditing procedure of varied and complicated kinds and to income tax regulations and reports for hundreds of thousands of individuals and firms.

YOUR TEACHERS AND LEADERS.

You can study during your spare time at home (about an hour a day), without interfering with your present position. Your training will be by the famous "La Salle Problem Method," which has made more expert accountants and C. P. A.'s than any other plan. You will be under the direction of William B. Castenholz, the best-known accountancy teacher in America, and a large staff of expert accountants, including several members of the American Institute of Accountants. And when you are qualified you will be connected with big business.

ACCOUNTING
COST—C. P. A.—EXECUTIVE.
The United States Government has raised the Civil Service salary limit and is now holding continuous examinations for Expert Accounting positions paying $2,400 to $6,000 per year.
With many new plants and industries locating in this section, the demand will be greater than ever, and men and women who can qualify will have no difficulty in obtaining permanent positions at the very highest salaries.
A NATIONALLY KNOWN institution of Certified Public Accountants, the oldest institution of its kind in the country, with branches in the leading cities, has a department that is devoted exclusively to the training of men and women for executive accounting positions and the C. P. A. degree.
OUR HOME STUDY method is the most thorough and practical training that is possible to obtain, except through some of the largest resident universities. It is years ahead of any other HOME STUDY institution, both in scope and methods. Here are a few of its distinctive points:
NO TEXT BOOKS ARE USED. Every lesson is a separate, complete unit in loose-leaf form.
EVERY MEMBER of our faculty is (a) a Certified Public Accountant, (b) actively engaged in the practice of his profession, (c) with extensive and successful experience in the teaching of Accountancy.
Among our graduates and students we number more Certified Public Accountants than all similar institutions combined. We have trained hundreds now holding big-paying positions with the Government and the industries.
New and original teaching methods are employed, insuring a rapidity of progress almost beyond belief.
The method has been especially designed to appeal to the person who has lost the study habit as well as to the busy person whose time is limited.
If you do not train yourself for a better position you will seldom advance beyond a living wage. If you are earning less than $50 to $100 a week we can assist you. Write or phone for office appointment.

HOTELS NEED TRAINED MEN.
Big demand. We train you by mail for high-salaried hotel position; no previous experience necessary; get 20 years' hotel experience in few months; many graduates now making $2,500 to $5,000 and more a year. Dozens now own their own hotels and are making money hand over fist. You can do the same!
Big pay; quick advancement; easy hours; fine living; fascinating work; free meals and apartment. These are only a few of the advantages of this profitable business. With our training you can easily step into any of the big-paying jobs now open. We GUARANTEE to teach you all that the leading hotel experts know about the business—men making from $10,000 to $100,000 a year. Course endorsed by Biltmore, Commodore, Waldorf, and other great hotels. Costs but few cents a day.

The Civil Service.

City.

An examination for Inspector of Elevators, Grade 2, has been ordered. Candidates must be at least twenty-one years of age on or before the closing date for the receipt of applications. The subjects and weights of the examination will be: Citizenship, 1; experience, 4; technical, 5. Candidates must show that they have had not less than five years' experience in the actual assembling, installation, repair, or design of elevators, or the equivalent of such experience. The salary is from $1,140 to $1,380 a year.

United States.

The commission announces for Dec. 10 an examination for clinical clerk, for men only. Vacancies in the Public Health Service throughout the United States at $900 to $1,200 a year will be filled from this examination. The entrance salary within the range stated will depend upon the qualifications of the appointee and the duty to which he is assigned. Appointees whose services are satisfactory may be allowed the temporary increase granted by Congress of $20 a month. The duties will be to assist medical officers in making various examinations and certain genito-urinary procedures and treatments, to assist medical officers in writing case histories, and do routine ward work, make the ordinary ward reports, submit diet lists, and follow out general nurses' instructions as given by the doctor. Spelling, 10; aritmetic, 10; letter writing, 15; penmanship, 15; copying from plain copy, 10, and training and experience, 40. Applicants must have had at least one year's experience as hospital orderly or in a similar position, with actual nursing experience. They must have reached their twentieth but not their fortieth birthday on the date of the examination. Age limits do not apply to persons entitled to preference because of military or naval service.

Education Notes.

The Board of Education, in executive session, by a vote of 4 to 3, defeated the proposal to grant increases in the salaries of the City Superintendent of Schools and Directors not included in the formal action taken by the board on the salary report.

It is said that three members of the Board of Education will vote today to re-elect John H. Walsh as Associate Superintendent. Three other members, it is said, are in favor of Mrs. Grace Strachan Forsythe. One vote is in doubt. If Mrs. Forsythe is elected she will be the first woman Associate Superintendent. If Mr. Walsh should fail of re-election he will be retired on a pension.

The New York Society for the Experimental Study of Education will meet at 8 P. M. on Friday at the Washington Irving High School. The general topic will be "Problems in Teaching Secondary Mathematics." Dr. J. H. Minnick of the University of Pennsylvania will present a paper on "Mathematical Tests," and Professor Truman L. Kelley of Teachers College a paper on "Purposes of High School Mathematics."

Dr. C. Ward Crampton, Director of Physical Training in the Board of Education, has resigned.

Dr. Henry R. Linville, President of the Teachers' Union, has been ordered to prepare specifications for any charges he has to make against Associate Superintendent Tildsley for seeking testimony of pupils against their teachers in the high schools. If Mr. Linville does not do so, charges may be brought against him for conduct unbecoming a teacher.

The request of the Central Federation of Labor that Abraham Leifkowitz, a teacher of history in the DeWitt Clinton High School, be excused from Nov. 22 to 27 to attend a labor convention in Chicago has been denied, the Board of Education saying that the request should come from Mr. Leifkowitz himself.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—Forecast:

Following a very moderate depression in the Southwest, there has been a rapid and decided rise in pressure throughout the Northwest and extreme Central West and by a cold wave that extends tonight in Northern and Western Kansas, ranging from 25 degrees to 42 degrees below the seasonal average, the line of zero temperature extending to the northeast Wyoming-Colorado line. Pressure is also generally high over the remainder of the country, except as above mentioned, but with generally fair Wednesday and Thursday, except that local snows are probable Thursday in the upper Lake region and the lower Ohio Valley and snows or rains in Tennessee.

Cold wave warnings have been ordered for Lower Michigan, Eastern and Southern Upper Michigan, Indiana, the Western portions of Iowa and Missouri, Eastern and Southern Nebraska, Southeastern Wyoming, Eastern Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Western Texas, and the north portion of Eastern Texas.

Light local snows accompanied the cold weather, and there were also general rains in the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, the East Gulf, and Atlantic States, followed by clearing weather, except in the East and South.

The Western cold wave will move eastward, extending through the upper lake region and the lower Ohio Valley by Thursday morning, and during Thursday the falling temperature will extend eastward and southward into the Gulf States, Tennessee, the upper Ohio Valley, and the lower lake region.

Winds off the Atlantic Coast—North of Sandy Hook and Sandy Hook to Hatteras, moderate south, clearing and somewhat colder; Hatteras to Florida Straits, gentle to moderate northeast and east, unsettled Wednesday, Thursday fair; East Gulf Coast, gentle to moderate variable over north portion and northeast over south, generally fair; West Gulf Coast, gentle variable Wednesday, probably becoming northerly and fresh Thursday over north portion, fair.

FORECAST TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair, somewhat colder Wednesday; Thursday fair, colder at night.

New Jersey—Clearing, somewhat colder Wednesday; Thursday fair, colder at night.

Southern New England—Fair, somewhat colder Wednesday; Thursday fair.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Clearing Wednesday; Thursday fair, colder by night.

Western New York—Fair Wednesday; Thursday fair, colder by night.

Northern New England—Fair Wednesday and Thursday.

Western Pennsylvania—Fair Wednesday; Thursday fair, colder.

JURY MAY LOOK FOR VEILED GOVERNMENT

Intimation That Body Has Broadened Scope of Inquiry Into Hylan Administration.

HEARST LAWYER SUMMONED

Rumored That Jury Wants Correspondence Between the Mayor and Hearst Publications.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury investigating an alleged "overshadowing crime," no inkling of the nature of which has been disclosed by its members, will make a determined effort to find out the identity of the person who hired detectives to trail the jurymen, when it resumes its inquiry today. Some of the members have freely admitted that they have been shadowed by men believed to be detectives who have dogged their steps with such persistency as to be annoying. It is reported that a number of the jurors are living away from their homes since this discovery.

No formal session of the body was held yesterday, but a committee of eight, appointed from among its members, met behind closed doors to examine the voluminous mass of documents which had been subpoenaed from city officials the day before. Raymond F. Almirall, foreman of the jury, who is a member of the committee, declined to make any comment when he was leaving the Criminal Court Building.

It was said yesterday that in several instances the subpoenas sent to the heads of the city departments required them to produce before the body "all letters and correspondence sent by Mayor Hylan to District Attorney Swann and the Hearst Publication Company." A rumor was current about the Criminal Court Building that the jury was broadening the scope of its inquiry to include an investigation of a possible "invisible government" behind the Hylan administration. The Grand Jury, it was learned, is now pursuing the inquiry under subdivision 3, of Section 380, of the Code of Criminal Procedure, which sets forth that it is mandatory for the body "to inquire into wilful and corrupt misconduct in office of public officials of every description in the county that is brought to its attention."

Interest centres in the appearance today before the Grand Jury of William A. De Ford, counsel for the Hearst interests, who, it was said, had been served with a subpoena. This will be Mr. De Ford's first entrance into the Grand Jury's investigation. Another witness who is understood to have been asked to testify today is David Hirshfield, Commissioner of Accounts. He appeared before the body as a witness on Monday.

Corporation Counsel William T. Burr visited District Attorney Swann yesterday afternoon and conferred at length over the legality of the Grand Jury's action in subpoenaing all of the correspondence of Mayor Hylan and other city officials. Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Talley also took part in the conference. Although Mr. Burr and the District Attorney believe that the subpoenas for the correspondence could be quashed upon application to a court of competent jurisdiction, according to a person close to the two city heads, no such course will be pursued. No effort will be made by the Mayor or his official family to prevent the Grand Jury from examining any document or paper which that body may choose, it was said.

Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, who was closeted with the Committee of Eight much of the time it was in session, yesterday declined to make any comment on the developments of the inquiry. District Attorney Swann was also non-committal except to say that he was prepared to submit two anarchist cases when the Extraordinary Grand Jury was ready to hear him.

SHAKESPEAREANS IN ARMS.

Seek Removal by Parliament of Factory Near Bard's Birthplace.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Despite the outcry from lovers of Shakespeare, permission was recently given to a Birmingham firm to build an aluminium factory at Stratford-on-Avon, within a thousand yards of the house where Shakespeare was born.

There is, however, hope that the matter may be brought up in the House of Commons. Sir Sidney Lee, chairman of the executive committee of the Shakespeare Birthplace Trust, said today that a number of well-known people were considering the promotion of a bill which, if passed by Parliament, would save Stratford and other places of a like historic interest from disfigurement by industrial concerns.

CHINA TO REBUFF JAPAN.

Peking Expected to Reject Direct Negotiation on Shantung.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Nov. 11.—The Japanese have started a movement to induce the Chinese Government to open negotiations direct with Japan for the return of Kiao-Chau. Chinese resentment against the Paris award is as keen as ever. The Chinese realize, however, that there is no need of further discussion and are content to await the final decision of the League of Nations.

The Shantung Provincial Assembly has telegraphed the Government offering negotiations with Japan. It says it is confident the League of Nations decision will see justice done to China.

The Government, it is believed, has not changed its attitude and will not open negotiations with Japan.

WOLVES SPELL BAD WINTER.

Great Packs in Manitoba Mean a Bitter Season, Say Trappers.

THE PAS, Manitoba, Nov. 11.—A long Winter, as bitter as that of 1915, when the mercury fell to 54 degrees below zero, was predicted by trappers reaching here today, who reported outlying settlements surrounded by great packs of wolves. This, they asserted, was a sure indication of cold weather.

Although not yet ravenous, the wolves are following dog trains for long distances. Indians have killed sixty on the outskirts of The Pas.

Drop in Sterling Sends Silver Down.

The decline of 1 cent an ounce in the price for silver in this market yesterday to $1.20½, in the face of continued maintenance of the Far East exchanges above the export point, was attributable to the drop in Sterling exchange. The London price for silver remained unchanged at 86½d.

WOMAN'S THRALLDOM ENDED, SAYS MRS. CATT

Suffrage Leaders Alone Had the Vision for Liberation, St. Louis Convention Hears.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 11.—The "liberation" of women from the "custom" which custom, law and public opinion bound them" virtually is accomplished, according to an address written by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, read at the formal opening of the convention of the National Council of Women here tonight. Mrs. Catt, who is President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, was unable to be present.

Governor Frederick D. Gardner of Missouri, who almost won the State's welcome to the women, saying their work during the war had "impressed men that woman should be given her full and equal rights and responsibilities."

As the work of the Suffrage Association virtually is finished, Mrs. Catt asserted, it probably would dissolve at its convention in Chicago next February, and be displaced by the League of Women Voters, "whose aim is to stimulate more intelligent citizenship and higher political ideals." She surveyed the accomplishments of the association, adding:

"The leaders of the suffrage association were the only women, apparently, possessed of the vision of the final liberation of women from the thralldom in which custom, law, and public opinion bound them. This is about realized.

"The end of the suffrage struggle is in sight. The controversy of a century, which once was waged with eggs and cabbage, has closed. The delegates of the association will not sit with your council again; with your permission, the League of Women Voters will take its place.

"In view of the momentous changes, I suggest that the council mark the close of the period now drawing to an end by dropping the Woman Suffrage Committee and in its stead establish a Committee on Good Citizenship."

Elimination of hatred and injustice, and the substitution of co-operation in social and industrial activities, was urged in a message from Mrs. May Wright Sewell of Framingham, Mass., Honorary President of the International Council of Women.

Another message was from Mrs. W. R. Sanford of Ontario, President of the Canadian Council of Women. She urged the women to become more active in world affairs and to co-operate in eradicating evil.

General Pershing sent greetings and thanked the women for their work during the war.

Greetings also were received from the Marchioness of Aberdeen and Temair, President of the International Council of Women and from women's organizations in many foreign countries.

RUTH LAW SEEKS PLANE.

Hunts Paris for One with Which to Beat Maynard's Time.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—Ruth Law, the American aviator, came to Paris today in her search for an airplane with which she intends to try to beat Lieutenant Maynard's cross-continent record.

Miss Law says she believes there can be found in France a plane which will combine speed and fuel capacity better than any American machine. She will begin her visits to French airplane manufacturers tomorrow.

Miss Law said she had not decided whether she would go after Lieutenant Maynard's record this Winter or wait until next Spring. That probably depended on how long it took her to buy a suitable machine and get it to America.

$825 PAID FOR PORTRAIT.

Lawrence Painting is Highest of Day at Bosworth Sale.

A "Portrait of a Lady," with dark hair, white dress and red mantle, by Sir Thomas Lawrence, brought the highest price among the pictures of the collection of the late Mrs. F. H. Bosworth, sold at the American Art Galleries last evening, the portrait going to J. Siegbert for $825. A "Farm Yard Scene," by the Belgian painter, Melchior d'Hondecoeter, went to Mrs. Herrick for $450, a small panel, Flemish school of the sixteenth century, "Madonna and Child," to Mrs. M. D. de Bernard for $400, and a large and brilliantly painted "Vase of Flowers," attributed to Jan van Huysum, 59 inches by 44, to Seaman, agent, for $420.

R. N. Moore paid the highest price of the afternoon sale, $575, for a club-shaped Chinese vase decorated in colored enamels, showing women on horseback, an animated scene. A large number of Egyptian necklaces, brooches, rings and stickpins, old Roman glass, and other objects, will be sold this afternoon. Returns for the pictures last evening were $4,015, making a grand total to date of $10,332.

Dinner for Sir Woodman Burbridge.

Sir Woodman Burbridge, Bart., C. B. E., the head of the London firm of Harrod's, Inc., was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Retail Drygoods Association at the Ritz-Carlton last evening. The son of Sir Woodman, who is receiving his business training as a clerk in Wanamaker's, was also present, and the other guests included the British Vice Consul, Claude Kirwood Ledger, and representatives of various drygoods firms in the city.

The Business Labyrinth

Could your family find its way out?

ONE of the wonders of ancient times was the Labyrinth—a vast network of chambers, courts and corridors so cunningly arranged that it was impossible to find one's way out without a guide.

Families inheriting money today sometimes face the task of "finding their way out" of a puzzling labyrinth of red tape and legal difficulties.

Your duty as head of a family will prompt you to provide your family with an experienced "guide."

An experienced guide is secured for your family when you appoint the Mercantile Trust Company executors and trustees under your will.

Under a Mercantile Trusteeship, a permanent TRUST COMMITTEE instituted by the Mercantile Trust Company meets at regular and frequent intervals to direct all trust investments made in the interest of Mercantile clients—a most important provision.

The members of this experienced Committee are selected by the Mercantile Board of Directors from its own personnel. The President of the Company serves ex officio.

The above business arrangement can be made very simply. The fees are fixed by law. We shall be glad to explain any details.

51 SENATORS SIGN CLOSURE DEMANDS ON PEACE TREATY

35 Join in Democratic Call and 16 in Petition Backed by Middle-Grounders.

BELIEVE FILIBUSTER IS ON

Move Is Aimed at Five Irreconcilables—Reed Continues Long Speech.

TO CALL UP RAILROAD BILL

Cummins Expects to Move Today to Displace Treaty—May Hold Night Sessions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—While the Senate paused for a time today in its deliberations over the Peace Treaty, owing to the death of Senator Martin of Virginia, efforts were put under way by Republican and Democratic Senators outside the chamber to invoke the closure rule within the next day or so to block what those Senators believed to be an organized filibuster on the treaty by a group of its radical opponents.

Senators Hale of Maine, Spencer of Missouri, and Kellogg of Minnesota, among the middle-ground group of the Republican forces, started a petition on their side of the Senate, while Senator Underwood of Alabama, who is aiding Senator Hitchcock, leader of the minority, in the treaty fight, circulated a similar petition among the Democrats.

At the end of the day the Republican Senators had obtained the sixteen names required under parliamentary rules to offer a closure petition, while Senator Underwood had obtained thirty-five signatures of Democratic Senators. To invoke closure a two-thirds vote of the Senate would be necessary.

Under the terms of both petitions, debate on the treaty would be limited to one hour for each Senator, thus compelling further discussion within ninety-six hours. After that, the final vote would have to come.

The move for closure was actuated, it was explained, by the apparent plan of some five irreconcilables to keep the treaty under debate clear up to the end of this legislative session, so as to block a final vote on the ratifying resolution. The Senators named are La Follette, Gronna, Norris, and France, Republicans, and Reed, Democrat.

Reed Continues Long Speech.

Senator Reed occupied the time of the Senate for three hours yesterday and up to the time of adjournment, just before 2 P. M. today, with a speech criticising the attitude of President Wilson during the war and in relation to the treaty. He showed no sign, when the Senate adjourned, of having approached the end of his talk. His speech was regarded by Senators favoring closure as part of the suspected scheme of filibuster.

Senator La Follette had prepared an exhaustive speech on the treaty, to begin when Senator Reed left off, and after him others in the alleged filibuster were reported to be ready to take the floor.

Senator Lodge said that the Hale-Spencer-Kellogg petition had not been presented to him for his signature. Asked if he would sign it, he replied: "I shall not cross that bridge until I come to it."

When the radical Senators among the anti-treaty forces learned of the move to invoke closure, several of them, notably Senator Reed, declared that if it were carried out they would seriously consider bolting the majority program. Senators Borah and Johnson, leaders of the irreconcilables, while opposed to closure, indicated that they would stand with the Lodge forces.

Cummins to Call for Railroad Bill.

Along with the move or closure, it developed that Senator Cummins, President pro tem. of the Senate, impatient over the delay in handling the treaty, plans to move tomorrow to displace it with the Interstate Commerce Committee's bill for restoring the railroad systems of the country to private ownership. Senator Cummins said that with the apparently "interminable" debate on the treaty, it began to look as if a final vote on it could not be reached at this session.

In view of the closure move Republican leaders tonight were trying to come to some agreement with Senators on their side to curtail debate. If assurances can be obtained that there will be no filibuster, from now until the treaty is voted on, it is expected that the petitions will be abandoned.

The tangle occasioned by the precipitation of the Walsh amendment to the committee reservation on Article X., by which the minority forces are seeking to accomplish the defeat of the reservation, was said by Republican leaders today to have been straightened out. Three of the radical Senators were said to be still bent on voting with the Democratic forces to adopt the Walsh amendment, so as practically to eliminate Article X. from the treaty, but Senator Lodge was reported to have had assurances from enough others of the irreconcilables to remove the possibility of the amendment prevailing.

A tentative agreement to hold night sessions, beginning tomorrow, has been made.

Hindenburg Hailed in Berlin; Met at Station by Ludendorff

BERLIN, Nov. 12, (Associated Press.)—Field Marshal von Hindenburg arrived in the capital today and was received with military honors. He was met at the station by General Ludendorff, once his Chief of Staff, and Dr. Karl Helfferich, former Vice Chancellor.

The Field Marshal had an enthusiastic popular reception, the people singing "Deutschland über Alles."

STOCKS TUMBLE; MONEY UP TO 30%

Values Slaughtered in Rush of Selling as Rate on Call Loans Soars.

SPECULATIVE ISSUES HIT

Some Drop from 30 to 60 Points—Outlook Believed More Promising Today.

Call money rates continued their wild movements yesterday, going to a new high record of 30 per cent., and security prices on the Stock Exchange broke badly in a market which, probably, was the most demoralized since the famous "peace" market of December, 1916. For a time values were slaughtered, losses extending from as much as 30 to more than 60 points being recorded, but at the end of the day there were evidences that the situation was getting in hand, and there was a decidedly more hopeful feeling in financial circles then than during the earlier part of the week.

Stock prices were heavy and lower at the opening of the market. News that a special conference between Federal Reserve Board officials and local bankers had been held looking to some curtailment in stock market speculation had been flashed around the country before the opening hour, and selling orders had poured in from many out-of-town centres where interest had been taken in securities. As a result, brokers were deluged with commissions to dispose of stocks at almost any figure they would bring.

This early selling had begun to slacken when the opening and renewal call money rate was posted at 14 per cent., the same as the renewal rate of the previous day. Almost immediately the rate began to climb. As it rose, stock selling again quickened, and around midday and during the early afternoon prices tumbled badly.

"Specialties" Hard Hit.

The highly speculative so-called "industrial specialties" suffered most severely. Big blocks of these stocks appeared and sales were made at considerable concessions from previous prices. Breaks between sales of 2 or 3 points became common, and for a time the market was thoroughly demoralized.

Chandler Motors, one of the more vulnerable, sold off from above 120 to 90 on a total turnover of about 4,500 shares. General Motors, which was in even worse shape, sold down from 348½ to 280. American Tobacco lost nearly 26 points before the decline was checked, and Associated Oil lost 35 points. Fisher Body lost 33 and Mexican Petroleum broke about as much. Some of these losses were partly recovered before the close, but the net losses in most cases nearly equalled the maximum losses.

The break, coming on top of several days of steady and persistent selling, resulted in declines from the high prices of last week, which ranged anywhere from 30 and 40 points to 126½ points. The extreme loss was the decline of General Motors, which a week ago was quoted at more than $400 a share.

In the appended table are shown some of the more sensational breaks, both of yesterday and from the high levels of last week. The figures given are the high prices of last week, compared with yesterday's low prices; yesterday's declines, and those from last week.

MINERS POSTPONE APPEAL IN COURTS, PENDING PARLEY

Likely to Stop Action if Settlement Is Reached, as Right to Strike Is Not Involved.

MEN SLOW IN RETURNING

Most Fields Have Not Received Letter Rescinding Strike—Chiefs Go to Capital.

WANT CONFERENCES PUBLIC

Government Is Moving for Spirit of Conciliation at Meeting of Operators and Miners Tomorrow.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 12.—The United Mine Workers of America, contrary to previous announcement, have decided to withhold their appeal on the ruling of the Federal Court in the injunction proceedings which resulted in the rescinding of the strike order yesterday.

It had been generally believed that regardless of developments in the situation the miners would fight their case in the courts to the last ditch, and attorneys for the coal workers announced yesterday that their appeal would be filed within two or three days. However, Henry Warrum, chief counsel for the mine workers' organization, tonight said that the outcome of the conference of miners' representatives and coal operators with Secretary of Labor Wilson in Washington Friday would determine to a large extent whether the case is carried further.

The miners' counsel have thirty days in which to file their appeal.

The decision of the miners is taken to indicate that they have accepted the Government's assurance that the suit against the miners was not an attack against the right to strike, but was solely to prevent violation of the law, in this case the Lever act.

Possibility of speedy agreement at the Washington conference, according to opinion here, is marred only by the question of when a new wage scale would become effective. Miners' spokesmen have said that if the operators go to the conference in a spirit of conciliation, agreement was only a question of hours, but it is known that the union men object to the position taken by the operators that the wage scale in effect before the strike still is in effect.

Many of the delegates to Friday's meeting, who were in attendance at the conference here this week, left tonight for Washington. William Green, Secretary-Treasurer of the mine workers, will leave early tomorrow morning, and Acting President John L. Lewis will start tomorrow afternoon.

Miners' officials today declined to comment on the way in which the members of the organization are responding to their order calling off the strike, and would give no reports from the district headquarters. They said no instructions supplemental to their orders had been sent out from headquarters.

GOVERNMENT TRYING TO SPEED COAL PEACE

Public Conferences of Miners and Operators Proposed—Palmer Opposes Price Jump.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Realizing that a speedy settlement of all differences between the soft coal miners and operators is essential to make effective the ending of the strike, officials of the Government who have arranged for the conference of operators with officials of the United Mine Workers of America, to be opened here Friday morning, are making every effort to bring about a spirit of conciliation.

Attorney General Palmer and Secretary of Labor Wilson have put emphasis upon the belief that the public may now hope to see an agreement reached on a basis which will be accepted as fair by both parties to the controversy. They have let it be known that the Government will not passively permit any stumbling block to remain in the pathway to a peaceful settlement.

In some quarters there has been started a movement to have the meetings of the operators and officials of the miners thrown open to the public

Riga Delivered and Germans Routed; Lettish Army Takes Many Guns and Men

DORPAT, Livonia, Nov. 12 (Associated Press.)—Lettish troops in the region near Riga attacked the Germano-Russian forces of Colonel Bermondt yesterday, and pushed them back several miles along the entire line, the Lettish conferees at the Baltic States conference here were advised today.

The attack resulted in Riga being entirely freed from menace by Colonel Bermondt's forces.

The Letts, it is added, captured a battery of heavy guns and numerous machine guns.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 12 (Associated Press.)—The attack of the Lettish forces which cleared Riga of the Germans and transferred the entire front to the left bank of the Dvina River, began the evening of Nov. 8, according to advices to the Lettish bureau from Riga.

Supported by an Allied fleet and Lettish artillery, the Letts forced the river near St. Bilderling after desperate resistance by the Germans, who fled, abandoning prisoners and material. On the night of the tenth, the German resistance was broken on the Riga front and the Dvina Bridges, together with the suburbs of Ueber Duehn, fell into the hands of the Letts. The other suburbs on the left bank being taken simultaneously after fierce fighting the Letts reached the Riga-Mitau road, the Germans fleeing toward Mitau, leaving many prisoners and heavy and light batteries behind them.

The statement adds that the pursuit of the enemy continues and that the population of Riga is rejoicing over the victory.

BERLIN, Nov. 12, (Associated Press.)—The former German Emperor assumed formal possession of the House of Doorn, at Doorn, Holland, which he purchased some time ago, when the keys were handed over to him last Friday, although he will not actually take up his residence there until early in 1920.

The first act of the new owner was to raise the salary of the gardener from 14 to 15 florins ($5.60 to $6) per week.

TWO COURTS HOLD DRY LAW INVALID

Injunction Issued at Providence Against the Enforcement of the Volstead Act.

ONE TODAY IN LOUISVILLE

First Based on Time Granted by Amendment—Second to Release Tax-Paid Whisky.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 12.—A preliminary injunction against the enforcement of wartime prohibition was granted today by Judge Arthur L. Brown in the United States District Court.

The action was taken upon the petition of the Narragansett Brewing Company, which asked that United States District Attorney Harvey A. Baker and Collector of Internal Revenue George F. O'Shaunessay be restrained from interfering with the manufacture and sale of malt beverages with not more than 4 per cent. alcohol content.

Judge Brown in his opinion states that, "in view of the probability that the act in question will ultimately be held unconstitutional, and of the irreparable damage that would result from its immediate enforcement, and as, in view of the evidence afforded by the Presidential proclamation and other circumstances its immediate enforcement is not imperative, I am convinced that the plaintiff's right to a preliminary injunction is clear."

A draft of the decree will be presented to the court tomorrow morning by Michael J. Lynch, attorney for the plaintiff, and if approved will be entered. The injunction will then become operative.

Immediately after a decree is entered District Attorney Baker will appear before Judge Brown and ask for a stay of execution. If this is not granted he will go before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Boston and ask for a supersedeas.

George F. O'Shaunessy, Collector of Internal Revenue, this afternoon issued the following warning to liquor dealers:

"Pending the entry of the decree tomorrow, the situation remains unchanged, and dealers are forbidden to sell beverages containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol. After the decree is entered, and pending the determination by a higher court whether Judge Brown is right or wrong dealers will proceed at their peril. If the higher court reserves Judge Brown's decision, the evidence collected by internal revenue agents for the intervening period will be used as a basis of prosecution."

The decision is the first of its kind catered by any court in the country. While the decision nominally restrains Federal officials in Rhode Island from enforcing Title I of the Volstead or National Prohibition act against the Narragansett Brewing Company, it virtually sets forth the belief of the court that the entire Wartime Prohibition act is unconstitutional and cannot be enforced.

"The Eighteenth Amendment became a part of the Constitution immediately upon its ratification," the opinion says. "It then fixed the time at which the powers of the States over a subject heretofore always under their control should cease; at which the Government of the United States, the Governments of the States and municipalities, should be deprived of sources of revenue from which millions had been derived; at which great industries, employing thousands of men, should cease, and at which the value of enormous properties for the uses for which they were designated should be finally destroyed; and at which there should be enforced a radical change in personal habits.

"It is inconceivable that this would have been done without the provision for a period during which the loss might be, to some extent, provided for and lessened.

"The amendment provided not only for what should be done after January, 1920, but, by the words 'after one year,' gave express evidence of consideration and determination of the necessity of affording to the States and citizens and to the departments of the Federal Government as well, a period of readjustment of their affairs to the new conditions that would result from a transfer of powers from the States to the Federal Government.

"There can be no question that the present legislation, if valid, destroys rights of States and citizens which, but for that legislation, they might enjoy, and which were respected and recognized in the adoption of the amendment.

"Aside from the question of the repugnancy of this act to the amended Constitution, there are questions of the most serious character as to whether this legislation does not contain provisions which go far beyond permissible

Rid Country, Says Pershing, of Men Who Shot Veterans

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—General Pershing tonight issued a statement in which he said:

"It is a serious outrage that veterans of the world war, parading in uniform in celebration of our national victory, should be shot down in cold blood, as was done in Washington yesterday.

"Too drastic measures cannot be taken to rid our country of the class of criminals who inspire or commit such crimes."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Intense feeling has been caused here by the murder of four war veterans by I. W. W. revolutionaries during the Armistice Day parade at Centralia, Wash., and the outrage was the subject of indignant comment by members of Congress.

A full report of the affair was received during the day at the Department of Justice from agents in Washington. Although no comment was made by Attorney General Palmer or his assistants, it is understood that the view of the department is that in this particular crime the perpetrators should be held for first degree murder under the laws of the State of Washington.

In the meantime, the department is continuing its country-wide investigation of the extremist elements and will seek at the earliest opportunity the deportation of aliens whose records show that they have been agitating for the overthrow of the Government or American institutions.

It is pointed out that there are fifty-two bills pending in Congress, which were drafted to give the Government all the authority needed to deal with the Bolsheviki, anarchist and other anti-American organizations now operating in this country. There is nothing to indicate the early passage of any of these laws, although it was predicted in some quarters today that the Centralia outrage would spur Congress to quick action.

Twenty-two I. W. W. Newspapers.

Government data shows that never in its history was the I. W. W. more active than it is now. "Within the last few weeks the organization has added two new newspapers to its official publications, one printed in the Croatian and the other in the Finnish language, bringing the total up to twenty-two papers and magazines, five in English, two in Russian, two in Jewish, two in German, two in Finnish, and one each in the Hungarian, Spanish, Italian, Swedish, Bulgarian, Croatian, Lithuanian and Polish languages. All favor confiscation of private property and the setting up of a Bolshevist form of government.

The records show that a number of alien I. W. W. leaders have been deported, among them William Field, Frits Holm, Olaf Finstad, James Cully, Joseph Kennedy, and two women named Roy. Several others are held pending final action by the courts on the deportation warrants. However, it is said that only ten out of more than fifty I. W. W.'s ordered deported as a result of the Seattle and Spokane strikes last Spring, have been sent away.

Senator Miles Poindexter, senior Senator from Washington, in a statement concerning the Centralia murders, expressed the view that they were the result of the too lenient policies of the Government in handling the "Red" situation, although he admitted that now there was considerable activity on the part of Attorney General Palmer and his assistants.

"This detestable outrage," said the Senator, "is the fearful penalty which Centralia has paid for the over-lenient policy of the National Government toward anarchists and murderous communists. Instead of prescribing, deporting, and otherwise punishing, as the laws provide, this miserable human vermin which seems to destroy civilization, the Government has shown them many favors.

"I pointed out in a resolution which was adopted by the Senate Oct. 14

Labor to Meet Nov. 22 to Name National Ticket; Will Attack Old Parties; For Public Ownership

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—A National Labor ticket for the coming Presidential election will be nominated in Chicago by a convention that will meet Nov. 22, John Fitzpatrick, President of the Chicago Federation of Labor, announced tonight.

Twenty thousand delegates, representing the Non-Partisan League, farmers' organizations, granger societies, and State and local unions, are expected to attend, he said.

The official call for the convention was issued from New York today by Frank J. Esper, Secretary of the Labor Party of Illinois.

The Democratic Party will be assailed and "broken," and then the Republican Party, Fitzpatrick said tonight. He remarked:

"It is Wilson's party that has, by its anarchistic attitude toward union labor and the working classes, forced us to make up a workingman's slate under which we hope to enroll not only union men and women, but farmers, clerks—every working man and woman. After we have finished with the Democratic Party we will take care of the Republicans."

The party platform as outlined embodies three principles:

Restoration of all civil liberties.

Public ownership and democratic management of the means of transportation, communication, mines, and other monopolies and natural resources.

Abolition of excessive land ownerships and holding land out for speculative purposes.

RAILROAD WORKERS CONDEMN ESCH BILL

Heads of 13 Unions Call It Legislation for "Big Business" Against Labor.

WANT CONTROL CONTINUED

Challenge an Appeal to General Election—Hines Opposes Financial Features.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The Esch bill, which provides for the return of the railroads to private ownership, was denounced in a statement issued tonight by the chief executives of thirteen organizations of railway workers, including three of the four principal brotherhoods. The signers of the statement charge that the bill is "a conscienceless betrayal of the public interests;" that it validates twenty billion dollars of railroad securities, "at least eight billions of which is water;" that it caters to "Big Business," and that generally the measure is vicious.

Among the signers of the statement are Grand Chief Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Acting Chief Shea of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, President Lee of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, and the heads or acting heads of other organizations of railroad workers. Stone, Shea, and Lee have indorsed the Plumb plan for future railroad control.

The Protest.

The statement says:

"The Esch bill is a conscienceless betrayal of the public interests. That its supporters realize it is not the kind of legislation that will bear the light of honest criticism is demonstrated by the way in which the bill has been handled in the House.

"It validates approximately twenty billion dollars of railroad securities, at least eight billions of which is water, and directs the Interstate Commerce Commission to tax the American people through an increase in freight and passenger rates to pay dividends on those 'shadow dollars.' That means, according to Interstate Commerce Commissioner Woolley, at least a 25 per cent. increase in rates. Such an increase would take one billion dollars from shippers and add from three to five billions to what consumers pay for the necessaries of life.

"It guarantees the present exorbitant rentals for the railroads under Federal control, and then, in order that there may be no complaint from "big business," provides similar generous rentals for the short lines which are not under Federal control. It opens the doors of the Federal treasury to the railroads in order that they may be refinanced with public funds.

"If a similar scheme were proposed for the purpose of aiding the farmers or the city workers, those who sponsored it would be denounced as Bolsheviki, and the country would be told they were attempting to overturn republican institutions.

"If the people of this country—the farmers, the small business men, the professional men and the organized workers—could be informed concerning the provisions of this bill, such a protest would go up from all parts of the nation as would insure its defeat. That its authors fear just that kind of a result is evidenced by the attempt to jam it through the House.

"It must be remembered that this measure was prepared in secret conference. Presumably no one outside the membership of the committee was familiar with what was taking place behind the closed doors of the committee room.

"The bill was reported to the House last Saturday. A special rule making it immediately in order was adopted on

OAKLAND VETERANS RAID COMMUNISTS

Break Into Headquarters of Radical Labor Party and Wreck the Place.

MAKE BONFIRE OF CONTENTS

Leave Note That Hereafter the Californian City Will Be Unsafe for Red Agitators.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 12.—Headquarters of the Communist Labor Party and of the Socialist World, a newspaper, in Oakland, were partially wrecked today and stripped of their literature as a result of raids carried out late last night by a band of several hundred former service men, who stormed the place, broke furniture, and finally burned the pamphlets and literature in a bonfire in the street.

The former doughboys said they had acted on reports that members of the Communist Labor Party had shrouded the American colors with red flags and had advocated a Soviet Government in the United States at a mass meeting last Sunday night.

The Communists evidently had expected trouble, for when the first detachment of veterans reached Loring Hall, Clay and Eleventh Streets, headquarters of the Communist Labor Party and The World, they found a large throng of members of the party and their sympathizers lined up outside.

Sizing up the situation, the veterans hurried for reinforcements to the Municipal Auditorium, where a dance was being given by the War Camp Community Service. Here recruits were enlisted, many young men leaving their dancing partners to help in the work that had been planned.

Meanwhile the Communists had judged discretion to be the better part of valor, and had withdrawn, so that when the ex-soldiers returned to Loring Hall they met no opposition, as they burst in and proceeded to wreck everything that came in their way.

Antone Quintal, President of the Metal Trades Council of Alameda and Contra-costa counties, today denounced the police for their failure to prevent the raid. He said that he and others had informed them well in advance of what was likely to happen, and asked for protection. They were told, he said today, that patrolmen on the beat would be on hand in case of trouble. No arrests were made, however, and when the police reached the bonfire outside of Loring Hall, only six men were in sight, and they were spectators.

In the wrecked headquarters, the raiders left this note:

"Hereafter, Oakland will be unsafe for radicals and for anti-Government propaganda. Law and order shall prevail."

NORTH DAKOTA TO RUN LIGNITE COAL MINES

Operators Agree to State Control and Miners to Work Pending an Agreement.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 12.—Announcement was made at the State capital tonight that North Dakota lignite operators, with the exception of those at Williston, have agreed to reopen their mines tomorrow and permit them to be operated "in the name of the State" until wage differences of the United Mine Workers' organization are adjusted.

No word was received from Williston, because of prostration of wires by the storm.

The union Lignite miners of the State have agreed to return to work at the same wage scale in effect last year. During the period of State operation the mine owners will be allowed 6 royalty of not less than 10 nor more than 25 cents a ton on coal taken from the mines. The cost of operations will determine the profits allowed.

PRISONER MAKES CONFESSION

Says Revolutionists Had Four Centralians Marked For Death.

SEATTLE WARNING TO REDS

Mayor Tells Them to Keep That City "Out of Their Future Itineraries."

TACOMA AND ABERDEEN ACT

Much Incendiary Literature Is Seized with Fourscore of Radicals.

CENTRALIA, Wash., Nov. 12.—Cities of western Washington joined Centralia today in arresting members of the Industrial Workers of the World and raiding their headquarters following the firing on an Armistice Day parade here yesterday when four former American soldiers were killed and several were wounded.

The body of "Brick" Smith, the I. W. W. Secretary, who was lynched last night, was found in the Chehalis River, the rope by which he was hanged to the bridge having been subsequently cut.

Twenty-five men and one woman, reported to have radical beliefs, were placed in jail here and later four of the prisoners, including the woman, were removed to the Lewis County jail at Chehalis by National Guardsmen, who patrolled Centralia today.

Late tonight former service men entered a poolroom here, lined about 100 persons against the wall and searched them. Sixteen who were said to have carried Industrial Workers of the World membership cards were arrested.

In Seattle, eleven men and "tons of literature," according to the police, were taken to police headquarters, and the Mayor, C. B. Fitzgerald, issued a statement warning all radicals to "leave Seattle off their future itineraries."

Tonight thirty-nine more were arrested in Seattle, the aim being to learn if any orders directing the Centralia shooting were sent from the Seattle local.

The Tacoma police arrested thirty-four alleged members of the Industrial Workers of the World and seized a quantity of radical literature. At Aberdeen, large quantities of literature and the records of the Aberdeen local of the organization were taken.

Prisoners Make Confessions.

Herman Allen, prosecuting attorney, announced that D. Lamb, 16 years old, who was arrested here as an I. W. W., confessed to belonging to the organization. The boy, according to Allen, said he had heard his father, James Lamb, who also was arrested, talking of a plot to start trouble yesterday. The father, Allen added, confessed last night that the radicals had four former service men marked for death because of their activities in a fight that has been waged for some time by Centralia citizens to rid the city of the I. W. W.

"The I. W. W. expected trouble here yesterday, and they were prepared for it," Allen is quoted as saying. "When the parade was almost over without trouble appearing, they decided to start it themselves."

Dr. David Livingston, who served in the war as a Captain, was one of the four marked men, according to Lamb's alleged confession. He is the Coroner here, and will hold an inquest tomorrow over the bodies of the four victims of yesterday's outrage.

All of yesterday's shooting did not come from the buildings in the vicinity of the I. W. W. hall, as first believed. It was learned today when Berdine Fry, a 17-year-old boy, told the police that during the parade he saw a man shooting toward town from a hill not far from the scene of the tragedy. The hill lies east of Centralia's main street. Fry led the police to the spot and they discovered a suitcase containing a box of "soft-nosed" cartridges, a field glass, a man's coat, and a book containing I. W. W. songs.

Centralia was quiet today, and Judge George Dysart said citizens had promised to let the law take its course.

"Last night I talked to them and promised that every I. W. W. arrested here would have a quick and just trial," said Judge Dysart. "The former service men promised to aid officials jail the men."

Clashes between the I. W. W. and Centralia citizens have occurred at intervals during the last two years. The first trouble occurred when a radical spoke against a Red Cross bazaar. At that time a crowd removed all furniture from I. W. W. hall and burned it in the street. Recently a "Protective League" was organized. Every I. W. W. was to be listed, it was planned, and ordered to leave. As a direct answer to the citizens' declaration of war came the attack yesterday.

Smith Had Bad Record.

"Brick" Smith, the I. W. W. Secretary who was lynched, was reported by officials to have a police record in Washington. During the war it was said he caused trouble in Washington lumber camps and a lumber company wrote to a patriotic organization that he was a menace and asked that he be arrested.

Smith was arrested at Cedar Falls, July, 1917, when he and other alleged

I. W. W.s defied a freight train crew at a time farmers complained of sabotage being practiced in the grain fields and fruit orchards.

Following the attack on the parade yesterday, Smith darted from the rear of the I. W. W. headquarters firing an automatic revolver as he ran. Dale Hubbard, recently returned from overseas, gathered a small band and started after the fugitive. Hubbard overtook him and in the struggle that followed Smith shot him four times. An attempt to lynch Smith was made before he was lodged in the jail.

"You fellows can't hang me," he said. "I was sent to do my duty and I did it."

The lynching party worked silently and in darkness while taking him from the jail. At 7:30 o'clock all the city's electric lights were cut off, and eight men easily overcame the one man on guard inside the building. Smith was placed in one of about six darkened automobiles in waiting and rushed to the bridge over the river. Here a rope was tied about his neck while the other end was attached to the structure. Then the doomed man was thrown off, and as his squirming body dangled a volley of shots was sent into it.

No name was mentioned in a verdict rendered by a Coroner's jury which tonight held an inquest over the body believed to be that of Brick Smith.

The jury's verdict said:

"We find that deceased came to his death by gunshot wounds and by strangulation caused by persons unknown."

For a few hours tonight the body lay on the floor of the bridge under which the man was lynched last night. Later it was moved to the county jail. It was expected the Coroner would dispose of it.

No witnesses were examined at the inquest. The jury returned its verdict immediately after it examined the body and Justice of the Peace Charles F. Hess accepted the verdict without comment.

Of the first twenty-five prisoners arrested an examination tonight disclosed that fourteen were American citizens. Three are Swedes, one Swiss, one Montenegrin, one Bohemian, and one Finn. The nationality of the others could not be learned.

Two groups of former soldiers, most of them members of the American Legion, under leadership of Captain Lloyd Dysart, a Centralia war veteran, returned tonight from Mendota, a coal and logging town near here, where they searched for Industrial Workers believed to have escaped after the shooting yesterday. They had in custody P. J. Nolan and another man whose name was not learned.

Captain Dysart said the party failed to find Bert Brand, an alleged I. W. W., who, according to A. L. Cormier, adjutant of the parade yesterday, fired the shot that killed Grimm. It was thought today that Brand fled to Mendota.

TO BE DEPORTED TO RUSSIA.

Palmer Plans to Rid Country of Union of Russian Workers.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12. — Aliens rounded up by Department of Justice agents in the recent raids on headquarters of the Union of Russian Workers in a score of cities will be deported as soon as hearings have been held by the Department of Labor, according to Attorney General Palmer.

Mr. Palmer said today arrangements for their deportation to Russia had been made, but added that he could not disclose to what part of Russia they would be sent.

REDS PLAN VAST CAMPAIGN.

Department of Justice Powerless to Prevent It, Palmer Says.

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 12.—Industrial Workers of the World are preparing to launch from their headquarters here a propaganda campaign throughout the Northwest and perhaps through the entire West, in the near future, according to officials of the Department of Justice.

So far, they said, no orders to proceed against them had been received.

Resolutions opposing clemency to any one convicted of the murder of the four ex-service men at Centralia, and calling upon State and national authorities for a national campaign of suppression against radical organizations, were passed at a meeting of the executive committee of the local American Legion post here today.

Commissioner Tilsley of the Department of Public Safety, in a statement today, blamed the Federal authorities for failure to deport agitators in this section. He said the police were ready to round them up and furnish evidence for such procedure whenever the Government was ready to act.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Attorney General Palmer said today no orders had been sent to Department of Justice agents to prevent an I. W. W. propaganda campaign in the Northwest because the Department could not act under present laws until some overt act had been committed.

PORTLAND MOVES VIGOROUSLY

Alien Agitators Arrested Tuesday Night to be Deported.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 12.—Immediate proceedings toward deportation of all aliens among the men arrested last night in a raid by the police at I. W. W. headquarters here, will be taken, according to announcement made today by Barnett Goldstein, Acting United States Attorney.

Federal officials today began an investigation of the antecedents and activities of the fifty-three men taken into custody. Reports that speakers at a meeting of the "Council of Workmen" had denounced the American Legion and charged members of the organization with responsibility for the riots at Centralia, caused Mayor Baker, to order the raid.

As soon as reports of the Centralia trouble reached here the chief of police summoned all available patrolmen. Agents of the police sent to the meeting of the council reported that the speeches were of an incendiary character and the raid followed.

One of the prisoners, Joseph Laundy, is a candidate for the presidency of the Central Labor Council. Two other prisoners have been prominent in radical agitation here.

AMERICA'S PATIENCE ENDING, SAYS HOOVER

He Tells Poles at Buffalo That Radical Agitation Is Arousing the People.

MAY CLOSE THE 'OPEN DOOR'

Prejudice Against Foreign Born Likely to Arise if Radicalism Does Not Stop.

BUFFALO, Nov. 12.—The American people are growing impatient with foreign-born agitators and, unless their attitude changes, the door that has always been open to Europe may be shut, Herbert Hoover declared here today in an address at the convention of Americans of Polish ancestry.

"Many foolish ideas are being circulated among the foreign-born population of the United States," Mr. Hoover said. "Many of these foreign-born are interesting themselves in the destruction of our primary institutions and defiance of our laws. The American people are fast losing patience with this attitude. It may develop out of this that the 'open door' towards Europe will be, in a large measure, closed. But worse than this, there may develop out of it a prejudice against every speaker of a foreign language in the United States. It creates prejudice against extending aid to those countries in Europe from which our foreign-born populations spring."

Any needed reforms in the United States, he asserted, would "be carried out by those whose parents have grown up amid our institutions and those who have become in sentiment and spirit a part of our people."

"It is fortunate that the Polish population of the United States has been but little influenced by these forms of agitation," he continued. "If a Pole exists who has associated himself with the organizations that devote themselves to the destruction of our institutions that Pole is not only disloyal to the United States but he is endeavoring to paralyze the arm that is supporting the independence of his own mother country. Those who are dissatisfied can always choose the alternative of retiring to the countries from which they came.

"It is therefore the duty of those of you who speak our language and who have lived under our institutions to see to it that people of your blood do not associate themselves with movements that are antagonistic to our public sentiment and to our social and economic institutions."

HINES AND RAILWAY CHIEFS STILL AT ODDS

Cannot Agree on the Time and a Half Principle for Overtime.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12. — Railroad Brotherhood chiefs spent another day in conference with Director General Hines on the employes' demands for changes in working conditions without reaching any agreement.

The Brotherhood chiefs were said to have worked out, in more detail, the questions as to which there was a disagreement and to have presented these data to the Railroad Administration officials in the course of the session; but no conclusion was reached, and none was immediate prospect when the conference adjourned tonight.

The discussion, as at the initial conference yesterday, centred about the demand for time and a half for overtime in road service. Railroad Administration officials are known to stand pretty generally against the establishment of that principle, as a wage policy, while the Brotherhood heads were quite emphatic in their declarations that such provisions must be included in the revised working conditions agreement.

Inequality in wages of certain members of the four crafts has also filtered into the discussions. It is believed that some of the demands looking to adjustments to correct this condition will not be granted. Others, however, are looked upon by railroad officials as having merit and may tend to increase the pay of some men as a means of standardization of all wages.

SAY DRUG STRIKE IS LOST.

Pharmacists Call Walkout of Union Clerks a Failure.

The strike committee of the Pharmaceutical Association, composed of delegates of all druggists' organizations in the city, issued a statement yesterday after a meeting at the College Pharmacy, in West Sixty-sixth Street, in which it asserted the strike of drug clerks was a failure.

"Not one store has been closed," the statement read. "Less than 20 per cent. of the drug-store employes of all classes went out last Thursday, and many have come back since. The statement made by organizers that local organizations have signed union contracts is not true. Only a few druggists have signed the contract, and most of these employ no clerks."

It was said at the meeting that the men on strike were mostly soda men and minor employes. Few men who fill prescriptions went out, it was said.

FULL DEMANDS STAND, ASSERTS FARRINGTON

But Chairman of Miners' Scale Committee Says They Are All Subject to Negotiation.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 12.—Original demands of a 60 per cent. increase in wages, a six-hour day, and a five-day week will be presented to operators by mine workers in the joint scale conferences called for Friday in Washington at the instance of Secretary of Labor Wilson, according to Frank Farrington, Chairman of the miners' scale committee, who came here today en route to the national capital.

Asked whether the miners would obey the strike rescinding order, Farrington said:

"In my judgment, the miners will not return to work."

He added, however, that he spoke only for the Illinois district, of which he is President.

Farrington said the impression that the "slate had been wiped clean" so far as demands were concerned had no basis in fact, although the miners stood ready to negotiate a new scale without reservations.

"The old demands will stand," Mr. Farrington said. "They were formulated by the Cleveland convention. All of them, however, are subject to negotiations."

Miners' representatives will insist, he declared, that any new agreement be effective at once and not on March 31, 1920, as operators formerly contended.

Mr. Farrington, who left late today for Washington, said he was hopeful that the scale conferences would be productive of speedy results. He will be accompanied by Vice President Harry Fishwick and Secretary-Treasurer Walter Nesbit of the Illinois district.

STONE SEES STRIKE STILL ON.

Brotherhood Chief Says Country Cannot Be Governed by Injunctions.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 12.—Warren S. Stone, chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who is here attending the Northwestern conference of engineers, declared today that the "bituminous coal strike is not settled despite the acceptance of the mandate of the court."

"The time has not yet come when the Government of this country can be conducted by the injunction process," said Stone.

Railroad men from North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, and Kansas are attending the conference. The principal business is to acquaint the delegates with the Plumb plan of railroad operation.

MARGOLIS DEFENDS REDS.

Appears as Counsel for Pittsburgh Aliens Facing Deportation.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 12.—Jacob Margolis, the Pittsburgh attorney now under fire for his alleged disloyal expressions before the Senatorial committee at Washington which inquired into the steel strike, has appeared in the limelight again by trying to prevent the deportation of two men accused of being alien Reds who were brought before United States Immigration Inspector W. W. Sibray on complaint of agents of the Department of Justice.

Under the law Margolis has the right to submit a brief in their defense, but at the conclusion of the hearing the men were held in $10,000 bail, and in default of bond were locked up in the Allegheny County jail.

The men under arrest are Samuel Horowitz, a clerk in a store in Bentleyville, and M. Dietirikow of Pittsburgh. They were arrested on orders from Washington, where the testimony taken in their case will be submitted. Final orders as to whether they shall be deported will come from Washington.

Several prominent attorneys of this city have taken up the matter of a quick prosecution of the charges against Margolis, and the Offenses Committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association has promised an investigation soon.

WATCH REDS IN CALIFORNIA.

Police and Federal Agents Ordered to Take Precautions.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 12.—Every I. W. W. and known radical in Southern California was today placed under surveillance by the police and agents of the Department of Justice.

Many persons, some of them said to be wealthy, are known to be in sympathy with Sovietism and are being watched. Nearly a score of Reds were rounded up recently by detectives and jailed on a charge of criminal syndicalism. These men are now held in the county jail awaiting trial.

At a mass meeting tonight of members of the American Legion, also attended by leading merchants and professional men, a war of extermination against members of the I. W. W. and teachers of Bolshevism was declared.

Halts New Chile-New York Line.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 12.—The announcement in New York that a direct passenger service between New York and the West coast of South America will be opened in January has been received by the Chilean press with hearty approval. The newspapers say that the opening of the new service will develop extensively the trade relations between the United States and Chile.

COAL MINERS TARDY IN RESUMING WORK

Men in Most Fields Await Official Notification Before Returning to Collieries.

OPERATORS READY TO START

Seven Mines Are Reopened in West Virginia, but Full Operation is Expected Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 12.—reports received at headquarters of District 17, United Mine Workers, in this city, and by local operators show that striking mine workers generally throughout the southern districts of West Virginia did not return to work today as ordered by local union leaders. Operators say that the men demand official notification from the international officers at Indianapolis, and will not accept "telephone or mailed instructions" from district headquarters.

Only seven mines in the Kanawha field resumed operations today, and each mine had but a small working force, it was announced tonight by the Kanawha Coal Shippers' Association.

At Clothier, in Boone County, several hundred miners reported for work early this morning, but later walked out again, demanding official notification from Indianapolis.

Major General Leonard Wood of Chicago, commander of the central department of the army, and three staff officers arrived in Charleston tonight and called upon Governor John J. Cornwell. The Governor's secretary announced that General Wood "is paying the Governor a social call."

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 12, (Associated Press.)—Federal troops on strike duty in the coal fields of West Virginia will be withdrawn "within a few days," Major Gen. Leonard Wood, Commander of the Central Department of the Army, announced here tonight, following a conference at the Executive Mansion with Governor Cornwell. He said the time for the removal of the troops had been left entirely in the hands of the Governor.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 12.—Officers of District 5, United Mine Workers of America, do not know when the strikers in the Western Pennsylvania bituminous field will return to work, said Philip Murray, the President, today, when he and a group of eighteen officers and members of the Scale Committee of this district reported at headquarters, following their return from the the conference at Indianapolis. He said: been received.

"Our national officers have complied with the court's order and have canceled the strike order. It is now up to the men to act individually. No time has been set by the United Mine Workers of America for the men to report to duty. The union leaders have no power to forcibly compel the miners to resume the digging of coal."

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 12.—Reports from all mining districts in Ohio today were that none of the 40,000 miners had returned to work. It was explained that no official notification of the recall of the strike order had yet been received.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 12.—Not a union mine was in operation in Iowa today, reports to the headquarters here of the State Operators' Association said.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 12.—At least three-fourths of the striking coal miners will be again at their posts tonight and all should be in the mines by noon tomorrow, according to Secretary J. L. Cleme of the United Mine Workers of America.

POLICE TURN BACK PICKETS

Strikers Attempted to Follow Millinery Firm to Jersey City.

Efforts of striking employes of the millinery firm of Meyer Brothers to follow the firm from New York to Jersey City, where it is now established, and annoy new employes, composed for the most part of Jersey City women, were frustrated by the Jersey City police yesterday morning when thirteen pickets were escorted to the Exchange Place tube station and sent back to this city.

Meyer Brothers moved their plant to Jersey City three months ago when the millinery strike here was called. They occupy the top floor of the building at 34 to 38 Montgomery Street. During the last three days pickets from New York have been interfering with the fifty women employed at the plant, trying to persuade them to stop work.

Max Meyer, a member of the firm, was arrested on a complaint of assault by Solomon Tannenbaum of 325 East 106th Street, Manhattan, and was paroled for hearing today. Mr. Meyer says that Tannenbaum spat in his face and that he pushed him away.

FLAMES IN SHIP'S HOLD.

Fire Causes $36,000 Damage to Polish Relief Supplies.

Fire which started yesterday in No. 3 hold of the Shipping Board steamship Osaukee, at the foot of West Thirty-fourth Street, North River, destroyed cotton, clothing, foodstuffs, and other supplies shipped by the Polish Relief Fund to Danzig valued at $36,000.

The smoke was noticed by longshoremen, and four engine companies, together with the ship's apparatus, worked on the flames. The greater part of the damage was done by water. Spontaneous combustion is believed to have caused the blaze.

WILSON SITS UP AGAIN.

No Ill Effects Observed from the Change—Business Withheld.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—President Wilson was permitted today to sit up again for a time, yesterday's experiment having resulted in no ill effects.

No executive business was brought before the President during the day, it was said at the White House.

GOVERNMENT TRIES TO SPEED COAL PEACE

so that a complete understanding may be had by the people of every request or objection made by either. It is said that Secretary Wilson is in favor of such a course and it is understood that representatives of the miners and operators will be consulted regarding it tomorrow upon their arrival in Washington.

Those who are in favor of an open conference hold that the public is more vitally interested in the outcome than are even the miners or the operators and that no phase of the situation should be kept secret. As a result of the part which the Government has played in the strike and the fact that court proceedings were brought by the Department of Justice, it is held by some officials that the controversy long since passed the stage where the conference might expect to be permitted to wrangle behind closed doors and perhaps cause long delay in bringing about an agreement by the introduction of selfish issues.

There were reports today of the possibility of a deadlock over whether the "slate was wiped clean," or the old demands of the miners remained effective; whether the new agreement to be reached should date from the formal proclamation of peace, which might be two or three months hence, or immediately from its acceptance by the conference.

The telegram sent yesterday by Thomas T. Brewster, head of the coal operators of the central competitive district, to acting President Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, in which he asked for a conference, "to negotiate a contract to be in force upon the termination of the contract now in effect," is a case in point. It is suggested in some quarters that this message set down what amounted to a demand by the operators on this point in advance of the conference, and there was some resentment at the Department of Labor. Certainly it was not well received by labor leaders.

Holds Public Interest Paramount.

The Government has made it plain that in its action in connection with the coal strike it did not move in behalf of the coal operators, but purely in the interests of the public, and with no purpose of putting the operators in a position of domination when negotiations are resumed.

So far as it participates in the conference now to be held, it is understood to be the determination of the Government, through its representatives, to see that the public interest is held paramount.

Attorney General Palmer said today that while he realized that the work of the Department of Justice was largely concluded as regarded the settlement of the strike, it still had an interest in what took place in seeing that developments did not adversely affect the cost of living. This was taken to indicate that Mr. Palmer would not view with complacence any jump in coal prices, following an agreement on wages and hours, which might seem to him unwarranted and unfair.

As to the general situation Mr. Palmer said that he expected an early resumption of something approximating normal coal production. The recent action of the Government, he said, followed by what he termed the "manly acquiescence" of the officials of the United Mine Workers of America, will make for industrial peace in the country."

Secretary of Labor Wilson simply expressed the belief that a satisfactory settlement of the differences would be accomplished.

The question of removing the Government's maximum prices on coal was being considered today. Attorney General Palmer expressed the belief that these prices might be retained, at least until the conference has completed its work. On the other hand Cyrus Guernsey, Assistant Fuel Administrator, said that the Fuel Administration officials here had recommended to Dr. Garfield that the maximum prices be removed as soon as there had been a substantial increase in production. By a substantial increase, he said, he meant an increase to about 70 per cent.

Mr. Guernsey said that in making the recommendation he did not expect that there would be any increase in the cost to the consumer. In fact, he looked for a break in prices due to the fact that consumers had laid in heavy stocks of coal not only during October, when the danger of a strike was imminent, but throughout the Summer.

Hints Releasing More Coal.

The Railroad Administration decided to loosen restrictions on the distribution of coal where conditions make this course appear to be advisable. Production has now reached about 10 per cent. and it is expected that there will be a steady increase. The Railroad Administration made this statement:

"The Railroad Administration, under authority from the Fuel Administrator having on Oct. 31 began to make diversions in accordance with the priority list set up by the Fuel Administrator on bituminous coal, which the railroads had in their possession, since that time has been supplying coal to the railroads, public utilities, retail dealers and the other consumers on the Fuel Administrator's priority list. The strike order having been rescinded, the Railroad Administration has now completed plans which will be made effective immediately for releasing coal held under the authority of the Fuel Administrator just as rapidly as additional coal is produced. There is some shortage of coal in the southwest, and these needs will be cared for at once, coal now being in movement to that region.

"The object of diverting the coal in the possession of the railroads was to continue the operation of the railroads which were first on the Fuel Administrator's priority list, and at the same time to supply needed coal to other domestic consumers. The need for coal by consumers other than the railroads began to be felt on Nov. 6, although before that time some coal had been released on a showing that it was needed.

"In the period from Nov. 1 to Nov. 9, inclusive, a total of 2,656,900 tons of bituminous coal, or an average of 663,575 tons per day, was released by the railroads to consumers other than railroads, while during the same period a total of 1,443,100 tons of bituminous coal was loaded, or an average of 360,525 tons per day, the coal released to domestic consumers other than railroads in that period being an excess of 1,213,800 tons, or an average excess of 303,050 tons per day above the amount of bituminous coal loaded in the same period."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12, (Associated Press.)—The order of the Fuel Administration fixing maximum prices for bituminous coal and limits was modified by Administrator Garfield tonight in so far as applicable to such coal shipped on or after Nov. 13, under a contract which was entered into prior to Oct. 30. No such shipments the prices fixed in the contract may be charged.

LA GUARDIA GAINS 10 VOTES.

Canvassers Find Returns Badly Muddled in Fourth District.

After examining the ballots cast at the recent election in nine Assembly districts of Manhattan, the Aldermen from New York County, sitting as a Board of Canvassers in the City Hall, yesterday credited F. H. La Guardia, successful candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, with eleven votes over the unofficial returns. In the count he made a net gain over Robert L. Moran, his Democratic opponent, of ten votes as compared with the early unofficial returns.

In the Fourth Assembly District the canvassers found that in nearly every election district election inspectors had failed to comply with the law. Many tally sheets were not signed; others were not added up correctly. Many votes apparently were missing. The returns were so badly mixed that Alderman John McCourt, Chairman of the Canvassing Board, appointed a committee to examine the inspectors Friday. There are twenty-three election districts in this Assembly district. In order to straighten out the tangle an order may have to be obtained from the Supreme Court to open the ballot boxes and recount the entire vote.

It is expected the canvass will be completed by Saturday.

RE-ELECT JOHN H. WALSH.

Board of Education Votes to Retain Associate Superintendent.

John H. Walsh was re-elected Associate Superintendent of Schools yesterday by the Board of Education by a vote of 5 to 2. His term of office is six years. He has held over in the office since Sept. 30.

The vote for Director of Reference, Research and Statistics, for which position the Board of Superintendents in May last nominated Eugene F. Nifenecker, Assistant Director of the Bureau, resulted in two votes for him, three against and two blanks. President Prall held that Mr. Nifenecker's nomination had been rejected. An appeal from Mr. Prall's decision resulted in his being upheld.

The vote for Director of Lectures, to succeed the late Dr. Henry M. Leipziger, showed three ballots for Ernest L. Crandall, President of the Federation of Teachers and the nominee of the Board of Superintendents, three votes against him and one blank. Mr. Prall decided that Mr. Crandall's nomination had also been rejected. No appeal was taken from this decision. The result is that the Board of Superintendents will be called upon to make other nominations for these two offices.

APPRENTICE PLAN REVIVED.

Long Island City Firm Believes It Will Solve Mush Labor Unrest.

Brewster & Co., a Long Island City manufacturing firm employing several thousand persons, last evening announced that it had made arrangements to apprentice boys from 16 to 18 years old, and teach them the trade of wood body builders, after the same plan that was in vogue many years ago.

"We have decided that this new plan, which is but reviving a system that was generally practiced years ago, will solve much of the labor unrest of today," said a representative of the Brewster firm last evening. "The difficulty with many of the employees of today is that they offer themselves for work which they cannot do successfully because of lack of skill, and then both they and their employers become dissatisfied. If the young man of this time will serve as apprenticeship to a good trade they will be competent workmen, and then they will be able to do their work satisfactorily to themselves and to their employers, they will earn competent pay, and knowing how to do one trade well they will not be inclined to drift about from establishment to establishment, seeking to work at anything that gives promise of giving them more money than they have been earning."

CONGRESSMEN URGE ACTION

last, ample laws under which these criminals can be punished. They have flooded the country with literature inciting resistance to legal and governmental authority. Under the statutes of the United States this is punishable by six years' imprisonment and $10,000 fine. Most of their leaders are aliens. Under the Federal statutes aliens who advocate Bolshevism, which means forcible communism, or who teach the doctrines of anarchy, are subject to deportation.

Laws Practically Dead Letters.

"These laws have been practically dead letters. A few feeble moves have been made by the Administration, but no comprehensive, drastic, and complete program which would sweep the country clean of these enemies of society has been either conceived or carried out.

"Force, unfortunate as a resort to this method may be, is the only means of dealing with Bolsheviki. It is the only argument that appeals to them. They choose force voluntarily as a means of political and economic decision. That which they advocate should be applied to them in legal form by the Federal Government.

"Of course, the States can also do a great deal, but many States have been quite negligent in this respect. The fact of the case is the State has fundamental jurisdiction in the matter. The Federal Government has jurisdiction only in the protection of its own authority, whereas the jurisdiction of the States extends to the full police powers of government."

The Centralia outrage was interpreted in the House as an attempt to bring on an armed revolution in the United States.

"I have seen these damable curs and traitors boring in for years past," said Representative Albert Johnson, Republican, of Washington, Chairman of the Committee on Immigration, "and they have pretty well accomplished their purpose. We in the Pacific Northwest have long seen this coming. We have known what just such men as Victor Berger have meant when they were preaching revolution to be fought with bullets and not with ballots and when they have advised workingmen to have rifles and ammunition in their homes."

"In the face of all this," asked Representative Blanton, Democrat, of Texas, "why do we not stand up and write a law that will prevent the recurrence of such happenings in our country?"

"I am glad the gentleman asked me that question," Mr. Johnson replied. "When it comes to these revolutionists, socialists, syndicalists, dynamiters, and bomb throwers breaking down organized labor as expressed and known as the American Federation of Labor, it will be a sorry day for the United States."

Mr. Johnson read a telegram he had received from Hoquiam Post No. 16, American Legion, recounting the "wanton and deliberate murder of four comrades by lawless I. W. W.'s" and demanding immediate and final action by Congress in curbing all enemies of our country and flag. "A vacillating programme can no longer be tolerated in dealing with the murderers of our comrades," the telegram added.

In a message of sympathy to Mayor Rogers, of Centralia, which Mr. Johnson also read, he said:

"Their deaths will arouse the loyal people of the United States as nothing else could have done. This country must be purged of its seditionists and revolutionists to the last one, and if this means war, then the quicker war is declared on them the better."

To Advertise Sixth Avenue.

The Sixth Avenue Merchants' Association, the purpose of which is to "bring back" Sixth Avenue as a shopping district, held its second meeting at the Hotel McAlpin last evening. The body was formed a week ago, and now numbers, about sixty members, composed largely of retail clothing and furniture merchants. It plans an extensive advertising campaign to help the avenue.

BUTLER ASKS NATION TO STAMP OUT REDS

"Summon All the Resources of America for a War at Home," He Says.

AMERICANIZATION NEEDED

Congressman Husted Criticises Immigration Bureau—Says Bolshevist Sympathizers Are in It.

A warning that the immediate suppression of the constantly spreading disorders, inspired by Bolshevism, is a business that for America should take precedence now over everything else was sounded last night by Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, in a speech at the tenth anniversary dinner of the Westchester County Chamber of Commerce, at the Commodore Hotel.

"The way to break down the endeavors of the Bolsheviki and the I. W. W.'s," said President Butler, "is to repeat the great demonstration of 1917 and summon all the resources of America, not for a war overseas, but for a war at home. That is the task."

The speaker's words were cheered to the echo by the three hunired men and women present, who rose from their chairs to emphasize their approval.

Following President Butler, Augustus Thomas, the playwright, and James W. Husted, Congressman from the Twenty-fifth New York District, continued the attack against those who advocated the principles of class rule in America. Mr. Thomas declared that the forcing of the prohibition amendment into the Constitution against the will of the people had sowed a spirit of revolt throughout the far Western States. Congressman Husted asserted that the laxity of our immigration laws and the fact that many Commissioners of Immigration were inoculated with a virus of Bolshevism were responsible for the existence in this country of the 50,000 or more men and women who were spreading night and day the ideas of Soviet government.

The Question of the Hour.

In the beginning of his speech, President Butler declared that the question of the hour was the putting down of disorders designed to overthrow our government.

"It is a question," he said, "that rises above all politics. At this very American ideals, when we have shown how stoutly a peace-loving country could throw itself into a world war in support of a just cause, at this very moment we hear the hiss of a snake in the grass. It is a menace directed at the things that America holds most dear; not at individuals, but at principles.

"These principles are now scorned and attacked to the end that things undreamed of by Americans shall be substituted throughout our land. Is there any danger of such a substitution? Not the least, for when the American people understand that what is going on in several different sections of our land is not the ordinary difference of opinion but openly organized and highly organized assaults on the foundations of our government they will do precisely what Massachusetts did in the last election."

President Butler continued to say that Americans were so notgriously good-tempered in dealing with radicalism that they some times run unnecessary risks.

"But they cannot run the risks this time," he said, "for it means the destruction of America. There should be no doubt about the character of the attacks. They are directed at the doctrines of our liberty. We must have it clearly understood that there can be no combination of capital so wealthy, there can be no combination of labor so powerful that it can speak to the United States Government as an equal."

Necessity of Americanization.

President Butler then spoke of the necessity of a nation-wide campaign of Americanization among the aliens who came to our shores. He pointed out that while, fortunately for this country, the peoples of Western Europe were generally well acquainted with the principles of self-government, there were thousands who came yearly from lands where Government meant to them only oppression.

"Do you realize," he said, "that within a mile or two of this room there could be counted fifty meetings, each attended by from a score to a hundred men and women, where everything for which this country stands is being attacked?

"The way to break down the endeavors of these Bolsheviki and I. W. W.'s is to repeat the great demonstration of 1917 and summon all the resources of America not for a war overseas but for a war at home. That is the task. The lovers of America outnumber her enemies now a thousand to one. Shall we wait while these enemies multiply themselves through our neglect and overconfidence?

"It takes precedence over business and profession these days, the defense of America and her institutions. It calls us across every line, party or religious. We must make the appeal for the display by all citizens of the sturdy Americanism and personal courage of Grover Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt."

Congressman Husted spoke of the fact that outside the Congressional Record, little has been done by Congress to suppress Bolshevism. He said that there were some 11,000,000 aliens here, of whom 50,000 were Bolsheviki, people in sympathy with the Soviet rule in Russia.

Immigration Bureau Criticised.

"These people have come here to overthrow the Government," he said. "I must say that our Bureau of Immigration has not been active in deporting such people. You cannot blame officials of the bureau, for many of them are themselves thoroughly in sympathy with Bolshevism."

Here the Congressman told a story related to him by the Collector of the Port at Norfolk of how the steamship Omak arrived there with fifty of its passengers admittedly propagandists of the Soviet Government.

"The Collector turned these men and women over to the Commissioner of Immigration," said Congressman Husted, "to hold them until he could get a warrant for their arrest. The Commissioner paid no attention to his request and turned these dangerous aliens loose in the city of Norfolk. The Collector then got a posse of citizens, who rounded up these aliens on board and found seventy-five revolvers and fifty Reds among them. The Collector succeeded in getting them deported.

"He then went to Washington to protest against the action of the Commissioner of Immigration. Although he was backed by a prominent Democratic United States Senator, he could not get the Commissioner discharged, only succeeding in having him transferred to another part of the country.

New Sedition Law Suggested.

"I think we should have a new sedition law. We should not permit any man, either in the press or on the public platform, to attack the fundamentals of our Government, or to advocate class rule. When a mission comes from Russia to spread the propaganda of such a rule as has been forced on the Russian people, I think there should be means by which the authorities could stop them. An American citizen who preaches such a doctrine, I think, should go to jail. An alien should be deported."

Augustus Thomas devoted most of his address to pointing out that the incorporation of the Eighteenth Amendment in the Constitution was a violation of the principles of our liberty.

Mr. Thomas asserted that it was his belief that the United States Supreme Court would find this amendment to be unconstitutional.

The President of the Chamber of Commerce, Collin Armstrong, presided.

HOPE FOR SETTLEMENT OF TOLEDO CAR DISPUTE

Head of the Traction Company Arrives for a Conference with the Mayor.

TOLEDO, Nov. 13.—Quick settlement of the street car problem here was predicted today when Henry I. Doherty of New York, head of the Doherty interests, which until last Saturday at midnight controlled Toledo traction affairs, made a hurried trip here from Kansas City and called on Mayor Cornell Schreiber.

Mr. Doherty told the Mayor he was in the city in an effort to arrive at some definite understanding. As a result of the visit a conference of traction officials, the Railroads Committee of the City Council, and representatives of the House who voted a week ago yesterday to oust the car company, was called for tomorrow.

It was learned today that the Kansas City Street Railway Company had made an offer to Mr. Doherty for the purchase of the Toledo rolling stock, which is parked on side tracks along the shores of Lake Erie in Michigan.

"The cars are for sale if we cannot make Toledo see our point," Mr. Doherty said.

Headed by W. B. Fitzgerald, Vice President of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, the carmen held a meeting today and decided that the Toledo Railways and Light Company would be held to the agreement made with the carmen's union last April and made binding for one year. The carmen adopted resolutions insisting that the men receive pay for the time they were out of employment on account of being "innocent victims of this undesirable condition which has forced them out of work."

Another difficulty confronted the city today when it was discovered that the street lighting contract with the Toledo Railways and Light Company expired several years ago, and that the company had been lighting on a day-to-day basis.

It was hinted in official circles that Toledo might be obliged also to find some other means of lighting its streets if the city and company were unable to reach an agreement soon.

APPOINTS MR. ELKUS JUDGE.

Governor Names Him for Vacancy in Court of Appeals.

ALBANY, Nov. 12.—Governor Smith today appointed Abram I. Elkus of New York as an Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals to succeed the late Judge William H. Cuddeback. Mr. Elkus's term, under the appointment, will expire Dec. 31, 1920.

The appointment of Abram I. Elkus will bring to the bench of the Court of Appeals a lawyer who has been active in almost all departments of the bar. He is a Columbia man and was admitted to the bar in 1888, when he was 31 years old. He was elected by the Federal Judges of the New York district to prosecute fraudulent bankrupts, a work in which he met with noteworthy success. He established the precedent that perjury in bankruptcy proceedings is punishable as contempt. The Merchants' Association engaged him to promote legislation fair to the commercial interests of the State and he has handled a good deal of litigation affecting the association. His practice before the United States Supreme Court has included many important cases.

He served as Ambassador to Turkey from July, 1916, to March, 1917. While at Constantinople he contracted spotted fever. He was active in the first Wilson campaign and in promoting Democratic tariff ideas. Mr. Elkus directed the successful campaign of Governor Smith a year ago. Since the creation of the State Reconstruction Commission he has served as Chairman, advocating plans to relieve the housing situation. As far back as last August he was mentioned as likely to succeed Judge Cuddeback.

Mr. Elkus is the President of the Executive Council of the Free Synagogue and is active in the philanthropic endeavors of his co-religionists.

DIVORCE FOR MRS. COWLES.

Daughter of Sir Arthur Elliott to Get Interlocutory Decree.

Special to The New York Times.

MT. VERNON, N. Y., Nov. 12.—After hearing testimony today in the uncontested divorce action of Mrs. Vera Elliott Cowles, daughter of Sir Arthur Elliott, of England, against Edward B. Cowles, a wealthy resident of Rye, on the sound, with offices in the Grand Central Terminal, Supreme Court Justice Young at White Plains stated that he would grant an interlocutory decree.

The couple were married in London in 1912 and have one child. They separated in 1916, and Mrs. Cowles testified that her husband has not contributed a cent to her support since that time. Two private detectives and an usher who took part in the wedding in London testified in behalf of Mrs. Cowles.

The detectives and the usher entered a hotel in 72d Street, they said, and after the latter had gained entrance to the room of Cowles, the sleuths pushed their way in. The witness said that Cowles, who was in company with an unknown woman, was very indignant. Three days later Cowles, who was a captain in the United Sites Army, was served with the divorce complaint.

Edward B. Cowles was graduated from Yale in 1910 and is a member of the Apawamis Club. His home was Orchard Cottage, Rye, N. Y.

SKUNKS BESIEGE GOSHEN.

Promenade Main Street Until Dispersed by Entire Police Force.

Special to The New York Times.

GOSHEN, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Skunks are so numerous in Goshen that the entire police force was called on by the residents Tuesday night to come to their rescue and shoot two of the animals that were promenading up Main Street.

Goshen boys who have been waiting for Nov. 10, when the law went off of these animals, have been rewarded in trapping the largest number in the memory of the oldest inhabitants. The pelts are worth $7 each.

WOOD GAINS IN ST. LOUIS.

Republican Leaders Impressed by Recent Meeting with Him in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 12.—Unusual activity on behalf of Major Gen. Leonard Wood for the Republican nomination for the Presidency has developed in the Republican organization in St. Louis since the visit Mayor Kell, Chairman Schmoll, of the City Committee; Circuit Clerk Goldstein and other St. Louis Republicans made to General Wood in Chicago on Monday.

The local party leaders, while insisting today that they were not openly committed to any Presidential candidate so far, expressed themselves as greatly impressed by General Wood. The Mayor and Mr. Schmoll privately said they would support him.

HELD IN ISAACS KILLING.

Brooklyn Men Surrender as Witnesses in Slaying of Laundryman.

John Hyland of 26 Bank Street and Charles Glass of 59 Division Street, Brooklyn, were held last night at Police Headquarters as material witnesses in connection with the killing of Harry Isaacs, a laundryman, in his store at 88 Washington Place, on Nov. 1. Hyland is a former pugilist.

The police said that both men surrendered to the District Attorney yesterday afternoon, and made statements to Assistant District Attorney Joyce in charge of the Homicide Bureau. The voluntary appearance of the men yesterday was the first step in the case since Isaacs was shot.

STRIKES HERE HELP ENGLAND'S TRADE

Gets Benefit in Foreign Markets of Holdup of Our Exports.

INCREASE IN PRODUCTION

Her Adverse Balance About $600,000,000, American Chamber of Commerce in London Estimates.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The American Chamber of Commerce in London, in its report for October, noted a gradual revival of British production, especially of coal, and an increase of trade in British foreign markets, particularly as strikes continue to cripple America's export trade.

According to a leading London bank, the Chamber's report says, Great Britain's "invisible exports," consisting of returns from foreign investment, &c., are estimated at almost $5,000,000,000 for 1919, as compared with less than $3,000,000,000 in 1913. The adverse balance of imports over exports, the report adds, will, however, result in an estimated net adverse balance for the year of about $600,000,000, as against a favorable pre-war balance of $1,100,000,000.

The Chamber urges the ready reception of credit loans in the United States to enable foreign countries to purchase American goods. It declares the present situation in Great Britain is uneasy, owing to the delay in her essential imports from America, caused by the dock workers' strike in New York.

The plan for a world union of Chambers of Commerce, creating a "Business League of Nations," which the American Chamber of Commerce devised some time ago, appears to have been favorably received in England. British business circles followed closely reports of what transpired at the recent Inter-Trade Conference at Atlantic City, the Chamber says, and the British feel their part in the conference was to align themselves with the United States in assisting reconstruction of European nations rather than to seek credits or trade assistance for themselves.

The American Chamber announces it has again protected American trade interests by securing from the Indian Government a concession allowing imports into India of American dyes and dyestuffs, recently prohibited.

COST OF STRIKE DELAY.

Cunard Line Lists Its Extra Food Bill for Mauretania.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The Mauretania as a consequence of the longshoremen's strike in New York took thirteen days to do the trip from New York to Plymouth, having to call at Halifax for coal. As a result, nearly 2,000 passengers, whose fares are based on a five-day voyage, had to be fed by the company free of charge for nearly eight days.

Officials estimate that during the eight days free board the passengers and crew consumed 40 oxen, 10 calves, 120 sheep, 60 lambs, 2,000 chickens, 90 geese, 250 ducks, 150 turkeys, 120 pigs, 200 pheasants, 400 pigeons, 250 partridges, 250 grouse, 800 quail, and 200 snipe, to say nothing of 5 turtles, 70,000 eggs, 8,000 pounds of fish, 200 boxes of melons, 90 kegs of butter, and 300 barrels of flour.

JANITORS THREATEN STRIKE

7,600 in Chicago Demand Better Quarters and Higher Pay.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—This city is threatened with a strike of janitors. William F. Quesse, President of the Chicago Flat Janitors' Union, said tonight that his 7,000 janitors will be on a strike soon to enforce their demands for a raise from $3.50 a month for taking care of each apartment in a building to $5 per month and for "better living quarters."

The Chicago janitors insist on quarters on or above the street level.

Many of the present rates owners of apartment buildings assert that the janitors are receiving from $120 to $175 per month and free living quarters, free heat, and free electric light and gas. The owners say that the increase demanded would raise janitors' wages to $200 or $230 a month.

The flat owners have announced that they cannot afford to pay the demands.

SETTLES MINISTERS' SUIT.

London Daily News to Pay Cabinet Members Who Charged Libel.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Four members of the Cabinet, Austen Chamberlain, Sir Eric Geddes, Sir Auckland Geddes and Walter Hume Long, took the witness stand in the Lord Chief Justice's court today and publicly denied statements printed by The Daily News with reference to their holding shares in various public companies, in consequence of which they brought libel suits against the newspaper.

After their testimony the announcement was made that the suits had been settled on terms arranged outside the court. The proprietors of The Daily News agreed to pay to each of the plaintiffs 250 guineas, and also the costs.

Writs were issued on July 30 against The London Daily News on behalf of the four Cabinet members for alleged libel. The specifications concerned comments on charges that the complainants possessed shares in various Russian mining and development companies.

SHIPS FOR ARGENTINA.

$100,000,000 Loan to be Largely Spent on Merchant Fleet.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 12.—Dispatches from Madrid say that the proposed loan to the Argentine Government by the Bank of Spain, negotiations for which are now in progress, will probably amount to $100,000,000.

The money will be used, according to present plans, for the construction in Spanish shipyards of a great fleet of merchant vessels for Argentina, to develop the country's oil fields and reduce the floating debt.

CROUCH DENIES HE ELOPED.

Naval Architect, Back from California, Will Fight Charge.

MT. VERNON, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Deputy Sheriff Benjamin I. Crawford and Vincent Cashin returned to White Plains today from Oakland, Cal., having in custody Albert W. Crouch, United States naval architect, whom they arrested on a warrant charging him with abandoning his wife and two children in Yonkers in June last. It is alleged that he eloped with Mrs. Violet Deegan, wife of Major William D. E. Deegan of the United States Army.

Crouch is going to make a legal battle against the charge, as he asserts that he did not abandon his wife.

Poles to Get Skoda War Material.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—According to advices received today from Warsaw the Czechoslovak Government has declared its readiness to deliver to the Polish Government the Skoda factories' war material, the possession of which has been one of the irritating problems in the relations between the two countries. Poland regards this measure as a guarantee by the Czechoslovaks of their friendly attitude in the Teschen dispute.

SHIP BRINGS HOME 103 AMERICAN DEAD

Transport Dwinsk Arrives with Bodies of Soldiers Slain in Russian Campaign.

The army transport Lake Dwinsk arrived late last night from Archangel, by way of Brest, with the bodies of 103 soldiers who died in Russia. It reached Pier 4, Hoboken, just before midnight. No one was allowed on the pier last night by army officials.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 o'clock this morning. The pier has been draped with flags and the entrance from River Street has a large American flag over it, reversed, with long black streamers on each side.

The services will be attended by relatives of the dead soldiers, who have arrived from Michigan, the headquarters of the 339th Regiment, to which most of the dead belonged; members of the American Legion, and a Congressional Committee. United States Senator James W. Wadsworth of this State will deliver an address and Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan will deliver a tribute on behalf of the American Legion. Major Ralph Duff will speak for the State of Michigan and James A. Martin for the city of Detroit.

Among the Senators present will be George E. Chamberlain of Oregon; J. C. W. Beckham of Kentucky, Medill McCormick, Illinois; Atlee Pomerene, Ohio, and Truman H. Newberry, Michigan.

Members of the National House of Representatives will include Thomas F. Smith, New York; Charles A. Nichols, Michigan; William E. Mason, Illinois; Frank E. Doremus, Michigan; Charles R. Crisp, Georgia; W. J. Hulings, Pennsylvania, and Henry C. Osborne, California.

The Russian representatives will be Captain V. Zishniski, Assistant Military Attaché of the Russian Embassy; Michael Oustinoff, Consul General, and the Rev. Peter Popoff of St. Nicholas Russian Cathedral, Manhattan.

In addition to the bodies of the soldiers the Lake Daraga brought back the bodies of ten seamen of the United States navy, which were placed on board at Brest. The names are: F. R. Milton, Frank P. Blair, H. W. Grant, Charles W. Mann, Percy Hodge, Edward Woodworth, J. P. Kerr, William Kitts, O. M. Steury and R. Richardson. No details as to how the seamen died or their ratings were sent in the advanced list to the Navy Department.

WEST VIRGINIA SEIZES CONSIGNMENT OF ARMS

Governor Takes Action to Prevent Rifles and Ammunition from Reaching Miners.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 12.—Deputy sheriffs, acting on an executive warrant issued by Governor Cornwell, seized a quantity of arms and ammunition today in the express office at Dawes, a mining village in the Cabin Creek District.

An examination of the ammunition disclosed the presence of some 300 soft-nosed dumdum bullets among the regular cartridges.

The arms were consigned to a miner living in Dawes, and were received at the express office yesterday. Nine rifles and 1,000 rounds of ammunition made up the shipment, it was announced at Governor Cornwell's office.

The rifles, which were taken to the Governor's office, proved, upon examination by Colonel W. F. Harrell, commanding the Federal troops here, to be the regulation army pattern, and the steel jacketed bullets in the ammunition cases were the type used in regulation army rifles and machine guns.

MORE STEEL MILLS REOPEN.

Carnegie Steel Reports Sharon and Farrell Plants at Normal.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 12.—Important changes in the steel strike situation developed today with the announcement that the Sharon and Farrell plants of the Carnegie Steel Company were operating full time with a full force, and the Cambria Steel Company at Johnstown would reopen its plants Monday.

The last addition to the Sharon works was blast furnace No. 4, which had been shut down by the strike for eight weeks and which was blown in today. It was also stated that out of fourteen blast furnaces in the Shenango Valley only one was now idle.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, Nov. 12.—The Republic Iron and Steel Company announced today that production is 100 per cent. in its DeForest sheet mills at Niles. The plant has ten hot mills and its 1,200 workers, members of the Amalgamated Association, have a contract with the company.

IBANEZ ANSWERS ATTACKS.

Author Says European Historians Criticise Spain Unfairly.

Blasco Ibanez, the Spanish author, spoke before the Mexican Union and American Friendship Club last night at the Hotel Pennsylvania, and took issue on the attacks that were publicly hurled at him following his appearance before the Institute of Arts and Sciences of Columbia University on Saturday. He attributes these attacks to a pro-German effort to discredit him because of his intense sympathy for the Allies.

"One question asked," said the speaker, "was 'Why did Spain come to Mexico to disturb the Indians?' That question seems rather irrelevant, for it might be asked any nation in the world that has acquired territories or branched out in new countries. One might just as well ask, 'Why were the Indians of Manhattan disturbed?' History has treated Spain badly, largely because explorers dwelt upon atrocities in a century conspicuous for atrocities, and we are now living to have these records hurled back at us. It is most unfortunate that such records have been written into the annals of Spain, and it is even more unfortunate that the historians of modern Europe are showing an unfair tendancy to criticise Spain's history."

Senor Ibanez said that it was most important that Spain ally herself with the United States now, for Spanish interests were world-wide, and together the countries could accomplish much. While a Spaniard by birth, Senor Ibanez said, he was not a Spaniard in ideals, for he believed only in a republic.

CHAOS IN TRANSIT DIVORCE.

Hedley Predicts Trouble if Subways Relinquish Elevated Lines.

In his weekly talk with reporters yesterday Frank Hedley, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, said he did not know whether the company would be able to pay the Manhattan Elevated Railroad Company the quarterly dividend of $1,050,000 due Jan. 1.

Discussing what would follow a separation of the subway and elevated lines, he said the systems had been fused in such a manner that it would be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to separate them without great confusion in traffic, a falling off in the efficiency of operation, and a double fare at points where the old lines of the Manhattan company joined with the extensions built by the Interborough.

The Interborough, he said, owns the third tracks, the extension on the west side to a connection with the Putnam Division of the New York Central Railroad system, the connection between the elevated and the subway on the east side, and the service across the Queensboro Bridge.

STRIKING PUPILS PUNISHED.

Auburn Armistice Day Celebrators Suspended and Must Write Essay.

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Two hundred and fifty boy and girl students of the High School who went on strike Tuesday to celebrate Armistice Day were suspended by Principal R. G. Wilson when they returned to school this morning. They comprised 75 per cent. of the senior class and one-third of the entire student body.

Principal Wilson told them that they could return to school on Monday and present an essay covering the true meaning of Armistice Day, why they went on strike and what they believed they had achieved.

The opinion of the city at large seems to be evenly divided over the right or wrong of the students' act, which was instigated by the girls. They said since the school had not prepared to celebrate the day with appropriate exercises, they would have their own celebration.

Navy Enlistment Age Limit Raised.

The Navy Recruiting Bureau here announced yesterday that the age limit for enlistment had been raised from 17 to 18 years, the ruling to take effect immediately. The announcement added that "these applicants who are 17 years of age and who have already been made a specific promise of enlistment will be accepted if they produce their parents' or guardians' consent." The navy is seeking men to take a four months' course in meteorology at the school at Pensacola, Fla., and those who have had a grammar school course or its equivalent are eligible for admission.

OFFERS £200,000,000.

Robertson Tells of Hugs Fund for British Housing.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The Daily Mail says that Ian Robertson, a Scotchman who said he was acting for a trust composed of Scottish and American millionaires whose names he did not disclose, offered £200,000,000 to the Prime Ministry yesterday at Downing Street for investment in housing at a rate below the current market figure. Mr. Robertson was introduced by Lord Willoughby de Broke. Sir Warren Fisher, Secretary to the Treasury, was present at the interview.

The Daily Mail adds:

"This is not the first time Mr. Robertson has offered these mysterious millions. During the Summer he offered large loans to Birmingham and other English municipalities. In August he authorized a company with which Lord Willoughby de Broke is connected to offer £150,000,000 for housing in Ireland. Dublin asked for one million to go on with, but the sum has never been forthcoming."

Belgium to Get German Coal Soon.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 11.—The delivery of coal which the peace treaty compels Germany to make to Belgium will soon be begun. One hundred and fifty thousand tons from the Ruhr Basin will be dispatched by sea monthly to Antwerp.

The Camera Department

The art of "making pictures" is almost as antient as the human race; but in its essentially modern guise of photography it is an art in which everyone may become expert.

A camera, therefore, may be regarded as an ideal Christmas gift; for it opens up an endless vista of pleasurable interludes in the humdrum of everyday existence. Practically every type of camera that the amateur could desire may be found in this Department; and, in addition, all the necessary addenda of the photographic outfit, including films and albums.

In the same Department are field glasses, binoculars, telescopes, magnifying and diminishing glasses, reading glasses and microscopes; thermometers, barometers, compasses and pedometers; pen knives, razors and razor strops.

Dangerous Night Air

Some malicious spirit attributed the freshness of country air to the fact that the farmers kept their windows closed.

For generations people were told that night air was dangerous—hundreds of thousands of people still believe it.

Very slowly the truth will be passed on until in a few generations even the most timorous will be unafraid of ventilation.

Unsponsored education is bound to travel at a snail's pace.

Now suppose some one had fresh air for sale—what an educational campaign there would be! What deadly parallels with reeking, germ-laden air pictured to the left, and on the right the intoxicating joy of mountain freshness with Blank's system of ventilation.

Nobody is "pushing" fresh air—there is no money in it.

On the other hand, Bolshevism is being "pushed," for there is money in it for the agitator.

Some day the nation will be educated in public policy by the same methods of advertising that are employed so successfully in commerce.

VEILING FASHION

Veils are the Will o' Wisps of the mode. Whether you draw them back with saucy trimness under your chin or with airy unconcern let them float on every merry breeze that blows, your veils may either spoil the smartest costume or give to it a chic and dash and distinction.

The airy logic of Chantilly

The cleverest hat might wear with nonchalant charm a veil of Chantilly lace. Our straight veils of this type, patterned delicately with tiny fairy leaves and sprays, may be had for $1.59. All the favored colors are here, wood browns, or silver grays, or, to suit the mood of any street costume, other colors, too.

Four corners in veils

Our square lace veils, gifted with versatile talents for graceful folds and floating trickeries, may be had in a hexagon mesh, embroidered lightly with a scroll border. There are, too, lovely veils rich with scattered acorns and leaves across their sheer lengths, and bordered with intricate traceries. These are priced from $2.24 to $14.96.

Sophisticated spider webs

Any hat would be the smarter for being caught in the web of one of the new mesh veils. Such irresistible ones as we are showing—in all the latest combinations of color. They are dotted with tiny puffs of Chenille—that is a veil in taupe is covered with dots in Copenhagen blue, or a navy blue veil wears dots in King's blue. These dots come in all sizes, to suit your most exacting fancy. And in color combinations too numerous to list. They are priced from .74 to $1.29.

CALLS AMERICANISM KEYNOTE OF HOUR

National Master Tells Grangers Class Selfishness Must Be Destroyed.

DEFENDS PROPERTY RIGHTS

Condemns Demand for Shorter Hours As Indefensible—Wants More Rigid Immigration Tests.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 12.—Members of the National Grange were aroused to enthusiasm this afternoon by the "Americanism" address of National Master Oliver Wilson of Peoria, Ill., delivered at the fifty-third annual convention.

"The keynote of the hour, whether we face our national problems or consider our national blessings, is found in a single sentence—we must all be Americans together," said the Grange Master. "There is today too much tendency among our people toward class endeavor, class thinking, class legislation. The interests of the nation demand the destruction of such unworthy ideas, whether they be hoisted by a labor union or by a group of farmers.

"In the final analysis, the economic, industrial and social troubles of the times simmer down to simple selfishness—almost every man is out to 'get his' regardless of how his neighbors fare.

"Instead of joining in the hue and cry of these chaotic times against all investment, all industry, and all property ownership, the imperative call of the hour is for the protection of these sacred rights, without whose preservation no republic can endure and no people can prosper. If conditions force us to a distinct lineup in these directions, then the sharper the line is drawn the better—there can be no middle ground; and perhaps the sooner we are compelled to settle this issue the better for us all.

"Underlying a large percentage of our nation's troubles is the fact that too many people are in America who are not of America and who never intend to be if they can help it. For the future we must demand the most rigid immigration tests at our gates, then another strict test for every day thereafter of actual Americanism.

The speaker held that unless the people awakened to the dangers that threatened, more serious catastrophes, even to the destruction of the republic, might ensue. The demand for shorter hours on the part of certain classes of labor he declared to be indefensible. On the contrary, more and harder work was the cure for many of the nation's ills.

ARREST IN BANK SHORTAGE.

Irving National Misses $20,000 and Paying Teller is Arrested.

After failure to locate $20,000 which was missing from the funds of the Irving National Bank, John Raymond McDonough, one of the bank's paying tellers, was arrested yesterday and arraigned before United States Commissioner Hitchcock, the charge against him being that he falsified an entry in his book. McDonough was held in $12,000 bail, which he furnished.

Benjamin P. De Witt, Assistant United States District Attorney, who appeared against the teller, said that the money had first been reported missing last July. The bank made every effort to locate it, thinking at first the shortage was due to a mistake somewhere. Before the money was missed, on June 25, Mr. De Witt said, McDonough had failed to enter in his accounts a check for $20,000 received from the People's Trust Company in Brooklyn, thus deceiving the examiners for the Clearing House Association.

This fact, Mr. De Witt said, was ascertained by the bank's detectives last Summer while they were searching for the $20,000. McDonough denies all knowledge of the $20,000 and says he does not remember withholding the check. He lives in Brooklyn.

HINES FIGHTS ESCH BILL ON FINANCIAL GROUNDS

Says That It Will Encourage Roads to Seek Government Rather Than Private Loans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Opposition was made today by Director General Hines of the Railroad Administration to that part of the Esch bill dealing with the completion of the financial account between the railroads and the Government. Late this afternoon, while the House was still debating the Esch bill, Representative Winslow, Republican, of Massachusetts introduced a letter from Mr. Hines detailing his objections.

Under the Esch bill, (which provides legislation dealing with the future of the railways) the Government is obligated to pay to the systems the sum of about $300,000,000 due for rental during the period of Federal control. This payment is to be made at once. But the railroads have a period up to ten years in which to pay to the Government the sum of $775,000,000 due from the roads for charges on capital account. The payments are to be made in long-term promissory notes. Subtraction of the smaller sum from the larger leaves a balance due the Government of $475,000,000.

Many other objections were made by Mr. Hines. For one thing, he held that the bill as drafted might allow the railroads to pay the Government a lower rate of interest on their notes than the Government now pays for money. Mr. Hines said that the Government had to pay from 5 to 5½ per cent., and therefore he wished the flat rate of 6 per cent. fixed for the railroad notes. Another objection he made was that one paragraph of the bill did not tend to encourage the railroads to go out and borrow money from private banking institutions, but influenced them to rely upon the Government. Still another objection was that the measure did not provide working capital for the smaller roads.

The House spent the entire day debating this bill, but adjourned until tomorrow without a vote on the financial section. The House refused to deprive the President of the right to take over the transportation systems, without further authority, in case of another war. Representative Madden of Illinois, a Republican, sought to remove this power from the President's hands, but lost his motion by a vote of 90 to 22.

His amendment to place the operation of Government-owned boats, barges and tugs on inland waterways in the hands of the Shipping Board, rather than under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of War, as provided in the bill, was defeated, 61 to 21, after Chairman Esch and other members of the committee had opposed it.

RAILROAD WORKERS CONDEMN ESCH BILL

Monday, and on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock the bill was taken up for discussion with the announcement that night sessions would be held until a final vote was secured. Not a dozen members of the House, aside from the members of the committee, had read the bill when the discussion opened. That statement will not be questioned by any one.

"So far as the labor provisions of the bill are concerned, they are more vicious, because more subtle, than the labor provisions in the Cummins bill. The Cummins bill brutally announces what is in its authors' minds. They want to shackle labor and frankly say so. The men who framed the labor provisions of the Esch bill have the same object in view, but they seek to attain it through a maze of legal verbiage.

"While these labor provisions cover several pages of the bill, it is a significant fact that not one representative of organized labor was consulted in their preparation. We are convinced that the same hand that wrote the financial provisions, giving Wall Street everything it asked, also drafted the labor clauses.

"This travesty on legislation reveals the fundamental weakness of all schemes to return the roads to their former owners. The fact is that private ownership of the means of transportation has broken down. The Esch bill seeks to resuscitate it by granting outrageous increases in rates and extravagant Government subsidies. And Congress, without having read the bill, is preparing to accept what Mr. Esch and his associates on the committee have offered.

"Apparently our statesmanship is as bankrupt as our railroads.

"Labor, having studied the problem in all its phases, again submits what it contends is the common-sense solution of the problem.

"The railroads should be held under Federal control for at least two years. This will afford a thorough test of the efficiency of Government operation and will give Congress and the American people an opportunity to study this most important of issues.

"Labor is willing to accept the sober judgment of the American voters as expressed at a general election."

Conductors' Chief Wouldn't Sign.

L. E. Sheppard, Grand Chief of the Order of Railway Conductors, which is the fourth of the brotherhoods, said tonight that he had refused to sign the criticisms of the Esch bill for several reasons.

"For one thing, while I don't approve of the Esch bill, I do not believe it is worse than the Cummins bill," he said. "In addition, I do not believe that a $1,000,000,000 increase in freight rates would increase the cost of living $5,000,000,000."

The refusal of Mr. Sheppard to sign the criticism was regarded as very significant. Hereto the four brotherhoods have worked in unison on practically every issue. Mr. Sheppard's action leaves him alleged in this issue against Mr. Lee, Mr. Stone, and Mr. Shea.

THE STORY OF REVILLON FURS

Camp for the Night

A group of Revillon dog runners have just stopped to make camp. At the right is their sledge loaded with trading goods and blankets not yet unpacked. The man at the left has removed his snowshoes and is scraping the snow from his moccasin before it can melt at the camp fire and wet his feet. In the North wet feet must be avoided, as in a temperature running as low as 40 to 60 degrees below zero they might freeze unnoticed and cause the loss of a limb.

market to suffer. On the Cotton Exchange trading had to be suspended in the late afternoon, after the future options had gone down the full 200 points allowed for any single day. That market, adversely influenced by unfavorable conditions here, by the upset situation prevailing in the Liverpool market, where speculation has been brought up sharply by the action of the Bank of England in advancing its minimum rate of discount from 5 per cent. to 6 per cent., and by the fear entertained there of another advance in the bank rate, was also heavy at the opening.

After a short-lived rally it continued downward, until, shortly before the time for ending business, prices fell to the prescribed limit. At the end of the day the cotton market presented the extremely unusual spectacle of closing prices entirely based on offering figures, as the best bids for cotton contracts were well under the limit of 200 points.

The grain and other commodity markets, too, felt the influence of the movement to curb speculation. The unofficial announcement of Tuesday that speculation in foodstuffs would receive attention next week at the meeting of the Federal Reserve Advisory Council at Washington caused some concern to grain operators here, and, according to reports from Chicago, had the same effect there.

Foreign Exchange on Toboggan.

Foreign exchange prices also suffered. Demand sterling broke to a new low record of $4.10¾ to the pound, and French francs sold at 9.50, while Italian lire went to 12.85, both new low records.

Bankers who deal in foreign exchange bills said the high money rates here undoubtedly had played a part in bringing about these latest declines.

In the late afternoon there were rumors that the Clearing House Committee had met to consider the money situation. It also was reported that reconvening the Money Committee had been considered. All these rumors were denied by bankers, but it was admitted some informal conferences had been held and more probably would follow.

It was also admitted that at one time, when call money loaned at 30 per cent., the money market was "out of hand," but it was said this situation had been overcome and hope was expressed that by today the situation would be much better.

STRIKES AS FACTOR IN SLUMP.

Labor's Withdrawal of Money Has Hurt Credit Conditions.

The spectacular and almost unprecedented tightening of credit, which has sent call money on the Stock Exchange to 30 per cent., the highest quotation since the panic days of 1907, and has made bankers adopt a policy of caution under which they are said to be curtailing extensions of accommodation to all classes of borrowers, has brought forth a great clamor for "reasons and explanations." It has caused some to inquire if the Federal Reserve system is functioning as it should.

In many places there is a disposition to combat the theory that excessive speculation in the stock market has absorbed all the credit that has been frozen up in recent weeks. It is maintained that while stocks undoubtedly have taken a great deal, other influences have been at work which have cut into the available supply quite as heavily.

Among these, it is contended, is the amount of credit made unusable by the recent longshoremen's strike, and the subsequent congestion at Atlantic ports. This one factor, it is estimated by competent judges, has taken between $300,000,000 and $500,000,000 of what should be liquid funds, and the greater part of this is still tied up. Until the goods which are being financed are moved and the credits released, this is expected to be an extremely important influence in keeping credit scarce.

Another important factor is said to be the liquidation of Liberty bonds and Victory notes by strikers who found it necessary or desirable to dispose of their war bonds, either to spend the proceeds for living expenses or to make a demonstration against general credit conditions.

Sales of this kind look up large sums when the operation is carried to the extremes it is supposed to have been in the last month or six weeks. The money, coming out of the financial centres, goes into remote places and virtually is lost so far as general finance is concerned. Ultimately it may come back through various channels, but for the time being it goes without leaving a trace.

Reports from centres of labor disturbances say the miners and steel workers have been heavy sellers of war bonds, and the trend of the bond market tends to substantiate these reports. Beginning in the early Fall, there was a pronounced improvement noted in Liberty bond quotations. This rise, which was widely and favorably commented upon, lasted until late in September, and at that time the general average of war bond quotations showed an advance of something more than 2 per cent.

Then, about the time the steel strike began, the market turned, and since it has been going down more or less steadily. Yesterday Liberty bond prices were slightly lower than they were when the advance started in the early Fall.

The amount of money needed to move crops this year was greater than ever required before. The crops, while they did not come up to early expectations, have been large, and the money value has been greater than in other years. Added to this unusual demand, most of the crops were late in maturing, and this has caused so-called crop-moving funds to remain in the rural districts longer than the average period.

Financing requirements, too, have been large recently. The offerings of preferred stocks and bonds during the Summer and Fall were larger than since before the war. Only last week there was a flotation of $250,000,000 of United Kingdom bonds, which had to be financed in the market. In addition, there was the issue of $45,000,000 in French cities bonds. Several other large issues were attended to last week and the week before. These things, while they are attended to in Wall Street, can hardly be attached to the speculation in the stock market.

Not the least of the factors which tend to absorb credit is the Government's borrowings. As some officials have pointed out, the Government has "turned the corner" and is reducing its borrowings in the money market, but it still is using several hundred millions of dollars which formerly would have been available for other purposes.

LONDON SECURITIES WEAK.

Rumor of Advance in Bank Rate Causes Decline in Speculation.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Strong rumors of another advance in the bank rate which were current on the Stock Exchange yesterday and today weakened gilt-edged securities and recently active speculative issues. Nevertheless, the belief prevailed in Lombard Street that no further advance would take place in view of the serious effect upon legitimate trade. Though the rumors were accompanied by gossip that America was putting pressure to bear on the authorities in an endeavor to check speculation while such a huge debt is owing to the United States.

The six per cent. rate admittedly has been ineffective in checking speculation or in bringing as much money as had been anticipated into treasury bills. Because would-be investors in the latter are waiting to see if the rumors crystallise. It will be impossible to tell this until noon Thursday. But should seven per cent. then be imposed, it is suggested that an official statement will be made justifying such action.

Are Your Mortgages Paid in Cash on the Days Due?

There are two kinds of mortgages. The old-fashioned mortgage is seldom paid in cash at maturity. Usually it is allowed to "run past due," or the investor finds himself compelled to renew or to foreclose to get the money due him.

The first mortgage bonds, safeguarded under the Straus Plan, always have been and always must be paid promptly in cash, both principal and interest, on the days due, because definite provision is made, by the terms of the Trust Mortgage, to provide the funds for such payment.

Denominations, $1,000 and $500. Net yield, 6%, with 4% Federal Income Tax paid. Write for our booklet, "Safety and 6%," which tells in detail why these bonds have always been paid promptly. Ask for Booklet No. A-115

HUGHES TO CONDUCT TRACTION INQUIRY

Citizens' Committee Engages Jurist to Seek Solution of Financial Problems.

TO SELECT HIS OWN AIDS

Judge Mayer Promises Support to Move Launched by the Merchants' Association.

The Merchants' Association announced yesterday that a committee formed at its instance had secured the services of Charles E. Hughes, to make a thorough inquiry into the traction situation in the city with the view of finding some solution of the financial problems which threaten to destroy the transportation systems. Mr. Hughes, it was said, would have a free hand in the selection of his own assistants and of conducting the inquiry until every important fact bearing upon the situation was disclosed.

It was explained that the idea of instituting such an investigation grew out of correspondence between the association and Federal Judge Mayer who appointed the receivers of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, the New York City Railways Company and the Interborough Consolidated Company.

A letter to Judge Mayer from the association on Oct. 18 called attention to a statement of the Judge that every facility would be accorded to both public officials and civic organizations to satisfy themselves in respect to the actual financial and other conditions confronting the railroad companies. The association gathered from statements by the court that the situation was crucial.

Judge Mayer's reply confirmed this thought and suggested that the association could render service of a high value and aid the public and the court if it could carry out the following program:

1. Examine and report upon:
(a) The estimated cost for the twelve months beginning Sept. 1, 1919, of operating each of the several transit systems now under the jurisdiction of the United States District Court, including in such cost operating expenses and such other outlays as must necessarily be made to continue the operation of the several lines.
(b) The estimated revenues for each of such systems during the same period.
(c) The estimated net earnings or deficit from operation of each of such systems during the same period.
2. Through qualified engineers and accountants, check, test, verify, and report upon any valuations of the physical properties of the several traction systems which may be presented to the court, or affixed as a basis for equitably adjusting the future relations between transit corporations and the public.
3. Make a study of the transit field, with relation to existing franchise and contract rights; possible consolidation or consolidations of existing lines or systems; legal, financial, and operating conditions; and such other factors as may be germane, with a view to formulating a plan or plans for the permanent, equitable, and beneficial readjustment of the relations between the public and the transit corporations which serve them.

Before proceeding further with the matter the Merchants' Association obtained the co-operation of other large commercial organizations in the city and a preliminary committee was formed consisting of William Fellowes Morgan, Alfred E. Marling, Lee Kohns, J. Sherlock Davis, H. Pushae Williams, and James Brackenridge, Presidents, respectively, of the Merchants' Association, Chamber of Commerce, New York Board of Trade and Transportation, Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce, Chamber of Commerce of Queens, and the Bronx Board of Trade.

This committee sent an identical letter to more than one hundred leading men in various walks, who were selected to form a Citizens' Transit Committee. The letter set forth that the city was threatened with a condition of chaos in relation to its transit facilities, that the railroads were not earning enough to pay proper operating costs, and that it was feared that some of the lines would have to cease operating.

"The committee," ran the letter, "will make an adequate, unbiased and wholly dispassionate investigation fully to develop all the pertinent facts, and to form constructive plans for the reorganization of the city's traffic facilities on a basis which shall be substantially equitable to all interests."

An Executive Committee was named which will have charge of all of the details of the investigation. This committee is composed of all of the members of the preliminary committee in addition to Lewis E. Pierson, Vice President of the Merchants' Association, E. H. Outerbridge of the Pantasote Company, and Frederick L. Cranford of the Cranford Construction Company. Sub-committees will be appointed as needed.

Engineers, accountants, railroad experts, and other specialists will be employed during the investigation to the end that it may be thorough and based on substantial statements. The members of the Citizens' Transit Committee, in addition to those mentioned, are:

Investigation of the various companies has been made by the Public Service Commission, which will also, it was said, assist the committee in every possible way.

MONROE LANDMARK SOLD.

Investor Buys Prince Street Property at Auction for $135,000.

The two-story brick building at 62 Prince Street, in which James Monroe, fifth President of the United States, lived, and in which he died July 4, 1831, was sold at auction in the Vesey Street salesroom yesterday by Bryan L. Kennelly, to an unknown speculator.

The sale created great interest among patriotic societies, who desire to preserve this famous landmark. The decision of the owners to sell the house, and the adjoining property, which forms a plot fronting 143 feet on Crosby Street, 84 feet on Prince Street, and 128 feet on Lafayette Street, as one parcel, upset the plans of the societies, who were not prepared to buy the best part of the block which the plot contains.

The bidding started at $100,000, and increased from $110,000 to $125,000. Then it mounted by thousands, and the property was finally purchased by J. B. Cronin of the Charles F. Noyes Company, for $135,000.

At the office of the Noyes Company it was stated that the property was bought for speculation, and that it would probably be offered for re-sale by the buyer, whose name the firm declined to reveal.

The Monroe house, which covers a plot 24.01 feet by 117 feet at the corner of Prince and Lafayette Streets, was erected in 1823 by Samuel L. Gouverneur, a son-in-law of President Monroe, with whom he lived.

SPANISH LOCKOUT ENDED.

Employers and Syndicalists Give Guarantees to Carry Out Agreement.

BARCELONA, Nov. 12.—The lockout by the employers, which has tied up industry here for more than a week, is considered today to have been virtually ended as the result of an agreement reached during the night between the employers and the workers.

The final decision is to be reached at another conference called to meet at noon.

The agreement was the result of a determined effort by the Lord Mayor, who requested the employers' representatives and the leaders of the Syndicalists to meet him.

Señor Segus, the Syndicalist leader, announced that the settlement terminated the strikes and lockouts, both sides having agreed to give guarantees for carrying it out. The Government will issue an ordinance providing for the punishment of workers or employers violating the agreement.

MADRID, Nov. 12.—The Official Gazette today published a notice that not more than the legal eight hours daily shall be worked except in cases of emergency and then only after an agreement has been reached between the men and the employers regarding the rate of wages to be paid.

KEEP BEET-SUGAR PRICE LOW

Maximum Wholesale Price Must Stay at 10 Cents a Pound.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Truman G. Palmer, Executive Secretary of the United States Sugar Manufacturers' Association, notified members of that organization today that the Department of Justice, while having no desire that any sugar producer sell below cost plus a fair profit, would not increase the general maximum of ten cents a pound wholesale for beet sugar.

Mr. Palmer said producers charging more than this sum would be investigated and subject to prosecution if found to be profiteering, but that they might sell direct to manufacturers at high prices provided valid contracts were secured that the manufacturers would not increase the price of the finished product because of the increased price for the sugar content.

Bad weather conditions just at harvest time have greatly decreased the sugar content of beets, thus reducing the quantity of sugar which can be produced. The beet sugar crop now being harvested is estimated at about 800 000 tons.

LARKIN AND GITLOW HEARING CONTINUED

Magistrate McAdoo to Hear Further Testimony in Case of Men Charged with Anarchy.

DEFENDANTS ASK FREEDOM

Emma Goldman's Counsel Says He Expects to Prove That She Was a Citizen.

Chief City Magistrate McAdoo adjourned until today the hearings of James Larkin and ex-Assemblyman Benjamin Gitlow, who are charged with criminal anarchy, in order to hear further testimony and argument before deciding whether the evidence is sufficient for holding the two men.

They are charged with being instrumental in the publication in The Revolutionary Age of the program and manifesto of the Communist Party and of the program and manifesto of its predecessor, the Left Wing Socialist Party. Gitlow is the business manager of The Revolutionary Age and Larkin one of the editors.

Charles Recht, counsel for Gitlow, moved that the complaint be dismissed on the ground that the four articles complained of were not expressions originating with those conducting the magazine, but had originated from other sources and were printed as news. He said that the same pronouncements had appeared in some conservative newspapers and magazines. He named The Nation as a publication in which much of the same matter had been printed. Recht asserted that the party platforms had not been prepared specially for publication in The Revolutionary Age or any other paper.

Archibald E. Stevenson, special counsel for the Lusk Committee, testified that Larkin had admitted his editorial connection with the paper, both in preparing articles and criticising the work of others. Walter Nelles, the lawyer for Larkin, asked if Larkin had not said that he had objected to certain parts of the Communist manifesto and that his function was exclusively that of critic. Mr. Stevenson denied that Larkin had stated that his connection with the paper was exclusively that of a critic.

Mr. Nelles argued for the dismissal of the charge against Larkin, on the ground that Larkin had no responsibility for the publication; that there was no violation of the law involved in the publication of the matter anyway; and that the statute against criminal anarchy was unconstitutional, as being in conflict with provisions in the State and Federal Constitution, guaranteeing free speech.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo said that he wanted more time in which to make a study of the articles on which the charge was based, and that he would hear further argument from counsel for the defense today.

The immigration authorities continued yesterday a hearing on the case of Emma Goldman, who is not a citizen and is subject to deportation because of her teachings, according to the contention of the Department of Justice. Harry Weinberger, her lawyer, said that he expected to prove that she was a citizen, and that cancellation of the citizenship papers of her husband was obtained by fraud in a trial in the United States District Court in 1909.

Charles Recht, lawyer for the most of the men arrested in the Lusk raids, said last night that he had positive information that Alexander Chermoff, one of the men arrested by agents of the Department of Justice at the Russian People's House on Friday night, is in the hospital at Ellis Island unconscious from the beating he had received in the raid. He said that he had heard rumors that two men had died on Ellis Island from the injuries received in the raids of the Department of Justice, but had been unable to verify them.

Watch Them Whiten
As the film disappears. You will know then what clean teeth mean.

Your teeth are not clean. You can feel a slimy film. Probably the film has dimmed them—some tartar may have formed.

Your present methods of brushing do not end film, and that is the teeth's great enemy. Now we ask you to try a new method—try it at our cost—and compare results.

Film Can Be Ended Now

Most tooth troubles are due to that film.

It is film that discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

The film clings to the teeth, enters crevices and stays. Brushing does not end it. No ordinary tooth paste can dissolve it. Night and day it may do a ceaseless damage. And millions find, as a result, that ordinary brushing does not save the teeth.

Now dental science, after many years, has found a film combatant. The facts have been proved by convincing clinical and laboratory tests. The method is today approved by leading dentists everywhere.

For home use this method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. And we are mailing 10-Day Tubes to all who ask, to let everyone see its effects.

The Pepsin Method

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

Science has found a harmless method of activating pepsin. The usual method is an acid harmful to the teeth. So pepsin long seemed barred.

Now pepsin can be constantly applied—can be left to linger between the teeth. Now you can every day combat this film in a simple, dainty way.

Millions of teeth are being cleaned in this new way. You can see them everywhere—white, glistening teeth.

Send this coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how the teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Learn what clean teeth mean—see how they look. Then decide for yourself between the old methods and the new. Cut out the coupon now.

ALLIED ULTIMATUM SENT TO BUDAPEST

Berlin Hears Friedrich Must Form a Coalition Cabinet or Resign.

DON'T LIKE RUMANIAN NOTE

Conferees Vote It Unsatisfactory as Being a Continued Defiance of the Council.

BERLIN, Nov. 12, (Via London.)—The Allies have taken energetic measures to solve the Hungarian political situation, according to reports from Budapest to the Lokal Anzeiger.

Sir George Clerk, the allied emissary, has delivered on behalf of the Supreme Council, it is stated, an ultimatum to Premier Friedrich, notifying him that a coalition cabinet must be formed within forty-eight hours, or that he must retire from the Premiership.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—Rumania's answer to the last three notes of the Peace Conference, asking her to withdraw her troops from Hungary, was read to the Supreme Council today and was voted to be entirely unsatisfactory. In other words, Rumania continues to defy the Peace Conference, for her reply states that she is newsw ilndrawing her troops to the River Theiss, or Tisza, and says nothing about any further evacuation.

What Rumania seeks to gain from the occupation of Hungary is to fix her boundary further west than it was fixed by the Peace Conference. This is what the Supreme Council wishes to prevent. The River Theisu lies far to the west both of the Peace Conference's line and the one which Rumanians hope to establish. Therefore Rumania's action in reply to the Allies' demand that she withdraw her troops behind the Peace Conference's line does not at all meet the situation.

The various notes of the Supreme Council also insisted that Rumania recognize the fact that the value of the materials seized by her troops in Hungary must be deducted from the reparations due her, and also that she must sign the Austrian treaty or not be allowed to sign the Bulgarian treaty. Rumania's reply avoids a commitment on either of these points.

It is reported that the Supreme Council did not decide today on its future action, although it is said that it will take a "firm stand."

It has frequently been asserted that there is a lack of honest co-operation among the Allies in dealing with Rumania. England and America stand firmly for obliging her to respect the orders of the Peace Conference. France and Italy have been accused of not being really so firm as they might be. This charge is borne out by the fact that the French newspapers generally are favorable to Rumania in the present controversy. France has economic ties with Rumania, and it is known that Italy hopes to establish most friendly relations with the new mistress of the Balkans. Therefore it appears that Rumania is playing for time until the Peace Conference adjourns and the Balkan problem is left to the separate Foreign Offices, in the hope that she may be able to hold what she has seized in Hungary.

Reports reaching Paris say that the Rumanians have begun to withdraw their troops from Budapest. They are evidently moving back to the Theiss line. These reports say that much disorder accompanies the withdrawal from the Hungarian capital and that "requisitions" are being conducted on an unprecedented scale.

The close of the Rumanian elections and the action which the new Parliament and Ministry resulting from them will take are awaited with great interest. The new Chamber will be opened Nov. 20. Incidentally, there will be seated in it members from Bessarabia, which Rumania has annexed in defiance of the Peace Conference.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—The council at the morning session approved the report of the commission which had investigated conditions in Smyrna. Referring to the incidents which occurred at the time of the landing of the Greek troops, which are declared to have been caused by lack of precautions on the part of the Greek military authorities, the Greek authorities are asked to insure that order be maintained in the future, and that there be no recurrence of similar incidents. It is pointed out that the military occupation of Smyrna by the Greeks must be understood by them to be merely provisional.

The American delegation to the Peace Conference has notified the Supreme Council of its intention to leave France during the first days of December. This fact was made known by American Peace Conference circles this afternoon.

The British Peace Delegation has also expressed the same desire, and the general impression in French conference circles is that the conference will conclude its work by the end of this month.

The remainders of the American delegation will probably sail from Brest on the steamer America, but the date of their sailing has not as yet been definitely fixed. The delegates had originally expected to sail on the George Washington, but the latter is now in Brest harbor badly in need of repairs. The George Washington will sail for America Nov. 15 and probably will be dry-docked in the United States, therefore being unable to make the return trip in time to embark the American delegates.

Marble Bust of Prince for Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—A life-size marble bust of the Prince of Wales will be placed in the new Parliament building to commemorate his visit to the Dominion. A model on exhibition today in the hall of the Commons shows the heir to the British throne in military uniform. The Prince's crests appear on the frieze of the pedestal.

ARGENTINE REDS PROTEST.

Socialists Call on European Comrades to Stop Russian Blockade.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 12.—The convention of the Socialist Party of Argentina, in session here, today passed a resolution protesting against the allied blockade of Russia and calling on the European proletariat to unite in opposing "the bellicose operations in order to permit the consolidation of democratic Russia." The resolution also protested against the massacre of Jews in Poland, the Ukraine and Galicia.

The convention voted to raise a fund to spread Socialist doctrines in the provinces and territories of Argentina. The Socialists also voted to send two delegates to the Socialist congress at Geneva, Switzerland, in February, 1920. These delegates will be Deputy Agusto Bunge and Federico Pineda.

SET UP MACHINERY TO ENFORCE DRY LAW

John F. Kramer of Ohio Made National Commissioner—Will Have Nine Deputies.

A MOBILE FEDERAL FORCE

It Will Go Where Needed, but State and Municipal Officers Expected to See That Law Is Not Violated.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Special machinery for the enforcement of wartime and constitutional prohibition will be set up by the Bureau of Internal Revenue on Nov. 17 under the direction of John F. Kramer of Mansfield, Ohio, whose appointment as National Prohibition Commissioner was announced today by Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper.

Besides supervising agents in each of nine districts into which the country has been divided and a prohibition director in each State, Mr. Kramer will have a mobile force which will move about the country as necessity demands.

State and municipal officials will be expected to enforce the prohibition laws, but where they fail to exercise due diligence Federal agents will act. Officials said that should local officers fail to cooperate in breaking up the illicit sale of liquor, the Government would not proceed against them but rather let the local electorate take care of the situation.

Headquarters of the supervising Federal agents, although not definitely decided upon, probably will be located as follows: Albany, N. Y.; New York City; Richmond, Va.; Philadelphia, Atlanta, Chicago, Omaha, Little Rock, and San Francisco. The departments or units over which their jurisdiction will extend are to be known as the Northeastern, New York, Eastern, Southern, Gulf, Central, Northwestern, Southwestern, and Pacific.

"The policy of the Bureau of Internal Revenue will be to reinforce local efforts to the extent necessary to secure proper enforcement of the law," Mr. Roper said. "No State, county, or municipal officer will be relieved of responsibility, and every officer of the Federal Government of every State, county, and city must be supplanted with the full responsibility of a prohibition enforcement officer."

Mr. Roper said that many high-class men would be employed as inspectors. Other officials said judicious handling of enforcement provisions was absolutely necessary if the Government was to have full co-operation of all citizens.

FINED FOR LIQUOR SEARCH.

Agents Who Took Grip from Traveler Found Guilty of Assault.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 12.—J. J. Oliver and Lee Chase, State prohibition agents, were convicted of assault and battery here today and sentenced to pay fines of $100 each and spend one day in jail.

They were arrested recently on charges of having taken a grip from L. C. Robertson after holding him up on a public highway. They said they suspected there was whisky in the grip.

OHIO WETS WIN BY 542.

Final Official Vote Is Against the Federal Amendment.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 12.—The Federal prohibition amendment was defeated by Ohio voters by a wet majority of 542, according to final official figures announced late today by the Secretary of State.

The 2.75 beer proposal was defeated by a dry majority of 20,667; the proposal to repeal State prohibition defeated by a dry majority of 41,849, and the Crabbe State prohibition enforcement act defeated by a wet majority of 26,828. The classification tax amendment was defeated by 77,341 majority.

Moonshine Raid at New Brunswick.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 12.—Breaking into a still, Deputy Internal Revenue Collector James Curran today rounded up a band of alleged "moonshiners" who, are said to have been making whisky for sale among the foreign population here. Morris Bolber was arrested, with Joseph Kosseck and Jacob Wiener, and held in $1,000 bail by United States Commissioner J. A. Delaney.

Strike Stops All Naples Papers.

NAPLES, Nov. 12.—No newspapers were published in Naples today, the printers having gone on strike. The men had asked an increase of 50 per cent. in their wages, and when this was refused a strike was declared.

exercise of any constitutional war powers.

"I am of the opinion that the time provision contained in the Eighteenth Amendment is an essential and inseparable part of that amendment; that without it, it would not have been submitted to the people and would not have been adopted; that it is an express provision made to cover the special emergency of a radical change in the Constitution, and to obviate destruction of the rights of States and of citizens."

Louisville Injunction Today.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 12.—Attorneys for distilling interests apparently won another round in the fight on wartime prohibition in the Federal Court here today. Judge Evans in the course of arguments in a case brought by Louisville distillers announced from the bench his belief that the law was unconstitutional and at the conclusion of the pleas of attorneys said he would issue an injunction tomorrow restraining Government interference with the sale of the distillers' non-bonded whiskey. Whether the injunction would be temporary or permanent, the court said, rested with Attorney General Palmer, whose office was given until tomorrow to advise with the District Attorney at Louisville.

Arguments Before Chicago Court.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Federal Judges Carpenter and Fitzhenry announced tonight at the conclusion of arguments in the double attack by Chicago and Peoria liquor firms on the wartime prohibition and enforcement acts, that they would take the case under advisement until Saturday.

An injunction is asked in both districts to restrain Federal officials from interfering with the sale of whiskey. A favorable decision without a stay preventing sale of liquor until an appeal by the Government could be decided would mean immediate resumption of whiskey sales in both districts.

NEW DRY BILLS PROPOSED.

Anti-Saloon League Says Republicans Can't Afford to Defeat Them.

Two prohibition enforcement bills will be introduced at the coming session of the State Legislature, according to an announcement made yesterday by William H. Anderson, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League.

"The first will be identical in every respect with the measure passed by Congress," he said, "except such technical and formal changes as are necessary to adapt it to the machinery of the State Government instead of the national Government.

"The second one will be the Anti-Saloon League's own bill of last Winter with the modifications and improvements suggested by experience and containing also the features which have been found valuable in the States that were left out of the Federal measure.

"The Republican Party in New York will be in no position to take advantage of the tremendous sentiment for observance of law, demonstrated by the Massachusetts election, if the Republican Legislature in this State refuses to go as far in upholding the Constitution of the United States as a Republican Congress has done. The Federal authorities have already made clear that they need the assistance of the States for the enforcement of prohibition."

Five saloon keepers and bartenders were arrested in Brooklyn yesterday charged with selling whisky in violation of the law. Bail was fixed at $500 each by U. S. Commissioner Hick.

Training for Home Management

Many of the young women who enter employment, quite naturally look upon their work as an opportunity for an active and profitable interval between school and marriage—a most commendable and natural attitude.

As a training for managing a home successfully or for a business future, the advantages of store experience are valuable. Women do the greater part of the family purchasing, and the first essential of a good home manager is the ability to buy wisely. Where can she gain so broad and accurate a knowledge of qualities and values as in a good store?

We welcome to Lord & Taylor the young woman to whose life we can contribute something of permanent value besides her weekly pay. Talk it over with an executive on the 16th floor.

CRAIG TO FACE NEW CONTEMPT CHARGE

Controller Is Ordered by Court to Answer Regarding Sale of Corporate Stock.

ENJOINED LAST FEBRUARY

Proceeding Also Pending Against Official as Result of Letter on Traction Ruling.

Controller Craig was served with an order yesterday signed by Supreme Court Justice Van Siclen in Brooklyn, directing him to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt of court for disobeying an injunction order signed by Justice Lazansky on Feb. 13, 1919. The order was signed on the application of Leonard Wallstein, and was made returnable on Tuesday morning before Justice Manning.

The injunction issued last February prohibited the sale of any of the corporate stock notes authorized by the Board of Estimate on Feb. 7 last. William J. Schieffelin began a taxpayer's action to restrain the sale or use of any of the proceeds of the notes, as expressly prohibited by law. Mr. Wallstein is counsel for the plaintiff.

The order served on Controller Craig is the second contempt proceeding pending against him. Federal Judge Mayer directed United States Attorney Caffey on Oct. 7 last to prepare papers accusing Mr. Craig of contempt. The action grew out of a letter the Controller wrote to Public Service Commissioner Nixon concerning Judge Mayer's alleged rulings in the traction cases.

A resolution of the Board of Estimate authorized the issue of $4,500,000 of corporate stock. Of this, $1,000,000 was to be used for redeeming special revenue bonds which had been issued for the purpose of paying the expenses of the Public Service Commission. The remaining $3,500,000 was to go into the fund for the reduction of taxation. It was maintained in the action that the board had no legal power to issue the bonds against expenses of the Public Service Commission incurred in prior years, and all of which had already been paid in full.

In his order against Controller Craig, Justice Van Siclen, after reading affidavits by Mr. Wallstein, Ralph M. Frink, an attorney, and Leo J. McDermott, an accountant, said in part:

"It appears to my satisfaction that the defendant, Charles L. Craig, has disobeyed the order of this court restraining him from issuing certain corporate stock notes of the city and from applying the proceeds of the sale to the redemption of special revenue bonds and that such disobedience has been wilful."

Justice Van Siclen then ordered the Controller to "show cause why an order should not be made punishing him for contempt of court for his disobedience."

In his affidavit Mr. Wallstein said that the Controller, either personally or through his subordinates, issued and sold $1,000,000 of the corporate stock notes and applied the proceeds to the redemption of special revenue bonds.

After saying that the sale of the stock was stayed by Justice Lazansky on February 13, Mr. Wallstein recited that Supreme Court Justice Cropsey subsequently issued a temporary injunction after hearing argument where Controller Craig was heard. The Appellate Division, said Mr. Wallstein, sustained the injunction in an order signed on June 6 and the Court of Appeals affirmed the Appellate Division's action on October 21.

Mr. Wallstein said that after the Court of Appeals had passed on the injunction last week he served a formal demand on the Controller for leave to inspect the records of the Finance Department. Mr. Craig complied with this demand and an examination of the papers revealed that the sale had actually been made. The notes were sold to the Sinking Fund Commission, of which the Controller is a member, it was stated.

In their affidavits Frink and McDermott gave the details of the transaction. They said that the day after the passage of the resolution by the Board of Estimate steps were taken by the Finance Department to issue corporate stock notes. That was on February 7. Although the way had been paved for the sale, they said, no sale had actually been made up to February 13, when the injunction order was signed and served on the Controller, but the sale did take place on or about February 17.

SEES PAPER MATERIAL LOST.

Sawmill Waste and Stumps Available, J. F. Kidd Tells Lumbermen.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 12.—Hundreds of tons of sawmill waste which could be used for newsprint and other coarse papers are being burned every day and there are millions of feet of stumps and small timber in Southern cut-over lands which could be used for the same purpose, J. F. Kidd of Lake, Miss., today told the annual convention here of the Southern Logging Association.

"I understand," said Mr. Kidd, "that many small town weekly and semi-weekly newspapers have been forced to suspend publication because of the high cost of newsprint and that even some of the city dailies are having a rocky road to travel, but it seems that there is inefficiency and neglect of opportunity somewhere when raw material is being wasted in quantities with a market crying for the products which could be manufactured from it."

DANIELS URGES PAY INCREASES IN NAVY

Necessary to Retain Officers and Men and Recruit Service, He Asserts.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Urging immediate pay increases as necessary to retain present navy officers and men and obtain new ones, Secretary Daniels today recommended to the House Naval Committee temporary increases aggregating $53,000,000 a year for all officers and men. The proposed new schedule would remain in effect until June 30, 1921.

Mr. Daniels also told the committee that funds allowed naval officers for public and official receptions should be increased.

The following annual increases, with similar advances in the pay of officers of corresponding rank in the Marine Corps, were recommended by Mr. Daniels:

Admirals, Rear Admirals, Vice Admirals, and Captains, $1,000; Commanders, $300; Lieutenant Commanders, $540; Lieutenants, senior grade, $720; Lieutenants, junior grade, $600, and ensigns and warrant officers, $480. Monthly pay of chief petty officers would be limited to $124, and that of other enlisted men to $40 instead of $37.80.

"The finer the home—the more it needs UPSON BOARD"

Test Upson Board! Prove its superiority

1. Whittle or saw it! It looks, feels and works like lumber.
2. Break it! It's nearly twice as strong as other boards.
3. Paint it! One coat on Upson Board does the work of two on other boards.
4. Official Government testing machine proves Upson Board withstands breaking test of nearly 400 pounds to the square inch.
5. Approved stretching machine shows Upson Board has nearly twice the tensile strength of average board.

"IF I had my way, every fine home I build would have walls and ceilings finished in Upson Board.

"It makes the smoothest, flattest and most permanent walls and ceilings of any material I know of.

"It is the modern way to build walls and ceilings of lasting beauty in every kind of building, new or old.

Beautiful Decorative Effects

No wall lining will lend itself to more artistic decoration or enhance the beauty of your rooms to a greater degree.

The panels may be of any desired dimensions—may run from the floor to the ceiling—or may be used in combination with frieze or wainscot.

They can be finished in soft, dainty tints or deep, rich shades—with an appropriate stencil, if desired, in some of the rooms.

And paneling is deservedly popular! If you will recall, almost every ideal interior you have ever seen pictured in magazines has had paneled walls and ceilings, whether marble, plaster, steel or wood.

Splendid Painting Surface

Upson Board has the finest painting surface of any wall board on the market—and a better surface for paint than plaster and other materials.

It is so good that many paint manufacturers use Upson Board to demonstrate the quality of their paint products.

Costs Less to Finish

Upson Board comes to you surface filled or primed, ready for immediate decoration. There is, however, no wax or paraffin in Upson Board to cause paint to spot, peel or blister. There is in some wall boards.

Upson Board is cheaper when applied and finished even though it may cost a trifle more at first.

Not Like Other Boards

Impartial tests on official machines show that Upson PROCESSED Board is nearly twice as strong as other wall boards.

Genuine Upson Board has the famous BLUE center and each panel also bears the Upson trade mark on the back. Because there isn't a dollar's difference in the cost between DEPENDABLE Upson Board and ordinary boards, specify Upson PROCESSED Board by name.

GRAND JURY HEARS EXCHANGE OFFICIAL

Special Body Subpoenas Chairman Streit of the Clearing House Committee.

HEARST COUNSEL A WITNESS

Gaston B. Means Also Before Investigators—Swann Assigns New Advisers.

Some phases of speculative activities in the stocks of the Brooklyn and Interborough Rapid Transit Companies during the several controversies between city officials and the managers of the roads concerning the question of increased fares, were believed to be under the scrutiny of the Extraordinary Grand Jury yesterday, as a part of its investigation of the transit situation. This was the view taken of the proceedings yesterday when Samuel F. Streit, head of the New York Stock Exchange firm of H. T. Carey & Co., at 66 Broadway, went into the Grand Jury room.

Mr. Streit is Chairman of the Clearing House Committee of the Stock Exchange, which would have in its custody the records of all stock transactions.

"I went to the jury," said Mr. Streit, "in response to a subpoena in my official capacity as Chairman of a committee of the Exchange, and not as a representative of my firm, which is no way concerned with any matter relating to my visit to the jury. I think that is all that I am warranted in saying about the matter."

Previous to the opening of the investigation by the jury, based on information from the District Attorney, which he had received from Mayor Hylan, charging that correspondence and information that had reached him indicated collusion between officials and employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to bring about the recent strike to get approval for higher fares, there were reports of frequent speculative moves in both the Brooklyn and Interborough stocks. The name of a political leader had been mentioned in these deals, and he was credited with making considerable profit.

It is now understood that the jury is searching for evidence to determine if a "crime" has been committed in connection with any part of the transit situation, which was referred to in a letter by the jury to Governor Smith as "a crime completely overshadowing that charged by the Mayor," and it is supposed that the jury is looking into the question of stock manipulation as a connecting link in its inquiry. It is said that information has reached it to the effect that remarkable fluctuations had occurred in the transit stocks at certain periods.

W. A. De Ford, of counsel for William Randolph Hearst was in the Grand Jury room about thirty minutes. He was the second representative of Mr. Hearst to appear before the jury. A few days ago Victor Watson, one of the editors of The New York American, was called before that body. Mr. De Ford's presence at the jury session aroused considerable interest, as it was known that Mr. Hearst's publications had supported Mayor Hylan's campaign for a 5-cent fare on the transit lines.

District Attorney Swann, who has withdrawn from any personal activity with the jury since they sought to have Governor Smith replace him with a special counsel, has assigned several of his assistants to continue as legal advisers to the jury. William A. McQuaid, an Assistant District Attorney, who, Mr. Swann said, had given four months intensive study to transit matters, was active in and about the jury room yesterday.

It was learned yesterday that the Grand Jury had not asked for the report of the gambling investigation made by Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield. The Commissioner declares that copies of his report were in the offices of the State Attorney General, the Mayor, and the District Attorney, and that the documents were open to the inspection of any one entitled to see them. Commissioner Hirshfield, who was subpoenaed by the Grand Jury on Monday, is expected to appear before that body again today.

Gaston B. Means, who was acquitted of charges concerning the death of Mrs. Maud A. King Robinson at Concord, N. C., was one of several other witnesses in the jury room. What feature of the inquiry he was interested in was not disclosed. On his departure Means said: "I want to say that it was the most surprising thing that ever happened in my life. I thought that only one man and myself knew about the matter. The Grand Jury knew everything about it. I am coming back with other papers they want if I can find them."

Previous to and during the trial of Means the District Attorney's office was active in investigating and presenting certain information against Means. Assistant District Attorney Dooling, who went to Concord to attend the trial of Means, said that he had acted in that case as a law officer trying to do his duty, and if that matter was the concern of the Extraordinary Grand Jury he was ready to submit to them any papers or information he had bearing on the case.

Ex-Governor William Sulzer was a witness yesterday before the additional November Grand Jury, which is inquiring into the affairs of the former brokerage firm of J. Frank Lilly & Co. at 42 Broadway, which closed after detectives from the District Attorney's office seized some of the books of the concern. Mr. Sulzer, who is one of several complainants, said the firm owed him $4,500, representing collateral which he had deposited for a trading account. J. Frank Lilly disappeared before the raid on his office. The jury has been conducting a John Doe investigation. Their report will be submitted to Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions. Lilly & Co. had 1,600 creditors.

THE PLAY

By Alexander Woollcott

A Gay Farce Well Played.

WEDDING BELLS, a comedy in three acts, by Salisbury Field. At the Harris Theatre.

Reginald Carter.....Wallace Eddinger
Rosalie.....Margaret Lawrence
Spencer Wells.....Percy Ames
Marcia Hunter.....Jessie Glendenning
Mrs. Hunter.....Mrs. Jacques Martin
Douglas Ordway.....Clarke Silvernail
Hooper.....Maud Andrew
Jackson.....John Harwood
Furnald.....George Burton

Salisbury Field, the man who wrote "Twin Beds" before Margaret Mayo took a whack at it, reappeared before a New York audience as an author unabetted last evening when, at the Harris Theatre, a play all his own was presented and received with vociferous evidences of genuine approval. This was "Wedding Bells," a sprightly and diverting farce, for which an exceptionally good cast has been assembled, regardless of expense. In the leading roles Wallace Eddinger and Margaret Lawrence disport themselves delightfully, and though they alone last evening took the many curtain calls which must follow the second act as the night the day, the honors are really scattered.

The bells in question are ringing for the wedding of Reggie Carter, when out of the past pops a lovely and inopportune lady, to whom he had been briefly but agreeably married some time before in Santa Barbara. They had both been stopping at the same hotel there and he had put his shoes out in the hall to be polished and her dog Pinkie had chewed one of the shoes. So they got to talking that way and were married two days later, which expeditiousness is quite a Santa Barbara custom, they say. Anyway, they later got into a dispute about red hair or pink roses or something and off she went and he would have followed, only he got the measles. And that is about all of the antecedent action.

Well, in she comes and lures Reggie away from his bachelor supper, breaks up the wedding by tipping off the Episcopal clergyman that Reggie had been divorced, finds a new bridegroom for the bride, and the last you see of her she looks for all the world as if she were to be the one who would use that other wedding journey ticket to Palm Beach.

It is all brightly written, with a nice vein of nonsense running through it, and a good many people are likely to get a great deal of fun out of it.

For Margaret Lawrence, the première of "Wedding Bells," was in the nature of a return. It was on the stage of the Harris, in the misty past when it was called the Hackett, that she first came to New York in a farce called "Overnight." She was just a winsome ingenue in those days, but now she has a sparkle and a gleam and a piquancy which are captivating. One who was more or less addled by her on the first night of "Overnight" is pleased to report that he still is.

Wallace Eddinger, however, carries the chief burden of "Wedding Bells," carries it with that entire competence and that haunted look which are parts of his stock in trade—a large and well assorted stock, by the way.

It is interesting, too, to see that "Wedding Bells" has just taken over the entire stock of servants who used to work for Grumpy, for there is the veteran John Harwood, who has been in service on the stage we don't know how many years, and if there isn't Maud Andrew, as ever was, giving, in her brief scenes, a delightful fillip to the entertainment.

There should be a word, too, for our old friend Mrs. Jacques Martin of "Daddy Longlegs" memory and for Clark Silvernail, a young farceur whose soldier show, under way as early as July, 1917, was probably the first O. D. entertainment in the history of the A. E. F. Silvernail succeeds in looking surprisingly like a shopworn Hamlet and comes down a thought too heavily on his points with something of that glowing self-confidence and unswerving determination which sometimes mark the stock company actor.

Mayo Wadler in Violin Recital.

Mayo Wadler, a young musician of high aims, appeared in a violin recital at Carnegie Hall last evening, attended by a large and friendly audience. His program was in large part the work of living men, among the modern pieces being a sonata by Leonide Nicolaiew, an "Indian Legend" by Carl Busch, Cecil Burleigh's "Nine O'Clock," Albert Stoessel's "Humoresque," and a "Ballade" by Kryjanowsky, which was said to be played for the first time in America. In conclusion, he gave by request a supplementary group of familiar airs, including the Schubert-Wilhelm "Ave Maria," Kreisler's "Spanish Dance," and Sarasate's "Gypsy Airs." The violinist was accompanied by Walter Golde.

Louise Hubbard, Soprano, Heard.

Louise Hubbard, soprano, gave a first recital at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, her program including a variety of songs marked by individual and intelligent selection. With Mozart's "Alleluia" and classics of Scarlatti and Haydn, she gave Handel's "Skylark," arranged by A. Bunten. There were also Strauss's "Serenade, others of Robert Franz, Tschaikowsky, Gounod, and American pieces by Chadwick, LaForge, Burleigh, Curran's "Dawn," and "A Fairys Love Song," by C. G. Sprosa, who was at the piano.

Plan to Check Ticket Speculation.

Assistant District Attorney Kilroe announced that a conference at his office today will consider ways and means for enforcing the anti-theatre ticket speculation ordinance. Those who have been invited to the conference are Chief Magistrate William McAdoo, the Commissioner of Licenses, and a representative of Police Commissioner Enright.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The new Pinero play, "Quick Work," will have its first performance tonight in Poughkeepsie. Grace George will be the star, and the company will include Martin Lewis, Sebastian Smith, John Rogers, Roy Cochrane, Frank Cullan, William I. Clark, Jane Grey, Adria Hill, and Lorle Sawyer.

"Boys Will Be Boys," compelled to vacate the Belmont Theatre, will be continued until another house is available at special matinees at the Broadhurst Theatre. Performances will take place Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, and Saturday mornings at 11:30.

Bruce Reynolds's melodrama, which the Shuberts are producing, will be called "Thieves" instead of "Raising the Mask."

"Blind Man's Buff" will have its first performance in Baltimore next Monday night.

In the cast of "Ed Wynn's Carnival," which will open at Atlantic City on Nov. 21, will be Lillian Fitzgerald, Maria Gambarelli, Edna Whistler, Regal and Moore, J. Harry Jenkins and others.

COSTUME EXHIBITION OPENS

Modern Industrial Art Based on Designs of Primitive Peoples.

The American Museum of Natural History last night opened an exhibition of costumes and textiles for women's use. President Henry Fairfield Osborn made an address of welcome and the purpose of the exhibition was explained by State Commissioner of Education John H. Finley, M. D. C. Crawford and Dr. James P. Haney.

The exhibition is the climax of the plans made by Dr. Clark Wissler, head of the department, made when he came to the museum twenty-five years ago. He began at that time the collection of the most beautiful handiwork of the primitive peoples of the world with the idea that it would become an inspiration to industrial art in America. This the exhibition shows.

At the present exhibition there is a lovely woman's wrap with a hood and beside it is the model, a garment taken from some wild tribe, but the outlines of the two exactly the same. A strange little jacket from the Philippines is reproduced in the quaint little jacket in a woman's street suit, the likeness of which is wonderful in its quaintness. Other garments are reproduced in blouses and a beautiful exhibition is of embroideries reproduced for different purposes from primitive garments, portieres and baskets.

One department in the exhibition is devoted to the costuming of a bride; one entirely to remarkable blouses, one to fine old laces, with new ones from old designs.

Much of the credit for the success of the exhibition aside from the work of the exhibitors is due to Dr. Herbert J. Spinden of the Anthropological Department, who has been in charge of preparing the museum exhibits, and to M. D. C. Crawford, a Museum Associate, through whom the exhibitors first became interested in the possibilities of development of industrial art through the museum collection. The exhibition will be open to Nov. 27.

Over 400,000 Motor Trucks in the United States are transporting millions of tons daily. And by far the bulk of that tonnage is carried in medium priced trucks. The majority of business men in America know that a truck should be bought, first: on its ability to transport and second: on the cost per ton mile of that transportation.

Bethlehem Motor Trucks are neither underbuilt to meet a price nor overbuilt to justify a price. They are the meeting place of quality and cost—of performance and price. They present greatest value. Buy your Motor Truck on Facts.

REPORT ON JEWISH RELIEF.

Joint Committee Has Spent $22,812,203 for War Sufferers.

Figures just compiled, and made public yesterday by the Joint Distribution Committee of American Funds for Jewish War Sufferers, show that since the beginning of the relief work in the early days of the war to date a total of $22,812,203 has been expended in sending food, clothing, medicines, and other of life's necessities to the stricken Jews of Eastern Europe, the Balkans, Palestine, and other foreign countries.

Of this sum $10,238,000 represents appropriations made since Jan. 1 of the present year.

Further plans of the relief committees call for the establishment of a reconstruction corporation for the rehabilitation of the old world Jews. This enterprise is separate and distinct from the emergency relief now being provided and is not to be financed out of relief funds.

WALL STREET AND THE WORLD.

The importance of Stock Exchange activities in Wall Street depends upon the accuracy with which they reflect or predict conditions elsewhere. If Wall Street is thinking only of the United States, there has been some ground for the prices which have prevailed there, for assuredly never was there such an accumulation of liquid wealth in the world as here, and never such a contrast with unhappy conditions elsewhere. In the leading American money market the war boom on this side the ocean might be carried further into peace, but that is difficult in proportion that Wall Street is under the necessity of taking note of conditions throughout the world.

Certainly nobody can think that world conditions favor the diversion of funds anywhere into uses which add nothing to the production and distribution of the necessaries of life. Probably at no time has there been greater exhaustion of consumable goods, and certainly stocks have never been lower when there was concurrently such universal and exigent need. Only a few years ago it would have been the duty of London to make this world survey, and it would have fallen to our market to reflect London's. Even now London makes this survey and tells us what it sees and thinks, but the world no longer looks to London alone. There is no help but here, in Wall Street, and, alas! Washington. The present Wall Street movement is important, not because it reflects the culmination of our war "boom," but because it shows that our leadership is resolved to take up our burden of production rather than to nurse a speculative movement which sooner or later would find its top, with profit to few and disaster for many.

There is nothing in the fall of the industrials which threatens their productive capacity. Their profits from trade have not yet fallen, and need not fall. Sales and collections are good, and should be better when so many in the world are both idle and needy. In both equipment and finance the industrials are stronger than when their prices were rising. The difficulties in the situation are not economic, but in the technics of credit and the politics of the American parish. Our citizenry is the world's soundest, and sooner or later our politicians will fall into step with the world. Then there will be a revival of industry for the world's succor fit to compare with our rush to the relief of the world from domination. That is what the larger and higher Wall Street is preparing for. Wall Street looks ahead, and never moves with water already past the wheel. The fall in prices cannot be serious except to the few who bought at the top or have pyramided when they should have sold. But however that may be, the thing to think of is future production, not present prices.

The cause of the trouble is so clear that there can be no doubt of the remedy. It was remarked the other day that ordinary measures of control of the exchanges between nations had lost their power. That is true also of the money market. Every nation's money market is surfeited with national credit, ordinarily the best credit. Every nation has too much currency, of local worth alone. No nation wants any other nation's currency, and it is idle to seek to attract gold from anywhere, even here. Strong as we are, we cannot equalize the levels in all the world's reservoirs, and we cannot choose which we shall help, which we shall abandon. It is in vain that London raises its money rate to retain the estimated half billion dollars of foreign funds, the basis of credit to several times that considerable sum. Only in regard to the exchanges with its immediate neighbors can the London rate be effective, and there we need that it should be controlled. The exchanges which count mostly are with us, and London cannot outbid New York.

Neither should attempt such rivalry, even with the best of motives and the soundest of normal arguments. The conditions are abnormal, like nothing that ever was, or, it may be hoped, ever again will be. The inflation of credit which hurts is based on Government credit. The time has passed for giving preference to that. The industrial level has been falsified by the reckless expenditures of Government credit. Trade has been financed by profits which have served their turn and should be moderated. The time has come to promote commerce on an economic basis and to stop financing by bonds and currency and overdrafts instead of acceptances. In short, credit should now be given first to those seeking to produce and distribute consumable goods. It is hard to deny accommodation to those who come with the best credit, and borrowers on Government funds should still be favored if they purpose to make economic use of the money. But there should be a reduction of Government credit in banks, which would do better service if they were more free with commercial than speculative business. The central Federal Bank has said that money borrowed on Government bonds has gone into speculative commitments. They produce nothing but booms, which are injurious when production needs the money. There should be a gentlemen's agreement among money centres not to outbid one another and to favor trade rather than speculation. If the war on want is pressed with anything like the energy and resolution that won the war on Germany, there is no doubt of a result better than any price movement.

RADICALISM RUN MAD.

The assassination of four and perhaps six ex-soldiers who were peacefully marching in an Armistice Day parade in Centralia, Wash., is a crime that sufficiently denounces itself, and words would be wasted on it. What bewilders the imagination is the senselessness of it, the futility, the madness. Nothing so useless, even from the revolutionary standpoint, has been seen since the murder of participants in the San Francisco preparedness parade.

It is not conceivable that the I. W. W. hoped to gain anything by this unprovoked and useless slaughter. They could gain nothing by an outrage that must infuriate the whole body of returned soldiers, to say nothing of the great American population that honors and loves the soldiers. The only possible explanation is that they hoped by this unexpected blow to terrify the American people. But, granting that it is possible to terrify the American people, they can hardly be terrified by the act of a few men assassinating a few others in a small Western city.

The principle may be the same as that which moved the French anarchist RAVACHOL to throw a bomb into the midst of an audience in a Paris theatre, in 1894. He was entirely impartial, and did not care whom he killed; he was "at war with society," and picked out a miscellaneous crowd as being the nearest he could get to his enemy. STEVENSON, in "The Dynamiter," pictures this state of mind. It will be remembered that his dynamiter preferred to place bombs in a public park, because the victims were likely to be babies, nursemaids, and pensioners, and blows struck at these classes were of a kind to stagger the heart of England. That men can be so mad or so feeble-minded as to entertain such delusions may seem incredible to normal intellects, but there is no use in arguing with a fact, and there are instances enough to prove that they have been, and therefore still may be, held by men who in other respects seem sane.

The comrades of the murdered soldiers deserve the highest praise for their conduct. The dispatches say that they held off the infuriated crowd that tried to lynch the assassins and got them into jail without their suffering any injury; though one was taken out and lynched later. Considering the unlooked-for and sudden onslaught, the fact that they themselves were the targets of the murderers as much as the men who fell, and the anger that must have burned in their souls when they saw their fellow-soldiers die, their self-restraint and respect for the law reflect the greatest credit on them. They proved their Americanism in that hour as truly as they proved it overseas.

OUR UNDERPAID ARMY AND NAVY.

If armies and navies are underpaid efficiency declines, morale suffers. Officers and men cannot make both ends meet on ideals. The Spanish Army, which has never been wanting in patriotism, fought the worse in Cuba in 1898 because it was getting little or no pay. The United States Army and Navy, which were the deciding factor in the late war, are underpaid today. The most rigid economy does not save the rank and file from debt. Some of the officers, one of them a Rear Admiral, have had to let their insurance policies lapse because they could not pay the premiums. Wives in many cases are not respectably clothed, nor children properly educated, perhaps not sufficiently nourished in large families.

The pay schedule is eleven years old. The purchasing value of the dollar has shrunk 50 per cent. or more. More than 2,000 officers have resigned from the regular army. Debt has driven most of them out. Men of energy and independent spirit, they can ill be spared. The navy is losing many valuable officers because they cannot keep up appearances on their meagre "compensation." Single men in both services can worry along; the married must have more pay or give up their careers. Officers on retired pay (two-thirds) also find the problem of living harassing.

Indorsing the resignation paper of Lieut. Col. W. W. Ross, a West Pointer, Major Gen. CHARNCER R. EDWARDS wrote that "A man who "accepts a commission today is taking a vow of poverty," and that "his family will have to grow up "with less comfort than the average "laborer's wife and children"—unless Congress increases army pay. What is Congress going to do about it? Time is flying and officers are flocking out of both services. It is the older officers, those of higher rank, who are holding on, for retired pay is not far off, their careers nearing the end. The future of the army and navy depends upon regimental officers and the younger men in the sea establishment. If the best of them go now, there will be an inferior army, a poorer navy, ten years hence. Congress must wake up and act quickly. In the end of October General PERSHING said at a joint session of the Senate and House Military Affairs Committees:

> Many officers are living a hand-to-mouth existence, and as a result valuable officers are leaving the army. At this time we cannot afford to dispense with those who have had experience in the war. Some step should be taken to meet this aggravating situation of the officers and men. I would suggest a small increase in pay and some additional number of rations, also a larger allowance for commutation of quarters. Some such plan will probably meet the requirements of the situation until the dollar again buys a dollar's worth of supplies. I doubt if we ever shall reach a period when the base pay of 1908 will meet requirements.

A bill introduced in the Senate on Nov. 3 by Mr. WADSWORTH of New York seems to have been prompted by General PERSHING'S advice. It provided that the base pay of all officers of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, and Public Service be increased 10 per cent. per annum, the pay of enlisted men and of members of the female Nurse Corps 50 per cent.; a fairly liberal provision was proposed for rations and quarters. A bill introduced in the House by Mr. SITNESS of Rhode Island on Sept. 11 would increase the base pay of officers 30 per cent. and of enlisted men 50 per cent., nothing being said about additional rations and a larger allowance for quarters. Perhaps the bills are not so far apart in values as the difference in base pay would indicate to the layman. If Congress is concerned about stopping the exodus from the army and navy, the two houses will agree upon increased pay that is adequate. The bill that comes out of conference should be passed before the contemplated early adjournment.

THE AMERICAN LEGION.

The proceedings of the American Legion in convention at Minneapolis are being viewed by those familiar with the purposes of the organization in a friendly and hopeful spirit. Its power for good will be incalculable if it keeps out of politics. Never has there been an American society or federation with such opportunities to promote good citizenship, to exert a salutary influence upon the welfare of the country and improve its international relations. Never has there been a more democratic association, officers and men who served in the war being on an equal footing at the council table.

The American Legion professes to be a civilian organization wholly and absolutely, although its members are veterans of the Great War, an expression that includes those soldiers who never left the States as well as combatants in France and elsewhere in battle areas. In spirit it is opposed to militarism. Its beginnings were like those of the Grand Army of the Republic; that is to say, organizations of the survivors of brigades and regiments sprang up and were combined into one society. The process was slow in the case of the Grand Army of the Republic, for in 1865 the Union veterans were too weary of the war to interest themselves in perpetuating its memories for any purpose whatsoever. But in the case of the veterans of the late war it was early seen that scattered and isolated associations would waste their energies or go astray. Lieut. Col. THEODORE ROOSEVELT, upon his return from France, said of the plan of the founders of the American Legion:

> They want to prevent these local organizations from falling into the hands of unscrupulous individuals who would use them for their own aggrandizement.
> They wish to endeavor to correlate the efforts for higher citizenship and truer Americanism which have been generated by this war, and, finally, they are imbued with the idea that there should be within the scope of such a society great possibilities for assisting the personnel of the army upon their return to civil life in the necessary economic adjustments.

Colonel ROOSEVELT added that the Legion would advocate policies, not politics. The difficulty, of course, will be in distinguishing, in running the dividing line. The founders of the Grand Army of the Republic, some of them at least who had been soldiers, believed that it should foster the victory won in the field against rebellion. But the Grand Army of the Republic soon fell into the hands of politicians, or under their influence, and until its membership dwindled with the passage of time it was used, more or less subtly, as an instrument of personal ambition or to affect legislation. Doubtless there will be attempts to make the American Legion a factor in politics. The hour of temptation is very near, for it is only months to a Presidential campaign.

According to the preamble of its constitution, the American Legion was formed "to uphold and defend the "Constitution of the United States of "America, to maintain law and order, "to foster and perpetuate a 100 per "cent. Americanism"; also for other purposes, but these are of particular moment just now and upon them public attention is centred. Non-members are more interested in such professions of faith than in the other principles of the organization, which for the most part are of similar significance and in the nature of expansion. At Minneapolis the convention has already shown its sincerity by excluding holders of public office and candidates from positions of authority in the Legion, and the organization has been declared non-political, not to be used to disseminate partisan principles nor to promote any man's ambitions. Also worthy of commendation is the stand the convention has taken in favor of a small standing army and universal training.

CORKAGE.

The attention of the vigilantes of prohibition has been called, it seems, to the practice of New York hotels and restaurants of charging a dollar for "corkage" to patrons who bring in their own drinks upon the hip, but call upon the waiter for a glass or glasses wherewith to consume them. Commissioner ROPER has suspicions that it is illegal for a hotel to derive profit from the service of liquor even though it did not sell it. Counsel for the Society of Restaurateurs, however, sees nothing in the law that forbids this impost on those who wish to enliven an otherwise dry and commonplace meal.

The corkage charge first grew up in certain suburban institutions where the spirit of freedom was more notable than the quality of the wine. Those who liked the atmosphere but preferred better vintages used to bring their own, and the proprietors put on the corkage charge by way of penalty. But there is a difference between charging a man for drinking his own liquor, in preference to that sold by the house, and charging him for bringing his own when the house can sell him none. Of course, the innkeepers have their reasons. Prohibition cut off much revenue, direct and indirect, and they must recoup however they can. But they ought to know that, since one of the by-products of prohibition was a reduction in the number of those who come to dance, there is only hope in the practice of bringing it in by the flask. Dancing cafés thus enlivened will be more jovial places, more frequented, more profitable than if the patrons are forced to choose between sweet cider and buttermilk.

No man will fight very hard for the inalienable right to pay a dollar for the privilege of drinking the contents of his own flask. And the hotel men, whose services to civilization have been considerable, ought to have remembered that the corkage charge involved a grave menace to public manners. There are those who, rather than pay corkage, will stay at home; others who will affront the proprieties by sitting down in dignified restaurants and drinking straight from the bottle.

PARLEYING WITH RUSSIA.

Mr. LLOYD GEORGE'S suggestion that there might soon be a Russian peace conference, which inferentially would lead to some sort of recognition of the Bolsheviki, may have had as one of its purposes a desire to evoke expressions of opinion. It has succeeded in doing that, but the opinion was only what everybody knew. Revolutionaries and their "liberal" supporters are in favor of it; most other people are against it. In France there seems to have been disapproval everywhere except among the revolutionist factions. All this could have been predicted before the proposal was made. It may be that Mr. LLOYD GEORGE discerned, or thought he discerned, a growing British feeling for getting out of Russian entanglements, and felt that the head of a representative government should put himself in accord with those whom he represents. There are precedents in his career to make this explanation seem highly probable.

But it is far from certain that the majority of British opinion wants to get out of Russia now, although recent events have doubtless increased sentiment in favor of withdrawal. For one thing, some British voices have complained that England is doing most of the work, France a little, the other major allies none. There is something in this, although the French are undoubtedly doing as much as they can, and some of them seem to think the British are doing too much. Another reason, of course, is the recent victories of the Bolsheviki. A decision in the field in favor of either side seems unlikely; Mr. LLOYD GEORGE'S forecast of "an intermittent series of bombardments" and hunger the restoration of the world is not unreasonable.

The failure of General PRESTON to take Petrograd is doubtless chiefly responsible for the conference at Dorpat which began on Monday between representatives of Lithuania, Latvia, Esthonia, White Russia, Finland, Poland, and the Ukraine. The conference has not yet come down to actual peace negotiations with the Bolsheviki, but seems to be discussing terms of a common agreement on which a cessation of hostilities, neither peace nor war, can be negotiated. There is also talk of an alliance of the border States, which indeed is badly needed, and which has too long been impeded by dissensions between the various peoples.

The obstacles to outright peace with Bolshevist Russia are well known in the border States. You cannot have lasting peace with a man whose blind fanaticism tells him to attack you again whenever it is convenient to do so. LENIN has promised to abandon revolutionary propaganda outside of Russia in return for peace and freedom to import supplies, but unless his whole life is a lie, of which there is no evidence whatever, he will not and cannot keep that promise. For a time he might keep it, while the much-needed imports were coming in; but those imports would be used, not to feed the starving women and children of Russia who lie so near the hearts of the friends of Bolshevism here, but to strengthen the power of the Lenin group. Women and children who were lukewarm toward that group would still starve; only the enemies of democracy the world over would have more to eat. And when LENIN had strengthened his economic position he must renew the attack upon the non-Bolshevist world.

Of most importance is the position of Poland, because Poland is the strongest of the border States, and the Poles have shown that they can beat the Bolshevist army with impressive regularity. Perhaps they think they are safe on this account; but if they made peace, if the anti-Bolshevist movement collapsed, the Poles might eventually find themselves faced by too many Bolsheviki. The alliance of the border States, however, would raise a powerful barrier which might hold Bolshevism in check even through a one-sided peace.

There remains the question of what would become of the anti-Bolshevist Russians if British and Polish aid were withdrawn. The Reds and pinks in allied countries are, of course, denouncing these groups as "Czarist reactionaries," a description at once illogical and inaccurate. To the Bolshevist zealot a Wilson Democrat or Roosevelt Republican is quite as abhorrent a character as the most stiff-necked supporter of the ROMANOFFS. Since all who are not Bolshevist have combined in the anti-Russian groups, there are certainly some friends of the imperial régime in them; there are also a great many, a majority, of moderates, who favor a constitutional republic. British, French, and Polish influence upholds the hands of the republicans; if it is withdrawn, the monarchists will gain strength by the defection and may turn for support to influences in Europe and Asia which would readily lend them assistance. We have the bear by the tail; to hold on is inconvenient, to let go might be disastrous.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Want to Keep the Cows.

There is nothing surprising in the fact that the Germans are reluctant to send to France 90,000 milch cows, as they were ordered to do by the Peace Conference, or that they count it among the cruelest of the many harsh rulings made against them by that aggregation of enemies so strangely lacking in consideration for German feelings, interests, and conveniences. It is a little surprising, though not much, that there are other people—people not German—who see almost as plainly and as sorrowfully as do the Germans themselves that if these cows are sent away the result will be the probable deprivation of many German babies of the small quantity of milk they are getting now, with the death of many of them in consequence.

That the Germans—they being constitutionally unable, as BRAND WHITLOCK noted in his book, to see more than one thing at a time—would take this position was certain. It is exactly the position they take regarding everything that affects themselves. As for their foreign sympathizers in this matter of the milch cows, they also have followed their wonted custom, which is to forget why the Germans started the war and how they conducted it, lest remembrance should impose the troublesome duty of exacting justice—a duty the performance of which is usually expensive and often dangerous for those who undertake it. These are they who so gladly join the Germans in saying "Let bygones be bygones," and who fully share the Teutonic inability to distinguish between punishment and revenge.

Of Babies, German and French.

But there really is another side to this question of the 90,000 milch cows just as there are other babies in the world besides German babies—other babies that now and long have been in precisely the condition to which the German babies would be reduced if every milch cow were taken out of Germany and handed over to those Frenchmen whom so many people are fond of calling "greedy" and "grasping."

The other side of the cow question is that, if 90,000 animals of this kind were now to be driven out of Germany into France, they would be, as any arithmetician can figure out, but a small fraction of at least a million horned cattle that were removed to Germany from the occupied part of France. And, while sighing with sincere pity for the German babies who may go hungry and die if

Sir Isaac Finds a Defender.

As the now almost famous attack of Dr. EINSTEIN on the Newtonian law of gravitation has been declared successful by many eminent men of science, it is not for common folk to undertake a defense of the long-revered formula. People, however, who have felt a bit resentful at being told that they couldn't possibly understand the new theory, even if it were explained to them ever so kindly and carefully, will feel a sort of satisfaction on noting that the soundness of the Einstein deduction has been questioned by R. A. MILLIKAN in a paper read before the National Academy of Sciences in session at New Haven.

His plausible suggestion is that the starlight passing the sun in eclipse was not deflected by gravitational attraction, but was refracted in the perfectly familiar way of light when it entered and emerged from the gases that form the solar atmosphere. That is understandable as well as plausible, and it is hard not to hope that it is true.

The Boycott Reservation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Reservations Nos. 2 and 12 and the Reed amendment, these three, are the ones that will, if passed as drawn, threaten the very life of the League of Nations. Hence public attention should be focused on them. If given enough prominence and discussion they may, in the last compromises in the Senate, be defeated.

Ex-President Taft in his speech at Carnegie Hall yesterday, if correctly reported by THE TIMES, said:

> Even if modification weakened the force of Article X., 'all the teeth would not be drawn' from 'keeping the international highway free from robbers,' for it must be remembered that one of the great agencies to accomplish the same purpose as Article X. would be the universal boycott, required under Article XVI. There is nothing in the reservation now proposed that embarrasses the operation of the universal boycott."

Isn't there? Not in the second reservation? But read this:

> Reservation No. 12. The United States reserves the right to permit, in its discretion, the nationals of a covenant-breaking State, as defined in Article XVI. of the covenant of the League of Nations, to continue their commercial, financial, and personal relations with the nationals of the United States.

What becomes of that boycott on which Mr. Taft so trustfully relies?

GUSTAVE DE FOREST GARDNER.
Westerleigh, S. I., Nov. 8, 1919.

Thanksgiving on Armistice Day.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The earliest harvest thanksgiving in the United States was observed by the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth in 1621. Congress recommended days of thanksgiving annually during the Revolution and in 1784 for the return of peace. Washington appointed such a day in 1789 after the adoption of the Constitution and in 1795 for the general benefits and welfare of the nation. Not until 1863 did the Presidents appoint the last Thursday in November as the universal Thanksgiving Day. As the date for celebration fluctuates previous to that year there appears to be no reason for adopting the present date except that it was approximately the termination of the gathering in of the Fall harvests. Since the signing of the armistice on Nov. 11, 1918, there is more cause for thanksgiving on that day than any other day in our calendar, therefore I suggest that this date be made permanently the day of general thanksgiving instead of the last Thursday of the same month. Our appreciation of the gathering in of the Fall harvests would be intensified by the dual celebration and would mean more to the individuals of this nation than the now customary date. As the proclamations have been issued for this year's observance I advocate that henceforth Armistice Day be made our Thanksgiving Day.

JOSIE WOOD STOORS.
Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 9, 1919.

THE MESSAGE.

I saw the buds on the dogwood tree:
They made a message of May for me—
Though Winter is coming
And cold skies lower,
At the end of it all
Is a day—is an hour—
When oak-leaves open
Like butterflies' wings,
And suddenly, somewhere,
An oriole sings,
And lilacs promise,
And peonies prink,
And dogwood petals
Unfold in pink—
So Winter may whistle for all of me,
O tight little buds on the dogwood tree!

PAPER SHORTAGE THE CAUSE

Restoration of Wartime Limitations Advised After Address by President Glass.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—To restore normal pre-war conditions in this country the pyramiding by which wages are raised to meet the cost of necessities and the cost of necessities are increased to meet high wages must stop, Secretary of Agriculture David F. Houston declared today in an address delivered before the National Association of Commissioners and Departments of Agriculture in session here.

"Agriculture, which is the basic industry of the nation, should take the lead in helping to restore normal conditions," said Secretary Houston. "The process of pyramiding must be stopped in order to lower the cost of living.

"After the next harvest Europe will be able to put her agriculture on a pre-war basis, cutting down her imports from this country, and this will tend to reduce prices in this country.

"There is a period of unrest now and this state of affairs makes for inefficiency, aggravated by the process of pyramiding. It will mean ruin if it is not checked, and it must be checked.

"A strong farmers' organization can save the future of the country.

"The profiteer is one of the biggest evils confronting this country today and he must be annihilated. The best and quickest way to do it is to increase production."

DANIELS WITHDRAWS HIS AID

Recalls Indorsement of Junior Naval and Marine Scout, Inc.

John J. Fleming, Executive Secretary of the American Junior Naval and Marine Scout, Inc., 51 Chambers Street, announced yesterday that Secretary Daniels had withdrawn his indorsement of the organization's plan to train boys for sea life, and denied the Secretary of discriminating against the organization and said he had no reason for his action.

The organization announced that, by direction of Secretary Daniels, Admiral William S. Benson and Major Gen. George Barnett would cease as officials of the enterprise. The letter received from the Secretary follows:

> The Secretary of the Navy.
> Washington, July 22, 1919.
>
> My Dear Mr. Bedell: I notice the publication of a letter in which I state that the Navy Department is in full accord with the movement of the American Junior Naval and Marine Scout and desires to assist. This letter must be withdrawn, as I have a rule in the Navy Department not to indorse any organizations except those fully official.
>
> When this letter was signed I signed it under a misapprehension. It must be withdrawn at once, and you must make announcement that the Secretary of the Navy, while appreciating all voluntary organizations to assist in the training of boys, could not give approval to any or assist any of them. The navy is training young men in the service and gives official indorsement only to those agencies which are entirely official and obtain funds from official sources. I wish all organizations well, and I am sorry that by error any letter of this character was sent out. Please withdraw it at once and make public announcement that it has been withdrawn. Unless your organization makes such announcement I will be obliged to do so myself. Sincerely yours,
>
> JOSEPHUS DANIELS.

Mr. Daniel M. Bedell, President American Junior and Naval Marine Scout, 51 Chambers Street, New York, N. Y.

According to Mr. Fleming, the organization makes no charge for training the boys, the entire cost of the work being borne by voluntary contributions.

TWO PETTER PICTURES, $700

The Highest Price at Sale of 82 Paintings Bringing $5,800.

A pair of brilliant flower pictures by Franz Xaver Petter, from the Mrs. Emilie de L. Havemeyer collection, brought the highest price at a small sale of paintings by modern and old masters at the American Art Galleries last evening, going to Seaman, Agent, for $700. A small panel, "Combat Between Musketeers and Arquebusiers," by Sebastian Francken, went to the same buyer for $300. Two paintings by Warren Sheppard, "On the Grand Canal" and "Venice," went to Tom Barry for respectively $300 and $170.

Chelmonski's "The Return from Moscow" went to A. Kahanowiez for $300; a pretty little panel by Alfred Stevens, "Sailing the Summer Seas," went to the Arlington Galleries for $230 and to the same buyer a second painting by Stevens, "Treport," for $200. George Herbert McCord's "Dutch Luggers" went to the Babcock Galleries for $220, and Williams paid $255 for "Coast of Brittany," by McCord and $175 for "The Harvest Moon" by Henri Lerolle. "The Gleaners," by Georges Laugee, went to C. A. McDonough for $175.

The eighty-two pictures of the sale brought $5,800.

QUEEN CABLES THANKS.

Alexandra Grateful for American Gift to Kitchener Memorial.

Queen Alexandra has sent the following cable dispatch to F. Cunliffe-Owen, Chairman of the Kitchener Memorial Fund and Albany Foundation:

> Sandringham, Nov. 9, 1919.
>
> To Frederick Cunliffe-Owen,
> Chairman American Kitchener Memorial Committee, New York.
>
> I am indeed gratified to hear of the most kind and generous gift sent to the Lord Kitchener Memorial Fund which has been raised by the Kitchener Committee in America. I am deeply touched at their selecting this date on which to send it. Will you please convey my warmest thanks to the committee for their kindness. Please also tell them how much I value the kind expressions they use with regard to myself. ALEXANDRA.

ADVOCATE HOUSING BUREAU.

Government Urged to Continue Part of Its Wartime Work.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Representatives of civic and professional associations urged before the House Judiciary Committee today the passage of a bill creating a new bureau in the Department of Labor to carry on part of the wartime work of the United States Housing Corporation.

Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, said the measure would alleviate economic discontent.

J. Horace McFarland, President of the American Civic Association, said that the Government housing activities had unsettled all previous standards, and that it was the Government's duty to meet the problems it had created.

MUNSON LINE'S NEW SERVICE

Will Operate Former German Liners on Buenos Aires Route.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The Munson Line of New York will operate the ships of the new freight and passenger service to be established between New York and Buenos Aires December 15. Officials of the line are now co-operating with the Shipping Board in fitting out the former German liners to be used in the service.

Operators for the Leviathan, Agamemnon and other former German ships have not been decided on, but it is probable that they will be assigned to the International Mercantile Marine.

PREDICTS SUFFRAGE DEFEAT

Mrs. Hildreth Tells of Fight Against Votes for Women.

HARTFORD, Nov. 12.—Mrs. Mary C. Hildreth, President of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, at the annual meeting here of the Connecticut Recruit Branch this afternoon said that the association and other organizations would secure the rejection in thirteen States of the national suffrage amendment, thus killing it.

Mrs. Daniel A. Markham of Hartford was elected Vice President of the organization.

Red Cross Enrolls 200,000.

Red Cross workers in the Metropolitan Division are hopeful of a total of 500,000 new members as a result of the Third Red Cross Roll Call, which ended Tuesday. More than 200,000 members have already been counted, and reports are still to come from the industrial, mercantile, and district divisions, which are continuing the campaign another week.

NEWSPAPERS URGED TO CUT DOWN SIZE

Publishers Recommend Higher Advertising Rates and Reduction of Space.

PAPER SHORTAGE THE CAUSE

Restoration of Wartime Limitations Advised After Address by President Glass.

Voluntary restoration of wartime limitations on the use of newsprint paper was unanimously recommended at a meeting of more than 100 newspaper publishers from all parts of the country yesterday as a solution of the present newsprint shortage. Following an all-day meeting at the Waldorf of the American Publishers' Association, resolutions were adopted favoring a return to wartime regulations, and, among other things, increased advertising and subscription rates and monthly or quarterly adjustments in advertising rates.

The meeting was called by Frank P. Glass of The Birmingham (Ala.) News, President of the association. Besides the publishers, three representatives of paper manufacturers attended. They were R. S. Kellogg of the Newsprint Service Bureau, Thomas Waller of the H. D. Craig Company, and Chester W. Lyman of the International Paper Company.

Mr. Kellogg told the publishers that the mills were unable to increase production, as they were running at 100 per cent. capacity. According to the manufacturers, the newspapers were using 10 per cent. more than was being produced. That meant an annual shortage of approximately 200,000 tons.

Resolutions Adopted at Meeting.

These are the resolutions adopted by the association on the recommendation of a committee formed to draft them:

That the regulations of the War Industries Board for the conservation of newsprint be strictly adhered to, and that the full text of all these regulations be sent to all the daily and Sunday newspapers of the United States, whether or not they are members of the A. N. P. A.

That publishers everywhere be urged to materially increase advertising and subscription rates, and at the same time limit the size of their issues.

That no newspaper enter into a yearly contract for advertising at a rate fixed, but make rates adjustable monthly or quarterly.

That the A. N. P. A. send out a standard form of adjustable contract for advertising.

That the Paper Committee strongly discourage the hoarding of print paper.

That the White Paper Committee and the Legislative Committee of the A. N. P. A. urge the enactment of such legislation as will permit the development of water power so that our timber lands may be made fully available for the manufacture of wood pulp, lumber, and paper; and we also recommend that Congress be urged to take steps that will induce the Canadian Government to rescind the order in Council prohibiting the export of wood cut from Crown lands.

The committee recommended that the President appoint a committee on conciliation for the purpose of adjusting differences between publishers in competitive territories; that the members of this committee be selected with the view to covering the entire country; that this committee formulate such plans and recommendations as will assist in adjusting existing differences as far as possible; that each member of this committee be given allotment over certain territory and be authorized to appoint representatives to confer with conditions in cities or competitive territories within that area."

It was said that the wartime regulations had decreased the total paper tonnage used by newspapers about 17 per cent.

Mr. Glass, in an address at the opening of the meeting, asserted that the publishers themselves were mainly responsible for the present condition of the paper market.

"The unprecedented prosperity of the country, with the extraordinary volume of advertising enjoyed by the daily press particularly, has resulted in the consumption of the surplus stock both of the papers and of the mills," he said.

"If I'm plain," said Mr. Glass, "that all of us must come together in this common council and use our best brains and utmost resolution for the common good. The general welfare must be considered. Sacrifices are necessary and must be planned with intelligence and fortitude. The larger papers in this association have a responsibility for the well-being of the smaller ones especially. If the situation is not met with co-operation and sacrifice it is certain that weaker papers will be unable to get supplies, will be forced to suspend. And by the weaker papers I do not mean those of smaller circulation only, but those which are weak financially. There are many small papers that are strong enough to weather the storm, while there may be bigger papers that are not strong.

Reduction of Advertising.

"It seems certain that more effective remedies must be devised, perhaps heroic ones. The cause being plain, the relief is equally plain. The sizes of our papers must be severely reduced. But how? Ordinary economies in reading space and in waste are not sufficient. It seems to us that knowing the chief cause of our paper shortage, heavy advertising and big issues, we must turn our attention to an arbitrary reduction of advertising for the adequate remedy.

"How can we go about this restriction of advertising space? In two ways. First, by a heavy advance in rates. Daily newspaper rates have always been too low and are still too low. Nearly all papers have made substantial advances in the last three years, but they are not sufficient for the present emergency. It is safe to assert that the costs of newspaper production have on an average increased 100 per cent. in the past year, due to recent advances in labor and the present advance in the cost of print paper. Is it not plain that 25 or 50 per cent. advances in advertising rates are not sufficient to meet the new costs of production? Radical advances should be made, percentages that will hold back the sluice of advertising that has poured into our offices and bids fair to continue to pour during next year.

Every paper should decide and agree that it will cut down its average number of pages, both weekday and Sunday, by a considerable percentage, and then hold down its advertising volume to the fixed number of pages. This will probably necessitate an arbitrary reduction of at least 33 per cent in the volume of business.

The resolutions adopted yesterday were drawn up by a committee composed of M. F. Hansen of The Philadelphia Record, Fleming Newbold of The Washington Star, Victor Polachek of The New York Sun, E. H. Butler of The Buffalo News, E. M. Westphall of The Boston American, and S. G. McClure of The Youngstown Record. Then followed a discussion lasting several hours, in which many of the publishers participated.

Forest conservation and industrial problems are the principal topics at the meeting of the American Paper and Pulp Association, which began yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria.

The association will ask for the adoption of a policy by National and State Governments to accomplish a forest survey, purchase by the Government of cutover lands, an extension of measures for fire prevention, adoption of fair forest taxation laws and a forest planting program. Professional foresters, timber-land owners and consumers of forest products will be asked to co-operate.

SENATOR T.S.MARTIN OF VIRGINIA DEAD

Democratic Leader of Senate Was 72 and Had Entered Upon Fifth Term.

PRAISED FOR WAR WORK

Successor, Because of Approaching Vote on the Treaty, Is Expected to be Appointed Soon.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Nov. 12.—Senator Thomas S. Martin, the Democratic leader in the Senate, died here today after an illness of several months. He was 72 years old.

Senator Martin had been confined to his bed since last July, when he was forced to give up active work in the Senate after a continuous service of twenty-four years. While his condition had been critical for more than two weeks, the end came rather unexpectedly at 1:30 P. M.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The death of Senator Martin was announced to the Senate by his colleague, Senator Swanson, and the Senate, as a mark of respect, adjourned immediately, after adopting resolutions providing for committees of Senators to arrange funeral services and attend the funeral.

Senator Swanson, in a brief eulogy, said Senator Martin's death was a "sacrifice on the altar of public service," superinduced by heavy duties in the Senate during the war.

Senator Swanson paid high tribute to Senator Martin's character and service. "In his death," said Senator Swanson, "a sturdy character has passed from public life.

"As minority leader, as Chairman of the Appropriations Committee during the war he assumed burdens and responsibilities far exceeding his strength. Despite warnings of physicians and friends he remained at his post."

Republican Leader Lodge also declared Senator Martin had "worn himself out in public service."

"I have been in service with Senator Martin for more than a quarter of a century," said Mr. Lodge. "He was a high-minded, honorable man who devoted all his strength and all his ability to the public service. At this moment I can only think of the personal loss that has come to me."

President Wilson today telegraphed Miss Lucy Day Martin, daughter of Senator Martin, his sympathy and grief at the death of her father, saying:

"May I not express my deep sympathy and sense of personal grief in the death of your distinguished father? I regarded him as one of my warmest friends and feel that Virginia and the country has sustained a real loss."

The House adjourned out of respect for Senator Martin after a resolution by Representative Flood, Democrat of Virginia, expressing the regret of the House was read.

A delegation was appointed by Speaker Gillett to represent the House at the funeral.

With the death of Senator Martin speculation arose at the Capitol as to his probable successor in the Senate and also as leader of the Democratic minority.

The Senator's death, coming at a time when final vote on ratification of the treaty approaches, is expected to influence Governor Westmoreland of Virginia to appoint an ad interim successor within the next week. Among Democratic Senators the impression prevailed that the Governor would appoint Harry St. George Tucker, Professor of Law at the Washington and Lee University. Mr. Tucker is understood to hold practically the same views on the treaty as did Senator Martin.

Four Terms in the Senate.

Thomas Staples Martin, who last March began his fifth consecutive term as a Democratic Senator from Virginia, was born July 29, 1847, in the town of Scottsville, Va. His father, a merchant and manufacturer of moderate means, moved six years later with his family to a farm two miles away. This farm the Senator has always regarded as his home.

His early education at the Scottsville school was followed by a few months at the Virginia Military Institute, his course there being interrupted when he with the other cadets joined the Confederate Army. After the war he was able to study two years at the University of Virginia before his father's death forced him to make money for the family's support.

In the intervals of work in a mercantile house he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1869. From then until 1893 he was unknown to the general public. He was induced to enter the field against the popular idol, Major Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, and to the surprise of a large majority of Virginians he defeated the General for the United States Senate and began the first of his five terms in 1895.

In addition to reaching the position of Democratic floor leader, Senator Martin was Chairman of the important Appropriations Committee and in that capacity, and by reason of his long experience and ability, he was one of the leading figures of the Senate during the war.

In 1894 he married Miss Lucy Chamberlin Chamblias Day, daughter of Colonel C. Fenton Day, of Smithfield, Va.

ROME, Nov. 12.—The Marchioness Terresa Beradi, sister of Signor Tittoni, the Italian Foreign Minister, died today.

Many messages of condolence have been sent to the residence of Signor Tittoni, who is expected to arrive in Rome tonight from Paris, where he has been in attendance upon the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference.

COMTESSE D'AZY DEAD.

Former Chicago Girl, Decorated for Red Cross Work, Dies in Syria.

The Comtesse Benoist d'Azy, who was Miss Caroline Mary Jones, daughter of Nathaniel F. Jones of Chicago, is dead at Aleppo, Syria, according to word received by friends in this city last night. She was working for the American Commission for the Near East, with which she went to Constantinople in July.

The Countess lived in Paris for twenty years at 48 Rue St. Ferdinand. Her husband died several years ago. At the outbreak of the war she at once enlisted in Red Cross service and was sent to hospitals close to the front, where the strain of her labors later led to the loss of an eye. She was given the Croix de Guerre, to which were afterward added the golden palms.

JUSTICE E. K. EMERY DEAD.

New York Supreme Court Jurist for Nearly 13 Years Was 68.

BUFFALO, Nov. 12.—Supreme Court Justice Edward K. Emery died here yesterday after an illness of several weeks. He was born in East Aurora in 1851, studied law in this city and was admitted to the bar in 1871. He served one term in the Assembly from 1887 to 1888, returning to his practice here until 1895, when he became County Judge of Erie County, holding the office for eleven years. Since Jan. 1, 1907, he had been on the Supreme Court Bench, his term expiring next year.

He was married in 1886 to Miss Clara B. Darbee.

BLUE ELEVEN GETS ITS LAST SCRIMMAGE BEFORE PRINCETON GAME AND LINEUP IS SETTLED

FIX YALE'S LINEUP TO OPPOSE TIGERS

Coaches Put Lay In as Right Halfback and Allen as Right End.

NO OTHER CHANGES MADE

Array Will Be Otherwise Same as in Brown Game—Final Hard Work for Princeton Is Done.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 12.—The Yale coaches today gave the 'Varsity squad its final scrimmage before the Princeton game and decided upon the lineup against the Tigers. Two changes will be made in the composition of the team which faced Brown last Saturday. Parker Allen has returned to right end, his injured shoulder having fully recovered its strength, and Bob Lay today received the assignment at right half back.

This position was really the last to be settled on the eleven, as Allen was certain to resume his place when his injury healed. But the competition among Lay, Howard Campbell, Donald Welles and Fred Webb for the right half back berth has been keen and close till the very last minute. Webb, who led slightly in the campaign, was set to one side by two broken ribs which he received in the Brown game, and the coaches didn't decide until this afternoon whether to start Lay or Campbell. Lay has been used in the position for two days and his clean cut all around game finally satisfied the coaches of his superiority. Campbell played today and yesterday on the scrubs, where his display of line breaking equalled that of Lay, but his defensive work was less convincing.

Campbell formerly played at Exeter. Lay was a former brilliant Lawrenceville half back, and was the most reliable member of the Yale back field Freshman eleven two years ago. He started practice this Fall as the recognized first string choice for the place, but was shelved by a shoulder bruise which kept him on the side lines for more than a month.

Centre—Callahan.
Right Guard—Galt.
Right Tackle—Dickens.
Right End—Allen.
Quarter Back—Kempton.
Left Half Back—Neville.
Right Half Back—Lay.
Full Back—Braden.

Yale football partisans were today compelled to give odds of five to three and even two to one to place money against Princeton. There was little betting at such prohibitive figures. A request for 2,000 more tickets for the game Saturday was received today from the Princeton Football Association. The Yale ticket department was compelled to decline the request, because every pasteboard went over the counter at Monday's public sale. Meanwhile speculators, who obtained hundreds of tickets at the public sale, are disposing of them at prices varying between $5 and $10. Several arrests have already been made, as such sales are violations of a New Haven ordinance.

MANY EXTRA TRAINS TO RUN.

First Special Will Start from Grand Central at 8:25 A. M.

It is practically assured that a larger number of people will attend the Yale-Princeton football game in New Haven next Saturday than have ever witnessed a similar contest between those two teams. The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad has provided for adequate train service for the host of New York people who will go to the game.

Extra coach train service from New York will begin at 8:25 A. M., and will be continued at frequent intervals until 11:46 A. M. Returning, coach trains will leave New Haven directly after the game, the first extra being in readiness at 4:10 P. M. An extra evening train will leave New Haven at 11:45 P. M.

ARMY LOSES STAR PLAYER.

McQuarrie Is Sent to Hospital Suffering with Rheumatism.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Continued bad weather today failed to halt the Army eleven in its gridiron activities. The whole squad had a long drill in the mud again, the practice being shifted out on the plains. The going was but little better than yesterday. The gridiron proper has been covered with straw in a vain effort to keep it dry.

The absence of Blaik and Bryan who have been sick in the hospital since last Friday is worrying the coaches. Today more gloom was spread here when it was announced that McQuarrie, the Army's one best bet in the backfield, had gone to the hospital with a rheumatic affliction which may prevent his playing again this season. This same trouble is affecting Bryan.

With McQuarrie out the Army's chances are lessened, and as the team enters the stretch for the Navy contest the mentors are very apprehensive. Kelly was in today at tackle on the 'Varsity and White played for Blaik at end. Warren Lystad and Gregory made up the first eleven's backfield with Wilhide guiding the 'Varsity at quarter. Gregory is being groomed to take McQuarrie's place.

STEVENS IN LONG WORKOUT.

Durborow Puts Eleven Through Paces in Preparation for N. Y. U.

Stevens held one of its longest practices of the season yesterday to be in trim for Saturdays game with N. Y. U. The squad reported shortly after noon and did not let up until after dusk set in. Hard work was the order of the day, and the players were weary when Coach Durborow sent them to the showers.

Although the team is considered to be strong on the defense the coach pulled a surprise on the men yesterday by devoting a long period to this sort of practice. Evidently N. Y. U. is expected to loom up with a potent attack, as Durborow announced that the team would be put on the defense against the scrubs for most of today's workout also.

GAME AT EBBETS FIELD.

New York Aggies to Meet Vermont Eleven in Brooklyn Saturday.

Coach Fred Walker is drilling the New York State Aggies football eleven for its game against the University of Vermont, which will be decided Saturday afternoon at Ebbets Field. This contest is one of several the Long Island coach planned for his team following the great showing the Farmingdale lads made against Rutgers. The Long Islanders are confident of victory over the New England aggregation, which furnished one of Columbia's two victories during the season now drawing to a close. The game is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock.

SANFORD TO QUIT RUTGERS.

New Brunswick Citizens Will Give Coach a Banquet Nov. 25.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 12.—In appreciation of George Foster Sanford's efforts as coach at Rutgers during the past seven years the citizens of New Brunswick will give him a banquet here on Nov. 25. L. F. Loree of New York, President of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad, and others have accepted invitations to speak. This is Sanford's valedictory at Rutgers as field coach. He will assume the Captaincy of Advisory Football Coaches and will keep in close touch with the football situation at Rutgers, acting in much the same manner as Walter Camp does at Yale.

If Alexander, the big tackle, recovers sufficiently from the injuries received at Boston, Rutgers will present the same lineup against West Virginia on Saturday as that which was victorious over Boston College. The return of French, the fleet back, who circled the Boston ends at will on Saturday, has speeded up the Rutgers attack. French, who was hurt a month ago, is in fine shape and is being groomed for Saturday's contest, the big home game of the season.

Silker, who broke his wrist in scrimmage three weeks ago, is back for duty and will be used in an emergency. The only injured men who will not be able to play the Virginians are Storck, full back, and Summerill, half back, who are still on the hospital list.

CREW MEN PLAY FOOTBALL.

Captain O'Loughlin and Leys Join Columbia Squad.

A dozen of Coach Jim Rice's huskiest crew men deserted their shells on the Harlem and donned football togs for a brisk scrimmage yesterday afternoon with the Columbia eleven on South Field. Captain Bob O'Loughlin and Duncan Leys were among the oarsmen who composed the impromptu team. Taylor, another of Rice's charges, displayed such ability at the gridiron game that he will receive a try-out from Coach Dawson. The crew man, playing left halfback, dashed through the 'Varsity for a touchdown, which, along with a safety later in the fray, was the extent of the scoring.

Eddie Quigley, 'Varsity quarter back, will be lost to the team for the remainder of the year, according to the player's own statement yesterday. He was examined by a bone specialist, who strongly advised against his continuing in the game, and Quigley said that he would follow the doctor's warning. There is a possible infection of the ankle bone, caused originally by water on the knee.

Charlie Shaw and Jack Kienninger, both members of the crippled squad, reported at yesterday's workout, but only the latter took part in the scrimmage. Forsythe, who has two tendons torn in his right leg, was also absent. Farrell took his place at guard. The backfield, which has received the most serious blows, was made up yesterday of Eccles, at quarterback, Moszczinski and Johnstone, halfbacks, and Applebaum, fullback.

The Canapary incident, which resulted in the expulsion of the Blue and White captain from the squad on Monday, took a new turn yesterday when it became known that the player was appealing to higher authority for reinstatement. It is known that he is willing to return to the team if the athletic authorities will permit, and among the students it is believed that Coach Dawson personally will not oppose.

CANN BACK AT OLD POST.

Again Plays Half Back in N. Y. U. Workout for Stevens Game.

Coaches Longwell and Gargan of the New York University football team yesterday continued to put their charges through the intensive training which they started on Tuesday. A great deal was accomplished yesterday, including some radical changes in the lineup.

A shift which was more or less expected was made when Captain Cann returned from tackle to his old place at half back. His absence in the backfield was greatly felt. Sultzer will take the tackle position. Jackson, who took Cann's place at half, has been shifted to end in place of Adams, who is on the hospital list.

McCaffery, the former crack end at Fordham and a team mate of Gargan's, appeared to help preparations for the Stevens and Columbia games. In yesterday's session he paid a lot of attention to the wings and gave them some valuable pointers.

Almost the entire afternoon was given over to scrimmage, the Violet team taking the defensive most of the time. Hamilton Institute gave them the first opposition and put up a game fight against the collegians. After battling for over a half an hour with the Hamilton boys, the New Yorkers took on the Webb Academy team and had little trouble in holding them. The added strength in the backfield, due to the presence of Cann, was especially encouraging. The line also did well, Storey being the most spectacular performer of the forwards.

NAVY GIVEN HARD DRILL.

Coach Gilmour Dobie Drives Annapolis Eleven in Scrimmage Work.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 12.—Coach Dobie drove the Navy team at a hard pace this afternoon against the substitutes and later against the heavy squad B team. The field was still soft from the morning's rain. At the start he used Koehler, Clark, Cruise and Watters in the back field, the players who have started the last two games. It is likely that this will be the combination which will start against the Army in the final game of the season.

Koehler and Clark will have some hard competition. Koehler's place is threatened by Taylor, the fourth classman, while Rawlings is expected to give Clark a run, if the former gets into proper condition. He was on the field for the first time this afternoon, after a lay-off of two weeks, and it will be another week before he can scrimmage. Dobie is anxious to get his back field settled, so that he can give his players more individual attention and increase the range of the plays which the team will use.

W. VA. USES RIVAL'S PLAYS.

Scrubs Test Rutgers Formations on 'Varsity with Big Success.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 12.—Coach Fuller, who viewed the Rutgers-Syracuse football game at New York last week, had charge of the scrub team today while it opposed the 'Varsity on offense, and some of Foster Sanford's pet plays were put on exhibition. The mountaineer 'Varsity was apparently dismayed by the deceptiveness and power of the Rutgers style, and the scrubs gained more consistently and for greater distances than at any other time this season.

Although there was disappointment at the showing of the team on defense, the fact that all the cripples were again on the field and apparently on the road to complete recovery was gratifying to the fans assembled.

The team will have its last practice here tomorrow, and on Friday will practice at Franklin Field, Philadelphia. The team will leave here at 8 o'clock tomorrow, and probably twenty players will be carried.

52,000 Want to See Big Game.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 12.—A total of 52,000 applications, 3,000 in excess of the seating capacity, has been received for tickets for the Harvard-Yale football game on Nov. 22, it was announced tonight. Tickets will be mailed on Sunday night.

LONG RUN FEATURE OF TIGERS' DRILL

Stevenson, Scrub End, Dashes 70 Yards Through Broken Field for Touchdown.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 12.—A magnificent run of seventy yards through a broken field by Bill Stevenson, second string end, netted the second team a touchdown and a tie score with the 'Varsity eleven here this afternoon. The first eleven still gave evidence of the severe schedule it has been called on to play for the last three weeks, and in general its performance was not up to to standard set in the Colgate and Harvard games.

In making his touchdown Stevenson lived up to one of the strongest of Princeton football traditions. It is axiomatic that a loose ball in a game where the Tigers are playing will almost always be recovered by an Orange and Black warrior. Sam White brought the 1911 championship to Eddie Hart's team by snatching up fumbles in both the big games and running the length of the field for touchdowns, and this afternoon the scrub got the ball when a 'Varsity back fumbled.

He was off in the twinkling of an eye and his course through the entire 'Varsity team was as inspiring a bit of open-field running as has been seen here this Fall.

"Big Bill" Edwards, the mighty guard of bygone Nassau teams, had a surprise in store for the men as they trooped into the Osborne Field house for their evening meal. The second eleven celebrated its great showing against practically the same team that held Harvard to a tie with a darky jazz orchestra which Edwards had on hand to provide musical numbers throughout the meal.

The day's work commenced with dummy scrimmage. Both teams punted on the first down, and the forwards had the task of tearing down the field under the kicks. The men made a woefully weak showing in this department against Harvard Saturday, compared with the brand of play put up by the Crimson players, and Roper is paying a lot of attention to this kind of work this week. Wittmer handled the kicking assignments for the 'Varsity. Even on the heavy field a marked improvement was noticeable in the way the linemen and ends got down to the man receiving the kick.

Playing without the services of Captain McGraw, Frosty Williams, and Maury Trimble, the team was unable to shove the ball across the second team's goal line more than once, Hank Garrity crashing through for the tally.

McGraw's absence permitted Pinky Baker, Mal Dickinson, and Bill Morgan to jump into the fray at the guard positions. Which of these men will start at left guard against Yale is still uncertain. Dick Raymond played right end in place of Williams, and Shad Davis was at his regular post at left end.

Oswald Parisette, whose work at right tackle stood out against the Crimson, was there today, with Linch and Bigler alternating at left tackle. Mike Callahan appeared at the pivot position and it is a practical certainty that the long advertised battle between Mike and his brother, Tim, will take place in the centre of the line in the Yale bowl on Saturday afternoon next.

WILL HANDICAP BOYNTON.

Wet Field Appears Likely for the Williams-Amherst Game.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Nov. 12.—With the Amherst game but three days away and Weston Field like a morass, hopes for a dry gridiron, which is considered Williams' best chance, are disappearing here. The feeling prevails that a sloppy field will favor Amherst, as it will interfere with Boynton's open-field running.

Coach Brooks gave the 'Varsity a long defensive drill this afternoon. The freshman eleven, one of the best first year aggregations at the college in recent years, well equipped with Amherst plays, was opposed in a long scrimmage.

The 'Varsity lined up the same as was the case yesterday, and it begins to look as if Gillsam had firmly established himself at left guard after a spirited fight all season with Beebe. Beckett also seems to be first choice for the backfield berth, which has been a source of keen competition with Christian and Wilson as his chief rivals.

COLGATE DRILLS IN MUD.

Peterson, Carroll, and Sullivan Arrive to Aid Coaches.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Rain this morning again put the practice field in a wet and sloppy condition and practice this afternoon had hardly started before a fine drizzle started to fall and continued until darkness put an end to the afternoon's work.

Notwithstanding the bad weather the Colgate squad went through a comparatively hard workout, which will be the last of the season, as tomorrow and Friday will be turned over to polishing off the plays and getting the individual men in trim for the strenuous battle of Saturday with Syracuse.

The last scrimmage of the year was not long, but it covered every department of the game, both offensive and defensive tactics being given especial attention. Nothing spectacular or unusual occurred in the scrimmage, as both the first and second teams found it hard work to put forth any sensational work on account of the condition of the ground. The regulars in particular handled the ball in a slipshod fashion which undoubtedly was due in a large measure to the mud.

LEHIGH COACH WORRIED.

Reversal of Form Shown by Eleven Causes Alarm at Bethlehem.

BETHLEHEM, Penn., Nov. 12.—The reversal of form shown by the Lehigh team in the Penn State game has alarmed Coach Keady, who is now giving a rest to members of the eleven, who have apparently gone stale. In the splendid defense against the University of Pittsburgh the Lehigh line displayed power that was by no means in evidence last Saturday.

There was a signal practice yesterday for those who were told to report. All were out today for the mid-week practice.

The team is being pointed for the game with its old rival, Lafayette, to be played in Taylor Stadium here on Nov. 22. The contest with Muhlenberg College next Saturday will be subordinated to this larger aim.

MT. PLEASANT TRIUMPHS.

HARVARD REGULARS RESUME PRACTICE

Crimson 'Varsity Football Team in Scrimmage Against Scrubs, Who Use Yale Plays.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 12.—Football for the Harvard 'Varsity players was resumed in the Stadium this afternoon. Billy Murray had his team working on signals just as it started against the Tigers except that Phinney was at left end instead of Desmond. Harvard's big end is still nursing a badly twisted knee. He has come back to Cambridge, but was not at the field today and will not do any work until he is right. Except for a little more drilling on defense he is considered ready for the final game.

The Harvard lineup in the scrimmage against the scrubs was, however, much more interesting than that of the team when it first ran through its plays. When the drill against the scrubs, who used Yale formations, began there were two changes in the 'Varsity lineup.

The first was to take Burnham out of the first string backfield and to draw Arnold Horween out from centre to take the head of the offensive tandem. Havemeyer, who played most of the Princeton game, played centre, and no trick will be left unturned by Line Coach Parmenter to have him right. Havemeyer was all right in the line against the Tigers. On defense his failure to do his full job on the Tigers' short forward passes to Williams was what caused his retirement more than anything else.

The second change was even more radical. Kieth Kane, who has been a regular at right tackle all season, was pushed out to right end to relieve Morris Phinney, and Hubbard was sent into the lineup at right tackle. Hubbard has been a 'Varsity proposition all year, and upon his return after an absence of several weeks he has been making the going hard for both Kane and Sedgwick.

It is believed, however, that Kane will be at tackle and Desmond at end when the Yale game starts.

BROWN READY FOR GREEN.

Hard Workout at Providence with Dartmouth Game Looming Up.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 12.—In the stiffest workout of the season today the Brown 'Varsity showed a wide margin of superiority over the scrubs, although the second team men, using Dartmouth plays, succeeded in scoring a touchdown. Both elevens kept on their toes and the play was hard and vigorous. At first the second eleven's attack was bewildering to the regulars and the scrubs advanced at times with more or less ease. As the play progressed, however, the 'Varsity defense stiffened and the seconds could make but little impression on it. During the time that the 'Varsity players had the ball they used only three or four line plays, Coach Robinson's idea being to perfect those that need developing.

In spite of the fact that the scrubs knew both the formations and the signals, the 'Varsity forwards ripped huge holes in the second team's line and the backs tore through for large gains. Coulter and Crowther divided the time at the quarterback position and both men showed up well in the scrimmage.

WORK IN BASEBALL CAGE.

Rain Makes Dartmouth's Crippled Football Team Practice Indoors.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 12.—Dartmouth's crippled 'Varsity will not lack student support at the Brown game, for close to 1,200 undergraduates have already signified their intention of making the trip to Boston. The administration office has made Saturday an athletic holiday, which means the suspension of all classes from Friday noon until Monday morning. The college band, which won popular favor at both of the Polo Grounds games, will also accompany the team.

Frank Dorney, former Newton High centre, took Swede Youngstrom's position at right guard today. In the Penn game Dorney played more than a period, his work placing him as the best bet among the second-string linemen. Mel Merritt was in Myers's place at left end, which position he will probably hold Saturday.

Just what will be the makeup of the Green backfield is uncertain. As it stands now, it seems that the trio to start will include Thompson at left half, Jordan at full back, and Grundman at right half.

GLOOMY OUTLOOK AT PITT.

Glen Warner Is Discouraged Over Loss of Star Performers.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 12.—Coach Glenn Warner of the University of Pittsburgh football team has been forced to resort to many new trick formations in order to keep his team to the fore this season, owing to an extraordinary number of injured players. Today, when the Panthers ran on the field for practice and Tom Davies and Jimmy Dehart were not with them, the Old Fox admitted that he was discouraged at the outlook. Dehart is said to be out for the season with a badly wrenched ankle that was aggravated in the first few minutes of play on Saturday, while Davies is suffering from rough handling received in the last two games with Lehigh and W. and J. The latter is said to be at his home confined to bed, and it is feared that he will not be able to play against Pennsylvania at Philadelphia on Saturday.

The backfield is what Warner has depended on all season to keep Pitt in front, as the line has always been weak, so that with Davies and Dehart out and Jim Morrow far from right, the big problem for Saturday's game is to develop a new backfield. Hastings was tried at right half today, with Morrow taking it easy at full back, while McCracken was used at quarter back and Laughran at left half.

CLASON POINT A WINNER.

Captain Vegara Stars in 27 to 0 Victory Over Morris Eleven.

Captain George Vegara of the Clason Point Military Academy football eleven led his team to victory yesterday over the Morris High School team on the Clason Point gridiron by a score of 27 to 0. Vegara helped in all four touchdowns made by his team.

The lineup:

CLASON PT., (27.)		MORRIS, (0.)
H. Reilly	L. E.	Dickman
Waters	L. T.	Pant
Vogeley	L. G.	Seff

J. Greene	R. E.	Sikleman
Gass	Q. B.	Waterbury
Neary	L. H. B.	Gross
Ward	R. H. B.	Soprin
Vegara	F. B.	Freedman

Touchdowns—Ward, Vegara, (2,) Greene. Goals from touchdowns—Vegara, (3.)

Substitutions—Clason Point: Minogue for Vogeley, Maguire for Mahoney, Joseph Reilly for John Reilly, Harahan for J. Greene; Morris: Jones for Pant, Goldberg for Soprin.

Referee—Joseph Hooter, Fordham University. Umpire—Sergeant J. Weis, U. S. A. Linesman—W. Davis. Time of periods—Ten minutes.

FIVE PLAYERS ARE TIED.

Cannefax, McCourt, Reiselt, Maupome, and Jackson Lead in Billiards.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 12.—Five of the ten players competing in the National three-cushion billiard championship tournament are tied for first place. By winning today and tonight R. L. Cannefax of New York, Charles McCourt of Cleveland, Otto Reiselt of Chicago, and Pierre Maupome of Milwaukee are on even terms with Clarence Jackson of Detroit, with three games won and one lost. Jackson was idle today.

Reiselt defeated Hugh Heal of Toledo tonight, 50 to 37, in 55 innings. Maupome won from Byron Gillette of Buffalo, 50 to 26, in 62 innnings. Reiselt's run of 7 was high tonight.

Cannefax defeated Jesse Lean of Cincinnati, 50 to 44, in 56 innings this afternoon. Cannefax had a high run of 7. McCourt won the second afternoon game by defeating Tiff Denton of Kansas City by a score of 50 to 33 in 46 innings. McCourt had a high run of 7.

SLOAN LOSES AT BILLIARDS.

Promising Young Player Yields to Macy in Class C Game.

In the American Amateur Billiard Association's Class C metropolitan championship 18.2 balkline tournament being held at Fuller's Academy, Arthur Macy defeated Cecil Sloan last night by a score of 200 to 123. Sloan is the 19-year-old player who has shown such promising form. He was plainly nervous last night and was far from being at his best. The big crowd of fully 200 persons who watched the game made him ill at ease.

Macy played consistently and recorded high runs of 28 and 24. Sloan's best efforts netted him 28 and 13. The winner averaged 3 28-64 and Sloan averaged an even 2. Macy took the lead early in the game and always had a comfortable working margin.

McKENZIE SAVES CUE GAME.

Comes from Behind to Defeat Adair at Angle Contest.

In one of the most interesting three-cushion billiard matches that has been played in this city in some time Herbert McKenzie defeated Charles Adair in the tournament being held at Doyle's Academy last night by a score of 25 to 22. The game went forty-one innings and was replete with excellent playing by both the players. The feature was the great uphill playing of McKenzie.

Adair started with a rush, making a run of 6 in one of the early innings. At one time he enjoyed a lead of 16 to 7 and appeared a sure winner. McKenzie found his stroke, however, and by consistently knocking off two and three points he overcame Adair's big lead, and the players were tied at 19, 20 and 21 points.

CLARK GAINS IN POOL MATCH

Wins, 108 to 100, After Losing to Greenleaf in the Afternoon.

George Clark managed to gain a little last night on Ralph Greenleaf in their 1,200-point pocket billiard match being played at Maurice Daly's Academy. He knocked off 108 balls before Greenleaf got his 100, but in the afternoon Greenleaf won the block by a score of 100 to 73. The total score for the match is: Greenleaf, 600; Clark, 391.

The evening game was productive of some interesting pocket billiards. It was a nip and tuck battle, with neither player having any decided advantage at any time. They were tied at 90 points and Clark made a run of 9. He missed an easy shot, however, and Greenleaf made the one point needed to end the game. Greenleaf had a high run of 28 during the game, while Clark's best was 33. In the afternoon both players made runs of 41.

James Maturo, the Denver cue expert, who is one of the players entered in the national pocket billiard championship tournament to be held in Philadelphia next month, arrived in this city last night. He will practice at Daly's next week.

LOW WINS FROM GARDNER.

Takes Uninteresting Match in Class C Billiards, 150 to 115.

The third game in the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players' Class C 18.2 balkline tournament for the metropolitan championship was played at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night. It was between J. W. Low and Gus Gardner. Both players were away off their best form. Neither had his stroke working, and it took fifty-three innings to play the game. Low won by a score of 150 to 115. He had a high run of 15, against Gardner's 12. The winner averaged 2 46-53 and the loser 2 11-52.

It was slow and uninteresting billiards. No doubt this was due in a great measure to the adverse weather conditions. The balls lost much of their resiliency, because of the dampness, and the cushions were dead.

Rennie Beats Dr. Jennings.

Charles Rennie, playing for 135, defeated Dr. H. D. Jennings, playing for 200, by a score of 135 to 186 last night in the Brooklyn 18.2 balkline billiard handicap tournament being held at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy. It was an uninteresting game. Neither of the players showed any real form. Rennie's high run was 11 and Jennings's was 21. The winner averaged 2 15-60 and the loser 3 6-60.

SAPP RUNS TO A VICTORY.

Aided by Four-Minute Allowance, He Leads Harbrook Race.

A handicap of four minutes aided C. Sapp to victory last night in the monthly handicap road race for members of the Harbrook Heights A. C., conducted over a course of about five miles. Sapp was in front over the greater part of the journey and finished with a convincing margin separating him from J. Hoban, who started with a handicap of 3 minutes 30 seconds. The victor's time was 28:50 and Hoban was clocked in 30 minutes.

J. Murray, allowed a two-minute start, finished third in 28:32, a short distance in front of Harry Brown, the scratch starter, who covered the course in 27:03. This performance gave Brown the fast time laurels. Wilson Preck, who got away with the two-minute handicap starters, finished fifth in 28:40.

SADDLE HORSE PET VICTOR AT PIMLICO

Widener's Tufter Causes Sensation by Winning His First Race.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 12.—J. E. Widener, the Philadelphia sportsman, who owns a string of high-class racers, brought out a new one today which caused a mild sensation at Pimlico. This was a black gelding 4 years old, named Tufter, which, it is said, had been used by the Widener family as a saddle horse. Tufter proved to be something more than a family pet, for he galloped away from a field of maidens in the first race, to win by six lengths.

As Tufter had never been to the races before and his name was practically unknown except to clockers and trainers, it was intended to spring him as a surprise. He had been training since last Summer, but had never been named for a race until today. He was grouped with the field in the betting, which is equivalent to being considered a rank outsider, but somehow the news that Tufter was quite a horse spread around through the crowd until the few who had looked for him to be a long shot discovered that he was a red-hot favorite. He was a 3-to-2 choice at post time, and the tip on him had been so strong that most of the others in the field were entirely neglected.

Tufter had the lead at the first turn in the mile test and drew away rapidly in the back stretch, but Myers gave him a breathing spell just before reaching the far turn, and then sent him along again. Tufter ran like a high-class horse, and once let down he made a show of his field. He splashed down in front six lengths ahead of Free Mantle, which was struggling to save the place from Little Ed. Lebalaire, which had been regarded as the logical winner until Tufter was heralded about, failed to get into the contest after the first half mile.

Six Favorites Repay Backers.

Despite the steady downpour of rain and the sloppy track, conditions that are generally considered against form, it was a gala day for favorites. Six of the public choices came home in front, and, though most of them paid small prices in the mutuels, they brought smiles to their supporters. The only exception was Goldine, which was the choice in the second race. Goldine was badly defeated by Sister Helene, while Cinderella took the place.

The rain and the sloppy track resulted in numerous scratches, which all but marred the card. The feature of the day was the Rennert Handicap, at a mile. Some good ones, including Corn Tassel, had been named for it, but only five horses went to the post. The race proved an easy victory for Mrs. R. A. Smith's Slippery Elm, which was at home in the going and which was also favored by the weights. Slippery Elm won by six lengths from W. L. S. Martin's Brideman, which recently took the measure of Sir Barton when he ran second to Mad Hatter. Ballet Dancer II. was third.

Slippery Elm was a 1 to 2 choice, as Brideman had been obliged to take up 120 pounds, against 108 for the winner. Slippery Elm was in front all the way, and drew away to win in a gallop in the final furlong. Brideman ran a game race, but suffered interference on the far turn, which spoiled any chance he might had have to win. Ballast bumped into him twice as the horses were going around the bend and knocked him off his stride. Brideman managed to get going again and took second by five lengths.

Tippity Witchet Comes Back.

G. W. Loft's Tippity Witchet, which is now at top form, proved to be much the best in the Linstead Handicap for all ages this afternoon at six furlongs. Tippity Witchet had recently been defeated when obliged to carry high weight, but he was under an impost of 104 pounds today and he defeated Dr. Johnson, Old Rosebud and Arrah Go On, after being practically left at the post. Old Rosebud was well supported, as the track was to his liking and he carried light weight, but the old racer seems to run in fits, and after getting out in front today he quit in the stretch and was third.

Tippity Witchet was a bad last leaving the barrier, but raced up on the outside and gained gradually until he was right at the heels of Old Rosebud turning into the stretch. Old Rosebud decided he had run far enough for one day, and when he began to slow down Tippity Witchet had an easy victory in hand. Pierce, who rode Tippity Witchet, rode four winners during the day, scoring also with Sister Helene, Meliora and The Desert.

Ral Parr's Warlock captured the Monkton Steeplechase at three miles in a field of four starters. He led home Mrs. F. A. Clark's Elysian, W. M. Jefford's Barkilo and E. C. Griffith's Flare.

Warlock was kept off the pace for two turns of the field, while Flare and Elysian alternated in taking the lead. Crawford did not make a move on the winner until he had entered the backstretch for the last turn, when he began to rush up on the leaders. He caught Elysian just before the last jump. Elysian made a bad landing and Warlock went on to an easy victory, although he appeared to have defeated Elysian when the latter met with his mishap.

K. N. Gilpin's Meliora proved to be a good mudlark in the sixth race at a mile and a sixteenth and was a winner by six lengths from Mannchen, with Hickory Nut third. Meliora was an odds on favorite and never left her supporters in doubt about the result. She went to the front as she passed the stands first time and raced away from the others to win as she pleased.

J. Lumsden's The Desert proved equally as good in the mud in the last race when he came home three lengths in front of Tetley, with Major Domo third and Ivry last. He set the pace all the way and was never threatened. Ivry, which came back after a long rest, did not like the going and could not keep up with the others.

Boxer Is Slightly Paralyzed.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 12.—Eugene Brosseau, Canadian middleweight champion, who boxed here last night with George Chip, discovered today that one side of his face and his left arm were slightly paralyzed.

HERMAN WINS FAST BOUT FROM LYNCH

Bantamweight Champion Outpoints New Yorker in 6-Round Contest at Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Pete Herman of New Orleans is a real champion. He is not a one-half of one per cent. title holder, but a one hundred per cent. ruler of the bantamweights. To this, more than 5,000 fistic fans, who crowded every nook and corner of the spacious Olympia A. A. tonight, shouted "yes, verily."

Joe Lynch of New York was outpointed by the champion in a sizzling bout. Every round bristled with action. Three of the six rounds were carried by the champion, one was even, and two went to New York's entry for the bantamweight crown.

It was a scientific mixup with a sensational finish. The King of the Bantams appreciated the stake for which he was fighting. He realized that Lynch was out to spill the diadem parked on his head via the knockout route. On the other glove, Lynch was careful in the early rounds, but always on the alert with his right, the old "Mary Ann" that he expected to bring to him the title.

To Lynch went the spoils in the first two rounds. He clearly outboxed the champion in these early sessions. The advantage went to the New Yorker in these sessions because he did most of the leading and managed to break through Herman's defense.

It was in the third that Herman found his real stride. By scoring with lefts to the head and body and occasionally sending his right to Lynch's chin the champion won this session. Again in the fourth Herman was superior.

In the fifth, when there was little to choose between either combatant, Lynch held his own in this session by forcing the champion to back away after a series of exchanges at close quarters.

The sixth was Herman's. He won the round by a wide margin.

COLUMBIA FRESHMEN WIN.

Defeat Yonkers Harriers in Race at Van Cortlandt Park.

The Columbia freshman cross-country team carried off first honors in a three-mile race with Yonkers High School yesterday afternoon over the Van Cortlandt Park course. Six of the first eight men to finish were freshman runners. Helfing of Yonkers led the field, closely pressed by Skeats of the freshman team. The two were only a step apart at the tape after a fifty-yard sprint. The final score was: Freshmen, [illegible] Yonkers, 34.

THE Neverbreak "Ironsides" Wardrobe Trunk is "built for punishment"—and successfully withstands it.

Covered with steel embossed in a canvas pattern, it possesses unusual durability and sturdiness—yet weighs but a trifle more than an unprotected trunk.

The garment rack is removable—making for as great ease in use as in packing.

At these stores only—a wardrobe trunk that satisfies one's every requirement. Three sizes, $45, $60, $75.

CUP CHALLENGER, SHAMROCK IV, IS LAUNCHED AFTER HAVING BEEN HAULED OUT SINCE 1914

SHAMROCK IV. TAKES WATER IN BROOKLYN

Two Hundred Join Lipton in Admiring Yacht as She Ends Five-Year Seclusion.

SIR THOMAS IS HOPEFUL

Says a Victory for British Craft Would Stimulate Interest—Jokes with Spectators.

Sir Thomas Lipton saw the yacht with which he hopes to lift the America's cup take the water yesterday at James Shewan & Son's shipyard at the foot of Twenty-seventh Street, Brooklyn. It was the first time the boat had tasted water in nearly five years.

In the presence of about 200 persons the Shamrock IV. skidded gracefully down the ways amid the applause of the small gathering. Sir Thomas Lipton beamed happily as the yacht touched the water with scarcely a ripple. He looked admiringly at the huge craft and smilingly remarked: "I will be the happiest man in the world if I win the cup. I am sure that Americans, too, will be pleased if I win, for it will stimulate interest and enthusiasm in yachting."

Every line of the boat bespeaks speed. Sir Thomas has tried to win the coveted trophy with three previous yachts, but this one seems the most likely. Favorable comments were heard on every side as she was taken in tow by a tug and started on her way toward Jacob's shipyards at City Island, where she will be quartered for the Winter and early in the Spring made ready for the races next Summer.

While the New York Yacht Club has not yet formally considered the challenge received several weeks ago from the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, there does not seem to be a doubt about the acceptance. The chances are that definite action on the challenge will be deferred for several weeks yet. It is probable that Sir Thomas will have returned to England before the New York Yacht Club makes its formal reply. However, Sir Thomas is proceeding with all the necessary arrangements to prepare the boat that will carry the hopes of England in the cup races next year.

Sir Thomas "Forgets" the Cost.

Just before the Shamrock IV. was eased down the greased ways Sir Thomas was asked: "What did this boat cost you?"

"I don't know," he answered, and then smiled broadly as he jokingly added: "Furthermore, if I did know it probably would be bad for my health."

Accompanying Sir Thomas Lipton was Commodore William Taylor, the yachtsman. They looked the boat over carefully as she rested on the platform where she had been propped up on Tuesday after being taken from the shed where she had been housed for five years. Sir Thomas seemed pleased with the appearance of the craft although he made no other comment than that she was the most peculiar boat he ever owned.

He appeared to be in a jovial mood and the cold from which he has been suffering seemed much improved. He was asked about his health and genially replied:

"Oh, improving, thank you. The American doctors know how to treat colds. They prescribe a pretty girl's arms around your neck." Then he laughed heartily. One of those present remarked: "I'm sorry we cannot prescribe the remedy here, Sir Thomas."

"Ah, too many photographers around," he countered with a grin and a wink.

Lauds American Courtesy.

Sir Thomas later said that he had been offered the gold eagle which was on board the old America when she won the cup in English waters more than fifty years ago. He said he had received the offer in a letter yesterday morning from a man named Neeson. "Isn't that a fine spirit?" he added. "I have always found Americans anxious to please and treat me fine. Nothing I have asked for has ever been refused."

Then he became reminiscent and spoke about the mascots that were sent him during the last international races. Among them, he said, were nine Irish terriers, a number of pet rabbits, many black cats, and some people in Kansas sent him grasshoppers. He told of a woman who offered her red-headed boy, who, she said, would undoubtedly bring him luck in his efforts to lift the cup. He told the woman to keep the lad at home where he would be safe.

Just what will have to be done to the boat or whether her rig will be changed Sir Thomas did not say. However, it is understood that he has practically decided just what is necessary. There is no immediate hurry to prepare for the races and the chances are that nothing of importance will be done to the boat until next Spring when she will be taken from her Winter quarters and made ready for the races for which she was built in 1914.

JAY GOULD WINS ON COURT.

Shows Approach to Former Tennis Skill in Defeating Soutar.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Jay Gould, the American champion of court tennis, continued to show improved form today, playing three strenuous sets with Jock Soutar and winning two sets to one. Soutar won the first match, 6—5, and it was a grueling set, for although only eleven games were played, deuce and advantage was called so many times that before the set was finally finished in favor of Soutar, forty-five minutes had elapsed.

The score of the second set, 6—3, in favor of Jay Gould, failed to indicate the speed and skill both players displayed. In the third set Gould won a hard fought victory, for Soutar started off with a lead of four games to two, and the final decision that the set was Jay Gould's rested on the close margin of 6—5. The general opinion at the Racquet Club is that Jay Gould is steadily approaching his old-time form, and many wagers were made today that he would again win the American championship in December.

ELEVEN STARS ARE COMING.

Well-Known European Bicycle Riders on Way for Six-Day Race.

Eleven of Europe's most prominent bicycle riders are on their way to this country, word being received last night by Promoter Young that the men have sailed on the French steamers Lafayette, La Savoie and La France. Before sailing the men agreed to terms and signed contracts to ride in the six-day race at Madison Square Garden starting Nov. 30.

This is the greatest number of foreign stars to enter a New York six-day race, among the party being four Italians, Girardengo, Arets, Charbonne, and Brocco; three Frenchmen, Dupuy, Byle, and Godiver; three Belgians, Busse, Spiessens, and Tiberghein, and one Swiss, Oscar Egg. The latter is in charge of the Italians and will supervise their training on board the steamer La France. Two more riders are expected to sail Sunday, making thirteen in all.

Percy Lawrence and Willie Hanley, the Californian youngsters, signed to ride yesterday and will team up as in last year's race, when they drew down fourth prize. Lawrence and Hanley are popular with the six-day fans, and have never been out of the prize money since coming here from the Pacific Coast eight years ago. In a few of the races they teamed with different partners, but have always finished up in front.

SURPRISES SPRUNG IN SQUASH TENNIS

Harvey Defeats Riggs in the Second Round of Invitation Tourney at Yale Club.

All the squash tennis experts entered in the invitation tournament at the Yale Club got into action yesterday, several of the ranking players having drawn byes and thus escaping the opening round. A generally higher standard of squash was the result, and in a number of instances the decisions took a surprising turn. Among those to advance to the third round were R. E. Fink, former New Jersey State champion; H. D. Harvey of Princeton; Anderson Dana, the national runner-up of 1916; F. S. Keeler of Columbia; Rudolph Goepel of the Greenwich Field Club; E. J. Clapp, the Yale hurdler and tennis star; Livingstone Platt of Yale, and A. J. Cordier, also belonging to the home club.

Fink's impressive victory over Stuart Johnson, one of the Blue's best racquet swingers and a prominent member of the West Side Tennis Club as well, provided the first sensation of the day. The Englewood man was in splendid form for so early in the season, making few errors and hitting with the greatest confidence even from the most difficult positions. He improved with every stroke, and after losing the opener at 16—9, cleaned up the second game still more easily by a 15—5 score.

R. E. T. Riggs of the Squash Club, a national semi-finalist in 1916, made a gallant fight against H. D. Harvey, one of Princeton's strongest representatives, but found that his long adherence to military duties had undermined his game too much. He hung on gamely throughout the opening session, forcing extra points by taking long chances, and eventually losing by the close count of 18—16. But his desperate efforts failed to bring him any real command of his strokes, and in the second game Harvey pulled quickly ahead, while Riggs subsided t othe tune of 15—6.

Headwork Wins for Dana.

The experienced Dana had his hands full in disposing of G. Piel of the New York Athletic Club, the first game going to extra points at 18—11, with the second score 15—9. Dana's headwork proved too much for his hard-hitting rival, but the showing of the loser was highly creditable.

The Greenwich representative, Rudolph Goepel, also surprised some of the wise ones by polishing off William Adams, Jr., of the home club, in three games by scores of 15—8, 8—15, and 15—8. A curious coincidence of this match was the identity of the losing totals. Each man seemed able to reach a count of eight without difficulty, only to see the game fade out of sight, as his scoring stopped completely. Goepel got the jump at the crucial moment in two of the three sessions, and deserved to win.

E. J. Clapp, who has played little class A squash as yet, added an important victim to his list in A. E. Ells of the Harvard Club, whom he defeated in two out of three games, 5—15, 17—14, 15—11. The Yale man seemed outclassed at the start, scoring only five times in the opener. But he came back with a great rally, pulling out ahead in an extra-length session, and thus squaring the match. The rubber was close, but Clapp had enough in reserve to go on to a decision at 15—12.

J. N. Worcester, of Columbia, and N. F. Torrance, of the Crescent Athletic Club, however, had the closest battle of the day, the former winning in three hard fought games, 15—10, 17—16, 18—16. Both men played exceedingly clever squash, and the result was in doubt until the final ace had been registered. R. C. Coburn's victory over S. Wainwright was also a much more even affair than the scores showed. Although the Harvard crack landed the decision in straight games, the first went to extra points, while the second was far from one-sided.

Cordier Defeats Bulkley.

H. Duncan Bulkley, champion of the Columbia University Club, was put out of the running by A. J. Cordier, of Yale, but the struggle was close all the way. The younger Bulyley (Kenneth) continued his good showing with a decisive victory over F. D. Shaw, a clubmate, who failed to get past a total of 6 in either game en route to the day fell to Livingstone Platt, of Yale, who allowed R. E. Wigham, of Columbia, only one point in the first game and two in the second.

John Munroe, of Harvard, again impressed the squash fans with his speed and versatility of stroke when he took that excellent player, J. A. Victor, into camp by successive scores of 18—15 and 15—13. The final match of the day brought the Yale football star, Douglas Bomeisler, against J. W. Pulleyn, of Columbia, and the former won impressively at 15—11, 15—10. Another football veteran, Alan L. Corey, defaulted his match to Carroll O'Mooney, the 200-pound Princeton guard of a few years ago, the latter having taken the place of Frank Kidde, the present New Jersey State champion, who found it impossible to compete.

The summary follows:

Second Round.—R. E. Fink, Englewood, defeated S. H. Johnson, Yale, 15—9, 15—5; H. D. Harvey, Princeton, defeated R. E. T. Riggs, Squash Club, 18—16, 15—6; Anderson Dana, Harvard, defeated G. Piel, New York, C. C., 15—9, 18—11; F. S. Keeler, Columbia, won from D. S. Baker, Yale, by default; Rudolph Goepel, Greenwich Field Club, defeated William Adams, Jr., Yale, 15—8, 8—15, 15—8; E. J. Clapp, Yale, defeated A. E. Ells, Harvard, 5—15, 17—14, 15—11; J. N. Worcester, Columbia, defeated N. F. Torrance, Crescent A. C., 17—10, 15—18, 18—14; R. C. Coburn, Harvard, defeated S. Wainwright, Yale, 15—10, 16—5; Kenneth Bulkley, Columbia, defeated F. D. Shaw, Columbia, 15—10, 15—5; Livingstone Platt, Yale, defeated R. E. Wigham, Columbia, 15—1, 15—2; J. Munroe, Harvard, defeated J. A. Victor, Yale, 18—13, 15—13; D. Bomeisler, Yale, defeated J. W. Pulleyn, Columbia, 15—11, 15—10; C. T. Cooney, Yale, won from A. L. Corey, Yale, by default; A. J. Cordier, Yale, defeated H. D. Bulkley, Columbia, 15—11, 15—9.

Princeton Club Squash Tourney.

One match was played yesterday afternoon in the handicap squash tennis tournament of the Princeton Club on the Yale Club courts. H. R. Mixsell, playing from scratch, allowed R. Piel a lead of 5 aces and won with the actual loss of only one point, the two games being scored at 15—5 and 15—4. Piel was outclassed by his experienced opponent, who has an honorable tournament record, including the winning of the national Class B title. The remainder of the second round will be played today at the Yale Club, simultaneously with the holding of the first two interclub team matches of the year in Class B of the Metropolitan League.

MINOR LEAGUES ARE FOR OLD COMPACT

Take Action Leading to Resumption of National Agreement with Majors.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 12.—Business relations between the minor and major baseball leagues, which were strained a year ago with the abrogation of the national agreement, will be resumed as a result of action taken today by the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues in its annual meeting. According to Secretary John H. Farrell's report, following an all day executive session, the minors have decided it is best to work in harmony with the major leagues. He made no announcement, however, as to the methods to be followed in bringing the subject before the American and National League representatives. Among other things the new agreement would mean the re-establishment of the drafts and optional agreements.

A general revision of the salary limits in the minor leagues was made. The Class AA clubs received permission to increase their monthly limit to $3,500, an increase of $1,000, while other leagues were granted proportional increases.

The request of Class A clubs for one more representative on the National Board of Arbitration was granted by the elevation of President Daniel O'Neil of the Eastern League. The board now consists of three Class A representatives instead of two, three Class AA, and one Class B. A. R. Tearney of the Western League was chosen to the latter office.

TO REORGANIZE "C" CLUB.

Present and Former Columbia Athletes Will Meet Today.

Letter men in every sport and former athletes will meet at Columbia today at 12 o'clock to reorganize a "Varsity "C" Club and elect temporary officers. Lester C. Danielson, graduate manager of athletics, will preside.

The club will be modeled after similar organizations at other colleges and, it is hoped, will stimulate interest in athletics and will attract promising prep school players to Columbia. The club will also appoint advisers in every sport, who will co-operate with the coaches. Membership will be limited to athletes who have won the "Varsity letter, although honorary membership may be extended to men who have rendered exceptional service to athletics in other ways.

Besides electing officers, the club will discuss the question of a home in one of the university buildings. The Gould boathouse, on the Hudson River at the foot of 116th Street, has been suggested, and will be considered at today's meeting.

The Varsity Club was first formed in February, 1917. A meeting was called at the Columbia Club by Harry A. Fisher, '04, former graduate manager.

NO WORD FROM JOHNSON.

Time of Commission Meeting in This City Remains Uncertain.

The contemplated visit of President Ban Johnson of the American League to this city to attend a special meeting of the National Commission is still uncertain. Chairman August Herrmann said yesterday that he had received no word from Johnson but he would remain in this city until he heard something definite from the American League head.

That Chairman Herrmann will make an effort to have the Commission smooth out the controversy between the Yankees and Detroit over third place in the American League race was evident yesterday when Mr. Herrmann spent some time becoming familiar with the American League constitution. The commission Chairman studied the document all afternoon, trying to familiarize himself with the different powers of the President and the Board of Directors.

Herrmann has acted as peacemaker in baseball squabbles in which Johnson has been involved for many years, and it is believed by baseball folk that he may bring the warring parties to some understanding if the commission gets together here. If Johnson consents to come here, it is believed that he will come today or tomorrow.

Another Southpaw for Robins.

Joseph Conlan, a left-hand pitcher, who has shown good form as a semi-professional in and around Chicago, has accepted terms with the Brooklyn baseball club and will get a tryout at the Jacksonville training camp next Spring. Conlan is 21 years old, is 5 feet 10 inches in height, and weighs 160 pounds. Two other major league clubs had been negotiating for his services. Arrangements for the player's services were made by President Charles H. Ebbets at Springfield, Mass., where the boss of the Robins is attending the minor league conclave.

Rockaway High Five Wins.

An improved offensive in the second half gave the Far Rockaway High School basket ball quintet a victory over Newtown High's five yesterday on the latter's court by a score of 16 to 12. The game was keenly contested throughout, both teams showing a strong defense, which kept the scoring down to a minimum in the opening half. Newtown led after the first fifteen minutes of play by a margin of 6 to 4.

M'GRAW TO BUILD HIS INFIELD ANEW

Zimmerman Plans to Play Semi-Pro Ball — Other Gossip by Mathewson.

By CHRISTY MATHEWSON.

A familiar name will be missing from the big league box scores next season. It is that of Heinie Zimmerman, the eminent plumber of the Bronx. McGraw and Him got along all Summer about as well as the Kaiser and the peace party a few years ago. Mac got sore about several things Him did and on the Giants' last trip west in Chicago suspended Him without pay for the balance of the season. Heinie went out to the clubhouse silently, got his suit roll, and the Giants saw him no more.

After the world's series I went to Lewisburg, Pa., for a few days to hunt and fish, and then I came along to New York to prepare some dope for these articles. Soon after my arrival I met Rube Marquard, who had just returned from an exhibition tour on which Heinie Zim was one of the cast of characters.

"Zimmie is going to quit next year and live in the Bronx," declared Marquard.

"I guess that won't make McGraw sore," I replied. "What does he expect to do?"

"Play semi-professional baseball," answered the Rube. "He says he is tired of the big leagues."

Fletcher Will Stick.

So there is one of the famous figures of baseball making an exit. His last season was a turbulent one, and he had all kinds of trouble with McGraw. In fact, Mac was pretty sore on his whole infield toward the end of the going and the followers of the game can expect a complete overhauling and renovation next year. Arthur Fletcher is the one man I expect to see hold his regular job. He is still a star. Where the Giants' manager will get first and third basemen from I don't know. Of course, Frisch looks like a good man for second if he can hit a little better. His swinging style was wrong last season because he took that old college try whenever he lifted his bat off his shoulder, and he was pushed into the lineup in a pennant possibility pinch when it was dangerous for him to try to change his form.

I know that McGraw is not satisfied with his present infield. And when he feels that way he gets busy one from somewhere. He always has and always will. That is one of the qualities which have made him a wonderful manager. He knows he has reached one of those spots in baseball where he must begin to build again, always a mean place to meet.

Mac is going to spend the greater part of this winter at his track in Havana. But he does not expect to make any bets.

"A track owner can't afford it, Christy," he told me.

But he'll have to play some long shots in his infield next Summer.

Football World's Series.

I don't see why some of the experts don't frame up a football world's series. This should not be hard to accomplish. After the regular season is completed a meeting of the experts could be called, and this board would select the two leading elevens over the run of the season. They could meet at the Polo Ground, or some other suitable and commodious place where the turnstiles could ring long and steadily and still not crowd the park. This year it looks as if the world's series should be between Colgate and Ohio State. However, results for the rest of the season may change the outlook and the theoretical contenders.

Of course, there is a vast difference between baseball and football. A gridiron machine is shaped for one or two games only, and if the coaches can win these contests they glibly remark that the previous ones—perhaps defeats—were only practice and workout affairs anyway, and rate themselves as well satisfied. On the other hand, a baseball team has to go through the stretch of a season's schedule and then step into a world's series. I believe in the long run that the attenuated grind of baseball pulls more out of a man. And I guess my suggestion for a football classic is not practicable because one game does not make a world's series either in football or baseball—and the footballers could hardly stand more.

AVERY LIBRARY SALE ENDS; TOTAL $104,629

HIGHEST PRICE IS $2,800

First American Comedy, Once the Property of Washington, Brings This Amount.

The sale of the library of the late Samuel P. Avery was finished at the Anderson Galleries yesterday. The total for the session was $18,767.75, and the grand total $104,629.75.

The highest price of the day was $2,800, paid by H. Popper for No. 873, "The Contrast, A Comedy, written by a citizen of the United States," Philadelphia, 1790. It was George Washington's copy, with his autograph on the title page. Heading the list of subscribers was "The President of the United States."

The play was written by Royal Tyler of Vermont, and is said to have been the first play written by a native American to be presented by a regular company on the American stage. Laid in was a sheet of paper with the Washington mark, a fac simile of his book plate, and a fac simile of a letter from the publisher, Thomas Wignell, presenting two copies of the book to Washington.

Among the other items were:

AIRSHIP TO CARRY 150.

Italians Are Building New Kind of Dirigible to Cross Atlantic.

ROME, Nov. 12.—The airdrome at Ciampino, near Rome, is busy building a new dirigible destined to cross the Atlantic Ocean. The airship, it is said, will be capable of traveling 3,125 miles without refueling.

The frame of the ship comprises a hollow steel beam extending from the prow to the stern. This beam, according to the description, will take the place of the usual passenger carriage, and will be able to accommodate 150 passengers.

..at these, and scores of other places
A fact: Not only at leading hotels such as these, but at literally hundreds of other prominent places, where one would think only expensive cigarettes would be popular, Fatima, an inexpensive cigarette, is one of the leaders.
In fact, our sales records show more and more places, such as fashionable summer and winter resorts, colleges, and leading clubs, at which Fatima is now in first place.
Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.
"Just enough Turkish"
Hotel statistics such as these are, of course, rather conclusive, since they show the smoking preference of so many men, whether traveling or at home.
These men can afford any cigarette they like. Hence the fact that at so many of these prominent places Fatima now outsells all expensive straight Turkish cigarettes is very significant.
It proves unmistakably that these smokers find something in Fatima's famous "just-enough-Turkish" blend* that other cigarettes (even the more expensive ones) do not give them. They like Fatima; and more than that, they find that Fatima treats them right—gives them the option of smoking at will, without worry about "when" or "how many".
* Fatima contains more Turkish than any other Turkish blend.

PRINCE IS GUEST AT BIG RECEPTION

Members of Congress, Their Wives, and Many Others Greet Him at Library of Congress.

PAYS HIS $1 TO RED CROSS

Visits Army Hospital and Is Introduced to Men Wounded at Chateau-Thierry.

ATTENDS LANSING DINNER

Pays a Half-Hour Visit to the Lincoln Memorial — To Decorate American Soldiers Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Rain and fog did not deter the energetic young Prince of Wales from putting in a busy day, the second he has spent in Washington. He visited Red Cross headquarters and Walter Reed Hospital, made a call upon Mrs. George Dewey, widow of Admiral Dewey; took luncheon at the French Embassy, was the guest at dinner of Secretary of State Lansing, and ended by attending a reception in his honor at the Congressional Library late tonight.

The same boyish enthusiasm and interest which the Prince displayed yesterday were present again today. And, as on yesterday, everywhere he went he appeared to leave behind him a train of newly made friends. The frank democracy of the Prince has had a strong appeal in Washington.

The Library of Congress, where the Prince met all of official Washington tonight, is full of historic material bearing on the struggle between the then British Colonies and the mother country. But these surroundings at the scene of tonight's cordial greeting of the heir to the British throne only brought out more clearly the meaning of his visit and the friendly relations now uniting the two countries.

From 10 o'clock until after midnight the Prince stood at the head of the great marble stairs of the Library and received the long line of guests. With him was Vice President Marshall, Mrs. Lansing, and Lord Grey, the British Ambassador. Members of both houses of Congress and their wives, members of all the foreign embassies, and a large number of others were presented. Although the Prince had put in a strenuous day and his part at tonight's reception was long and tiring, he showed no fatigue and a smile never entirely departed from his face. He won new friends everywhere and made himself one of the most popular of the noted visitors Washington has received from the allied nations.

Early in the forenoon the royal visitor drove to Red Cross headquarters, where he was greeted with cheers and applause by hundreds of the members of that organization. Miss Dorothy Brown of St. Louis had been selected to ask the Prince for his contribution to the Red Cross drive. As she pinned on his coat the Red Cross button the future King of England reached into his pocket and handed over a crisp new $1 bill.

The Prince's interest in old friends was demonstrated when Mrs. T. Q. Donaldson, wife of General Donaldson, told him she was the mother of Capt. John O. Donaldson, the young American flyer who, after a spectacular career in the air, was shot down over the German lines, imprisoned and later escaped to the frontier. The Prince knew Captain Donaldson quite well in England and asked many particulars about him. The American airman will be decorated on Nov. 22, in New York, by the Prince.

From Red Cross headquarters, the Prince went to the Lincoln Memorial, close by the Potomac River. He seemed to be very much interested in the details of this marble building and asked many questions of Colonel C. S. Ridley, who is in charge of public grounds and buildings in the District of Columbia.

Through the rain, the visitor whirled away to the north end of the District and spent more than an hour at Walter Reed Hospital, where there are many veterans of the world war. With a cheerful smile upon his face the Prince stopped and spoke to many of the wounded men. Nurses and convalescent soldiers applauded him heartily. He showed special interest in a soldier who sat in a wheeled chair with one leg in a plaster cast. The Prince asked for a personal introduction to a group of soldiers who had been wounded at Chateau Thierry.

The call upon Mrs. Dewey lasted about ten minutes and the Prince at once went to the French Embassy, where Ambassador and Mme. Jusserand entertained the British heir at the same time King George and Queen Mary were entertaining the President of the French Republic and Mme. Poincaré at Buckingham Palace. Other guests today included the Vice President, the British Ambassador, Secretary of State and Mrs. Lansing; the Assistant Secretary of State, and Mrs. Phillips; Representative and Mrs. Longworth, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Grayson, Miss Margaret Wilson, Miss Nancy Lane, daughter of Secretary Lane, and Miss Louisa Hoar.

In the afternoon the Prince took a drive and later rested before the Lansing dinner. At this dinner, in addition to the Prince and his staff, the Secretary entertained Vice President Marshall, Lord Grey, the British Ambassador; the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Phillips, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Roosevelt; Mrs. Benedict Crowell, Miss Margaret Wilson, Joseph E. Willard, the American Ambassador to Spain; John Hays Hammond, Herbert C. Putnam, Librarian of Congress; Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Laughlin, Mrs. Thomas F. Bayard, Mrs. Hampton Gary, Miss Bassel, Miss Crocker.

Invitations to the congressional reception given at the Library of Congress tonight by Vice President Marshall were for 10 o'clock, but long before that hour hundreds of guests thronged about the main entrance, some planning to gain an advantageous place in the gallery overlooking the Great Hall, others satisfied with a fleeting glimpse of the royal guest.

Tomorrow morning the Prince will bestow decorations of various British orders upon about one hundred American military and naval officers, enlisted men and Red Cross nurses, as well as Americans who were former members of the Royal Flying Corps.

STURGES ESTATE $3,753,473.

Sons Inherit Bulk of Property—Daughter Gets Life Interest.

The estate of Frederick Sturges, banker, who died Dec. 22, 1917, was appraised yesterday at $3,753,473. He gave $1,116,339 each to his sons, Arthur P., and Frederick J. Sturges, and the income from that sum to his daughter, Mrs. May Fuller Wilson, for life. Among other bequests were $10,000 each to the First Church of Christ, Fairfield, Conn., and to the Rev. Dr. Frank S. Child, and $30,000 each to his sister-in-law, Catherine Allen Sullivan and his grandson, Frederick Sturges, 3d.

The bulk of the estate consisted of stocks and bonds, valued at $2,204,317. The banker had $188,354 in cash and a claim of $775,644 against his son, Arthur, who was his partner. His interest in Frederick & A. P. Sturges was valued at $419,502. He had $136,275 in Second Liberty Loan bonds and $145,- in bonds of the Third Liberty Loan. His realty was valued at $139,500.

Famous Horses Put Back at St. Mark's in Venice

VENICE, Nov. 11.—The replacing today of the famous Four Horses over the principal portal of the Basilica of St. Mark's was the greatest event in Venice since the beginning of the war. The Four Horses, which are among the finest of the ancient bronzes and which were brought to Venice in the year 1204 by Doge Enrico Dandolo, were removed early in the war in the fear that they would be damaged by an Austrian bombardment, and were taken to Rome for safety.

This was the second time that the horses had been removed from Venice. Napoleon having taken them to Paris to decorate the triumphal arch in the Place du Carrousel. They were returned to Venice in 1815.

CRUISER RENOWN AWAITS PRINCE HERE

British War Vessel Arrives to be Home of Future King During His Visit.

ROYAL QUARTERS SIMPLE

Heir to Throne Asked for Plain Furnishings—Runs on Deck to Ward Off Plumpness.

The British battle cruiser Renown, which the Prince of Wales will use as a floating hotel during his stay in New York next week, arrived yesterday at noon from Trinidad and anchored in the Hudson River off Eighty-sixth Street after saluting the American flag with twenty-one guns.

Turning the Battery into the river the Renown was met by the United States cruiser Columbia, flying the flag of the Rear Admiral commanding the cruiser and transport squadron, which she saluted with thirteen guns. The gunnery officer on duty at Governors Island mistook it for a salute to the Major General commanding the Department of the East and ordered a thirteen-gun salute to be fired in reply, which considerably mystified the naval experts along the water front.

Two Men Lost in Storm.

The officers on the Renown reported heavy weather on the voyage up from Trinidad and said that on Sunday at 9:30 A. M., when the warship was battling against a northerly gale and heavy sea south of Bermuda, John Laight, able seaman, was washed overboard off the foc'sle deck and Midshipman Richard A. Knight, who was in charge of the men lashing down some gear, was dashed against the breakwater and received severe cuts and internal injuries.

The Renown was stopped and a lifeboat lowered to pick Laight up, but it capsized in the high seas, and the crew of fourteen men were struggling for their lives in the water. A second boat was lowered and rescued five of the seamen, and eight others were picked up by the ship as she swung around. William Franklin, a leading seaman, was drowned.

After the Renown anchored an ambulance was sent from the naval hospital in charge of a surgeon and Midshipman Knight was brought ashore in the warship's pinnace and landed at the foot of West Eighty-third Street. During the afternoon several American naval officers went on board and Acting Consul General Watson and Vice Consul Ledger paid an official visit to the Renown at 4 o'clock and had seven guns salute on their departure.

Lieutenant Commander Lister said that the Renown had steamed 12,000 miles after leaving Canada for her southern cruise and had visited Trinidad, St. Kitts, Barbados, Grenada, and Rio de Janeiro, where they were given a most hospitable reception by the Brazilian naval officers. She averaged sixteen and a half knots, which is her regular cruising speed.

The Prince's Quarters.

The quarters occupied by the Prince of Wales are situated amidships and extend the full breadth of the ship, which is about 100 feet.

The Prince expressed a wish when the Renown was being fitted out for the cruise at Portsmouth, England, that his quarters, which are used by the Admiral at other times, should be furnished comfortably but not luxuriously, just as they would be for any other naval officer, he said. The armchairs and the dining chairs are covered with leather and the entire furnishings were taken from steam yachts bought by the navy for patrol duty during the war and afterward dismantled of their trappings at Portsmouth.

The Prince has a special deck reserved for himself above his quarters, which is called the superstructure deck, a new term on warships. He visited all parts of the vessel during his voyage to Canada and spent a part of each day on the bridge with the officers of the watch.

The Prince has only one fear, the officers said yesterday, and that is, of getting too plump. Each morning he spent an hour in running togs going at full speed around the quarterdeck.

The Renown is commanded by Captain Ernest A. Taylor, who was the senior officer on board yesterday in the absence of Rear Admiral Sir Lionel Halsey, now in Washington with the Prince.

The warship is the fastest of her size afloat and is 700 feet long. She carries a main battery of 16-inch guns which have a range of twenty-nine miles, the gunnery officers said. Her crew at full strength consists of 1,130 officers and men.

GERMAN PAPERS IN A DEAL.

Herold and Staats-Zeitung to Drop Competing Editions.

Reports current for some time that The New Yorker Staats-Zeitung and The New Yorker Herold, German language newspapers, were to arrange their editions so that each would get out one edition a day, instead of two, were confirmed last night by Bernard H. Ridder, eldest son of the late Herman Ridder, and one of the publishers of The Staats-Zeitung.

The papers have been publishing both morning and evening editions. Under the agreement, which Mr. Ridder said was virtually consummated, The Staats-Zeitung will discontinue its evening edition and the Herold its morning edition, each switching its circulation for the discontinued edition to the other.

Mr. Ridder denied that either publication would suspend entirely. The plan, he said, had been under consideration for five years.

GEN. SEELY IN OPPOSITION.

Late Head of the Air Ministry Joins the Government's Opponents.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Major General John F. B. Seely, whose resignation as head of the Air Ministry was announced yesterday, took his seat on the opposition bench in the House of Commons today.

General Seely explained that he had resigned his post because of dissatisfaction over the dual control of the air force, which he declared involved waste and inefficiency. No personal question, he said, had arisen.

REDS BEAT DENIKIN AND TAKE 2 TOWNS

Bolsheviki Report That His Front Is Broken for 47 Miles.

YUDENITCH RETAKES GDOV

New Drive by Reds on the Narva Front Beaten Back by Esthonians.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—A communication issued by General Denikin, the anti-Bolshevist leader in South Russia, received here today, reports the capture of Alexandrovsk and the abandonment by his forces of Dmitrievka, which a Bolshevist communication claims the Bolsheviki captured after a severe defeat administered to the White troops.

The Bolshevist communication asserts that Denikin's front has been broken along a distance of 47 miles, that severe losses have been inflicted on his troops and that the Bolshevist Cossack Division has advanced 105 miles in three days.

Another Bolshevist communication dated Wednesday was received here this evening. It reads:

"We have reached the line of the lakes north of Yamburg and occupied the positions we evacuated in the middle of October.

"We have taken Ishim and occupied Kochubayeff Station, eighty versts west of Omsk, and the town of Tukalinski, north of the Tiumen-Omsk railway."

A wireless dispatch received from Moscow reports that the Polish legion has begun a violent offensive in the direction of Polutsk and Lepel.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—General Denikin has sent a telegram to the Paris headquarters of the American Red Cross.

"In these epoch-making days, which demand superhuman effort and self-sacrifice from every true Russian," he writes, "the American nation has once more proved the depth of its historical devotion to real liberty and progress by stretching out its hand to Russia in an effort to save world civilization from the corruption of the Bolsheviki.

"I beg you to accept my profound thanks for the numerous gifts of the American Red Cross through its commission to South Russia and for assistance given soldiers and wretched populations, and express to you and the American people the deeply felt gratitude of the Russian people, who will always remember these acts of generosity."

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 12.—There was severe fighting on the Finnish frontier Monday when a Bolshevist band tried to cross at Tulkos. Fifteen Bolsheviki were killed and several wounded. Two Finns were wounded.

Northwest Army Headquarters report heavy fighting with superior Bolshevist forces in the direction of Gatchina.

General Yudenitch reports that he has recaptured Gdov.

The Bolsheviki have begun an offensive in the lake region near Narva. The fighting began yesterday evening and the Esthonians claim to have repulsed the attack everywhere, inflicting severe losses on the Bolsheviki.

SEE YUDENITCH BEATEN.

Swedes Argue That He Cannot Win Without Aid of Finns.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 11.—It is believed here that Yudenitch is thoroughly beaten. There is no hope of White Russian success, it is argued, without cooperation of the Finns. True, one enthusiastic Russian—who has great possessions in Petrograd—explained to me how easy it would be if Bermondt's well disciplined army would drive direct at Moscow. But the Allies, especially the French, won't stand for that.

Finland only remains, as the Baltic States are already dickering with the Soviet. But the sole leader, Mannerheim, whom the Finns would follow to victory is absent. If he returns—with or against the permission of the present Finnish Government—he could lead 50,000 men against the Bolsheviki. All the latter did to check Yudenitch was to bring up three good divisions from the Southern front. The Finns are of different quality and Mannerheim has the prestige of never having failed in a military operation.

In Copenhagen I learned that negotiations in Paris for Finnish intervention were being conducted satisfactorily and inspired considerable optimism in best informed Russo-Danish circles. Otherwise the Bolsheviki will be triumphant, it is predicted.

Here, as in Copenhagen, surprise is expressed that the Allies and America do not seem to realize the danger to themselves by allowing the Bolshevist regime to continue. Everywhere one comes on the same phrase: "There will be no industrial peace in the world until the Soviet regime in Russia is overthrown."

UNITED STATES TO HOLD ALOOF

Will Take No Part in the Baltic Conference at Dorpat.

PARIS, Nov. 12, (Associated Press.)—"Hands off Russia" is clearly the policy of the American delegation at the Peace Conference. No American will officially participate in the conference at Dorpat, when representatives of the various Baltic States, France and England meet to discuss possible plans for the restoration of peace in the Baltic countries, according to a member of the American delegation.

The United States does not desire to take any step which might be interpreted as interference in Russian domestic politics and will not agree to the recognition, even provisionally, of the independence of any section of the old Russian Empire.

Letvia, Esthonia and Lithuania are all seeking recognition, but it seems unlikely that the United States will approve any plan which contemplates the further disintegration of Russia.

GIVES UP IDEA OF PARLEY.

Lloyd George Said to Have Changed Mind About Russian Peace.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The Daily Mail's political correspondent writes: "The indignation aroused throughout the nation and manifested in the House of Commons against the Premier's suggestion of a conference with the Bolshevist leaders has been so overwhelming that he announced privately to his fellow ministers the abandonment of the idea. He may have been induced the more quickly to made this retraction by consulting with the French President."

Cardinal Mercier, who has just arrived from America, has given an interview in which he says he felt it his duty to say he had read with pain of the decision to leave Russia, and that in his opinion the Allies were in duty bound to continue to support Kolchak and Denikin or any other approved friends of order.

Harvard Fund Reaches $9,584,684.

Because Massachusetts proclaimed an official holiday for the observance of Armistice Day the teams working in this city for the Harvard Endowment Fund of $15,250,000 were able to cut down the lead of Boston in amount of subscriptions. The total of subscriptions in this city is $3,513,476 and that of Boston is $4,759,982. The subscriptions from all sources total $9,584,684.

$10,000,000 Company Proposed To Reduce the Price of Milk

Health Commissioner Copeland announced yesterday that a wealthy merchant had approached him with a plan for organizing a company with a capital stock of $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 to distribute milk in this city at a reduction of more than three cents a quart below the present prices. This man, Dr. Copeland said, is able to furnish one-half of the needed capital.

For business reasons, Dr. Copeland said that man in question did not want his name disclosed at the present time. He said that the man had been known to him for a number of years, that his business standing is good and that he is fully capable of carrying out his scheme.

The proposed company would not deliver milk to the consumers, but would distribute it to stores and the merchants would perform the delivery service. This would introduce an entirely new method of distribution and one which, in the opinion of Dr. Copeland, would mean a reduction of at least three cents a quart in the price of milk. This plan of distribution was discussed before a meeting of the Governor's Fair Milk Price Committee a few days ago and was regarded with favor. Dr. Copeland said that business men who have been interested in the milk question have given this plan of distribution thorough consideration and believe the scheme wholly feasible.

The Govenor's Fair Milk Price Committee will meet again tomorrow at the City Hall, when it is expected at least two plans will be submitted by distributors for decreasing the price of milk. It is understood that Borden's Farm Products Company has a plan already outlined and it was said that Sheffield's Products Company will have one ready by Friday.

At the headquarters of the Community Councils of National Defense, in the Municipal Building, it was said yesterday that the proposed consumers' milk strike would be voted upon by each of the eighty councils in the five boroughs. The City Parliament of the Community Councils, composed of two delegates from each local council, voted Tuesday night in favor of a strike to go into effect next Monday and operate for three days of each week until the price of milk is lowered. Before becoming effective this action must be ratified by local councils. The memberships of the local councils vary from 50 to 5,000, it was said by one of the officials at headquarters.

Health Commissioner Copeland addressed the Taxpayers' Alliance of Bronx County in Borough Hall, 177th Street and Third Avenue, last night, regarding general health problems. He said that an investigation through his department of 20,000 children had revealed that between 6,000 and 7,000 were suffering from malnutrition, anaemia and tubercular affections.

In one school it was found that 73 per cent. of the children were underdeveloped, he said. Thousands of children in the city do not get a drop of milk, stated the Commissioner, and the average amount received in the poor districts is a cup a day, when a child should receive not less than one quart a day. He declared it was the duty of the Taxpayers' Alliance to take same action to reduce the price of milk.

SHONTS FARM HOME STRIPPED OF GOODS

Furnishings Taken from Estate Near Philadelphia, Says Widow's Lawyer.

MORE PROPERTY DISCLOSED

Building Lots Near Chicago, in Addition to Pennsylvania Acreage, Among Items.

Although no mention is made in his will, Theodore P. Shonts when he died last September was the owner of a 280-acre farm in the suburbs of Philadelphia besides several building lots outside of Chicago, it was learned yesterday from a source close to the affairs of the late Interborough President. These realty holdings will pass into the possession of Mrs. Amanda Thomas, to whom as "my friend" Mr. Shonts bequeathed the residue of his estate after cutting off his wife, Mrs. Milla D. Shonts, with a $5,000 life insurance and an oil painting of herself.

The discovery of the realty holdings will increase substantially the estate of the railroad executive which was estimated by the attorneys for Mrs. Shonts at the time she applied for the appointment as temporary administrator at about $475,000. Warren Dixon and Georges W. Files, of 115 Broadway, representing the widow, said yesterday that, when they oppose the motion to remove their client as temporary administrator on Monday before Surrogate Fowler, they will bring out the fact that the furnishings of the house on the Philadelphia farm and the apartment of Mrs. Shonts at 930 Park Avenue, have been removed by some person without authority.

The farm was one of the most up to date in Pennsylvania, it was learned. Besides a large master's house, it contained numerous other buildings for stock and farming equipment, and was replete with farming machinery. Mr. Shonts purchased the land, it was said, to satisfy his craving for the life he led as a boy.

Mr. Shonts kept the place well stocked with registered cattle and farm horses. At present the farm is understood to be worked by tenant farmers.

Shortly after Mr. Shonts died, it was learned, moving vans driven by negroes drove up to the residence on the farm and removed the furnishings to some unknown place. Similarly, the furnishings of the apartment at 930 Park Avenue were also moved away. Mrs. Shonts's attorneys declared yesterday that they had been trying for some time to solve the mystery surrounding the removal of Mr. Shonts's effects. They believe the value of the furniture, pictures and objects of art in the railroad executive's city home was in excess of $50,000. The value of the farm was placed between $30,000 and $50,000.

Anable, Nicoll, Lindsay & Fuller of 61 Broadway, attorneys for the executors, made no statement on this phase of the legal fight over the estate, but from a source close to them it was learned that the removals from the two places had been made at the direction of DeLancey Nicoll, E. J. Berwind and the Guaranty Trust Company, the executors of the will. The effects had been stored in a fireproof vault, it was said.

It also developed yesterday that there was a possibility that the Duchess De Chaulnes, the former Miss Theodora Shonts, may not come to New York from Paris, where she makes her home, until the contest of the will actually comes to trial. It was learned on good authority that neither Mrs. Shonts nor Mrs. Rutherford Bingham, her sister, had received any word as to her plans in the matter.

Woman Motorist Defies Court.

Mrs. Elizabeth Herring of 120 Bank Street refused in the Traffic Court yesterday to surrender her license to drive an automobile. She had been arrested for reckless driving and had paid a $50 fine. Upon her refusal Magistrate House told her he would apply to the Secretary of State to have the license revoked. Mrs. Herring, who has a Summer home at Cresskill, N. J., was arrested after a collision at Lafayette and Third Streets, Oct. 18.

LADY ASTOR EXPECTS MAJORITY OF 14,000

Confidently Predicts Victory in Election Saturday in Plymouth.

LIBERAL CONCEDES DEFEAT

Mrs. Lloyd George Will Speak Tomorrow to Aid Woman Candidate—Laborites Active.

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 12, (Associated Press.)—Three days hence—on Saturday—the electorate of Sutton Division of Plymouth will determine whether Lady Astor will succeed her husband and become the first English woman member of the House of Commons. The three candidates are marshaling their forces tonight for the final vote-getting drive.

The coalitionists announce that Mrs. Lloyd George, wife of the Prime Minister, will support Lady Astor's candidacy by speeches here on Friday. It is also announced that the number of members of Parliament and other notable men who have been speaking in her behalf will be further augmented tomorrow and Friday.

While from the first it has been conceded that the contest lies between Lady Astor and W. T. Gay, the Laborite, Isaac Foot, Liberal, today first indicated openly his apparent belief that he was out of the running when he said he would get double what the Liberal candidate polled in the last election in December, 1918. Ransom, the Liberal, then had 3,400 against Waldorf Astor's 17,000, while Mr. Gay drew 5,300.

There are 38,600 voters in the constituency, 17,100 of them women, and 4,500 absentees, mainly soldiers and sailors.

Lady Astor, who has repeatedly pleaded "Don't send me to Parliament with a stingy majority," declared tonight confidently, "At the present rate of promises I shall get 3,000 more votes than my late lamented husband. I expect to romp in with a majority of 14,000."

That some in the coalition camp are less confident of such an overwhelming victory is indicated by the modest prediction from Unionist headquarters of a majority of 3,000.

Candidate Gay, on the other hand, says the count will give him a total of 12,000, Lady Astor 10,000, and Foot 7,000.

With regard to the effectiveness of Lady Astor's appeal to workingmen, it is pointed out that her main anti-labor argument has been that Mr. Gay is not a labor candidate of the trade union type, but "a red-hot independent of the type that advocates all sorts of Trotzky-tainted issues."

Lady Astor recently claimed that she had the support of the "level-headed, dependable laborites," and added, "I bet that if J. H. Thomas, (General Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen,) were here he would vote for me."

This was answered today when the railwaymen's leader wrote to Mr. Gay as follows:

"I desire to ask every railwayman in Plymouth to throw himself against the forces of privilege. The eyes of the labor movement are fixed on Plymouth. Therefore Gay must win."

Lady Astor's reluctant, but candid, championing of local option in the form of prohibition legislation is another factor some contend will minimize the effect of the popular favor she enjoyed owing to her ten years' philanthropic activities in Plymouth—an advantage many believe to be her most assuring source of support. The latter view is bolstered up by Lord Robert Cecil's recent letter, wishing her success because she would be "found on the side with the angels."

Some of Lady Astor's supporters are dubious regarding the effect of Premier Lloyd George's letter of indorsement in the face of dockyard idleness, unemployment of service men and other local causes of dissatisfaction with the Government.

Because of its highly complicated nature, the Plymouth Parliamentary battle is being watched not only by British labor, but by every section of British political thought, and as a consequence is certain to have more than local dimensions.

400 PRESSMEN QUIT.

"Shame Committee" Induces Workers to Rejoin Secessionists.

The effect of the pressmen's decision on Tuesday not to join the international union, after they had decided to do so last Friday, was felt yesterday, when it was admitted in a statement by the employing printers that in many plants their forces had been again depleted. It was announced at the headquarters of the "secessionist" Pressmen's Union No. 51 that this condition had been brought about by the "shame committee," whose business it was to visit the various plants and induce the men to quit.

These "shame committees," according to a statement issued by Edward Neeway, Secretary of No. 51, caused 400 men who went back to work under the banner of the international to return to the "secessionist" union. The union rented a suite of offices yesterday at 21 East Twenty-first Street, where the officers acted as a reception committee and exhibited 400 international working books to show the number of members it had taken back.

"There is no use denying the fact that in many plants today there has been a smaller working force than there was yesterday," said William Green, Chairman of the Labor Committee of the Printers' League. "But if every man in every plant walked out tomorrow, the position of the employing printers in this fight would be the same as it has been through the last six weeks of controversy, lock-outs, and 'vacations.'"

HELFFERICH VILIFIES AMERICA IN THE WAR

Declares Wilson Was Satisfied "to Make Money Out of European Blood."

SPECTATORS SHOUT 'BRAVO'

Von Capelle Tells Committee U-Boats Were Expected to Win in Five Months.

BERLIN, Nov. 12, (Associated Press.)—Dr. Karl Helfferich, the former German Vice-Chancellor, on the witness stand before the War Investigation Committee this morning, began a long drawnout vilification of the United States, culminating with the declaration: "America maintained a mere paper neutrality. President Wilson was satisfied to make money out of European blood and suffering."

This declaration was greeted with "bravos" from the spectators and many German newspaper men. It aroused Deputy Cohen, who demanded that Helfferich be forbidden to use such expression. But Chairman Wermuth ruled that the method of expression by witnesses could not be controlled. Deputy Sinsheimer here interjected the question: "Was not German anger at America artificial?" Helfferich banged the table angrily and replied:

"It was genuine from the very bottom, chiefly because of the ammunition, barbed wire, poisonous gases and food which America delivered to the Entente."

Helfferich denied emphatically that the submarine war was a "risk all" play, as frequently asserted. His bitterness against President Wilson was shown repeatedly, for on another occasion he declared that President Wilson had put trade interests above international law. Peace, he said, would have been possible if a general desire for it had existed on the part of President Wilson or the American people.

As a further complaint, Helfferich said that American banks had freely lent money to the Entente, but never a cent to Germany, and when Germany had concluded negotiations for a big shipment of cotton at a low price the English Government had declared cotton contraband and put it on the black list.

He cited the case of President Wilson forbidding the delivery of ammunition to Mexico as evidence of American lack of neutrality.

Helfferich asserted that from the start of the war the United States would not have been satisfied unless Germany was thoroughly beaten.

"Did you believe that the U-boats could not only bring Great Britain to her knees but prevent the Americans from arriving?" asked Chairman Wermuth.

"I was not optimistic enough," Helfferich replied, "to believe that the United States could not get troops over, for I had seen the ease with which England had carried troops and munitions and supplies to Saloniki despite the fact that our large submarines were cruising in the Mediterranean. I believed if the submarine warfare was determined on it was the duty of the Chancellor, myself, and all others to support it to the utmost."

The witness admitted that surrender by Germany in the case arising from the torpedoing of the English cross-channel steamer Sussex was unspeakably difficult, and that he hoped the United States after a total surrender would demand and see to it that Great Britain would respect international law and lift the blockade, "which was the most illegal and most murderous act of the war." The United States did not act, the witness added, so that he and everyone else strove to the utmost to advance the submarine war.

Von Capelle Tells of U-Boats.

Vice-Admiral Eduard von Capelle, former Minister of the Navy, was bombarded with questions at yesterday's session of the committee as to why more submarines were not built so as to have made the submarine campaign successful.

Hecklers at the National Assembly sub-committee's investigation of the war, having failed to get much information as to why the submarine campaign was not avoided, changed their tactics to questioning the former Minister on submarine construction.

The Admiral replied succinctly, in an endeavor to prove why submarine construction was retarded in 1916, and why it jumped enormously in 1917 and 1918.

A summary of his contribution to U-boat construction was read by von Capelle at the start of the session.

"Eight hundred and ten submarines were built before and during the war," said the former Minister. "Of these, forty-five were constructed before the war, 186 were built during the administration of Admiral von Tirpitz, and 579 were built by me in the two and a half years I was in office.

"I took office in April, 1916, and in the nine months remaining in that year I ordered built ninety U-boats; in 1917, I ordered 289; and in the nine months I was in office in 1918, I ordered 220."

It was here his questioning began.

"Why was there such a discrepancy between 1916 and the two following years?" demanded Herr Gothein.

Von Capelle replied sharply:

"There are a number of reasons why so small a number was ordered in 1916. First, the Reichstag took an overwhelming stand against the submarine, and I could not start to build, because I saw myself in opposition to the government; second, I had been out of the naval service and was unaware of the technical improvements in U-boat building and had to give intimate study to the subject; and third, the Skagerrak battle caused serious damages to our boats. Their repair held up the construction of other boats."

Germany had decided to live up to international law and not sink merchantmen without warning, continued von Capelle, but he said he thought that in the Fall of 1915 the Admiralty had issued a second order to attack British ships because England, "poisoned against us," had made the work of U-boats very difficult by mines which covered the North Sea. There was a demand for mine-searchers, torpedo boats, and motor boats, which further reduced U-boat construction.

Ludendorff Wanted More U-Boats.

Herr Struve wrote to General von Ludendorff urging more U-boats, von Capelle added. Ludendorff replied that there was unanimity on this desire in upper army circles, in the Admiralty, and among the General Staff.

Herr Gothein again interrupted, asking why U-boats could not have been built in a series of one type at one wharf and another type at a different wharf.

Von Capelle replied that toward the end of the war that was done, but that at the outset it was impossible because of the pressure of repair work and the lack of wharves and skilled labor.

Herr Sinsheimer attempted to elicit the exact purpose of the submarine campaign against England—whether it was the intention to crush England or merely to compel her to agree to a "usable peace."

Von Capelle replied:

"We believed we could force England to a 'usable peace' within five months."

"Was the submarine war planned to make the feeding of England impossible and, therefore, make impossible the reaching by England of her goal?" asked Herr David.

"There was no hope in the navy that food or ammunition could be kept from England," replied von Capelle, sarcastically. "We should have been more suspicious of England."

Herr David asked where the expression "Force England to her knees" originated and what it meant.

Von Capelle made an evasive reply, saying:

"The expression can be interpreted in several ways; I interpreted it to mean making England pliable and war-tired."

Count von Bernstorff gauged the session this morning when he asked The Associated Press correspondent: "Are you going to attend the performance this afternoon?"

Cabinet to Take Up Ireland; Reported Program Disavowed

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The Cabinet is about to take up consideration of the proposals of the Cabinet Committee on the subject of Ireland.

It was learned from an authoritative source that the Government was much embarrassed by the publication of what has purported to be the Government plan for the settlement of the Irish problem. The Associated Press is officially informed that all stories hitherto printed are necessarily speculative and incorrect, because the Government has not yet formulated its proposals and cannot until the committee's report is considered.

TRAIN SERVICE CUT CALLED NOSKE COUP

Americans at Coblenz Believe Aim Was to Prevent Outbreaks in Germany.

NOT FOR COAL SCARCITY

Use Revolutionists Made of Railways a Year Ago Was Remembered.

COBLENZ, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—The suspension of passenger traffic in the interior of Germany until Nov. 15 was a master stroke of Gustav Noske, Minister of Defense, to handicap threatened Bolshevist outbreaks, according to information in the hands of the American authorities here. Reports from various sources reaching Coblenz confirm this belief.

Despite the announcements from Berlin that train service was suspended because of the scarcity of coal throughout Germany, the real reason, it is declared, was the determination of Noske and other Government authorities to eliminate as far as possible the danger of a repetition of the events of a year ago, when the revolutionists used trains out of Kiel and other cities and traveled quickly to places where outbreaks had been planned.

Precautions have been taken by the Americans, British, French, and Belgians in the occupied areas, but actually no trouble of any nature is expected. All meetings of a political nature, or having a tendency in any way to excite the radicals, have been prohibited by the Americans until after Nov. 20.

GERMAN DIRIGIBLE FLIES 380 MILES IN 5 HOURS

Bodensee's Course from Friedrichshafen to Berlin Is Steered by Compass Only.

BERLIN, Nov. 12, (Associated Press.)—Flying through snow flurries and low-hanging clouds, the big dirigible Bodensee yesterday covered the distance from Friedrichshafen to Berlin (380 miles) in five hours. The airship was compelled to steer by the compass and to fly so low that she was unable to make use of her wireless equipment. Twenty-four passengers and 1,800 kilograms of mail were carried. The Bodensee will carry dispatches from Berlin to South German points in order to cut down the ordinary transmission time, which now averages twenty-five hours.

FIGHTS HAVING FINNS IN LABOR CONFERENCE

Admission Would Defeat Purpose of Signatory Powers, British Delegate Holds.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Delegates to the International Labor Conference today debated admitting representatives of Finland without reaching a decision.

On behalf of Great Britain, Sir Malcolm Delevingne served notice that in case of favorable action, appeal would be taken to the permanent Court of International Justice, not organized, but provided for in the treaty of peace.

Sir Malcolm opposed the admission of Finland on the ground that it would read into the treaty a meaning not intended by the powers which signed it. The purpose of the treaty to bind the labor organization and the League of Nations closely together, would be defeated, he maintained, if the membership of the two bodies were not identical.

Admission of Finland was recommended by a majority report of a special commission and was supported by Italian, Norse, Swedish, and Danish delegates. The unanimous recommendation of the commission that the conference was not competent to take action in the case of Luxemburg, Santo Domingo and Mexico was approved.

BRITAIN'S PLEDGE TO ITALY.

Settlement of Adriatic Question Consistent with Italy's Honor.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—Francesco Nitti, the Italian Premier, in an interview given the Rome correspondent of the Presse de Paris, the combined edition of the Paris newspapers, declared that he considered the plan for the solution of the Fiume problem drawn up by Foreign Minister Tittoni as quite moderate in character.

The Premier paid tribute to the attitude of France towards Italy. He said he had received from Premier Lloyd George a pledge that a settlement of the Adriatic question, consistent with the honor of Italy and the interests of all the Allies, would be reached.

ADMIT POLES WIN ELECTIONS

Results Most Favorable to Them in Upper Silesia, Germans Say.

BERLIN, Nov. 12, (Via London.)—The reports that the results of the municipal elections in Upper Silesia were most favorable to the Poles were officially confirmed here today.

The Poles secured 64 per cent. of the votes in the Hindenberg (?) district, 78 per cent., on the average, in the Beuthen, and 80 per cent. in the Tarnowitz district.

CONVENTION ENDS SESSION

Veterans Condemn Anti-American Propaganda and Demand Deportation of Interned Enemy Aliens.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 12.—The convention of the American Legion tonight elected Franklin D'Olier of Philadelphia its First National Commander and voted to have Congress consider the advisability of approving further bonuses for service men.

Mr. D'Olier was the first candidate to be nominated. He was named by the Arkansas delegation. California passed its nominating right to New York and Stuyvesant Fish named Hanford MacNider of Mason City, Iowa. The Virginia delegation nominated Leslie Jones of Washington D. C., and Kentucky named Emmett O'Neill of Louisville. Jack Sullivan of Seattle, who was nominated by North Dakota, withdrew, as did Chairman Henry D. Lindsley of Dallas, nominated by Texas. The vote was: D'Olier, 366; MacNider, 249; Jones, 18; O'Neill, 18.

The title of Past National Commander was conferred on Mr. Lindsey, who has been acting head of the legion since last Spring.

James O'Brien of California and A. R. Chambers of Massachusetts, representing the navy; Alan Tukey of Nebraska and P. C. Boom of Idaho, representing the army, and Joyce B. Leaps of Minnesota, representing the Marine Corps, were named Vice Commanders.

Resolutions passed as the convention closed included condemnation of strikes of policemen, firemen, or other public employes and a call for settlement of industrial disputes, with a plea for greater production. Complete revision of the Articles of War and revision of courts-martial were demanded.

The convention for a time seemed split on the proposal to indorse a specific bonus plan. Representative Royal O. Johnson of Aberdeen, S. D., who served in France, urged the delegates to ask Congress to recognize and relieve the financial disadvantages incurred by persons who made sacrifices to serve their country. Former Senator Luke Lea of Tennessee, Chairman of the Bonus Committee, formally put this resolution before the convention and it was adopted.

A broad variety of subjects, including the Centralia tragedy, industrial unrest, and the National Non-Partisan League, were touched on this afternoon. Delegates from Northwestern States drew up a resolution assailing the activities of President A. C. Townley of the Non-Partisan League, but it was tabled.

Commander D'Olier issued the following statement soon after his election:

"The American Legion has an enormous amount of constructive work before it in the coming year, but the spirit of clear thinking, fair play and co-operation manifested so wonderfully throughout this convention leaves no doubt in my mind that we shall be able to accomplish during the coming year just as remarkable results for our country as we did in such a comparatively short time in effecting the utter defeat of the enemy.

"Every action of the convention was discussed carefully, and in every instance the soundest possible judgment prevailed. There was only one thought of every delegate present, and that was to do what was best for this country of ours, for which only so recently we were willing to give our all."

The Rev. Francis A. Kelly of New York was elected National Chaplain.

Declarations placing the Legion on record against anti-American propaganda and activities were adopted in the morning, and resolutions passed, including:

Demand for the deportation of alien slackers and enemy aliens interned during the war, with selective admission of foreigners.

Authorizing the appointment of a Legion committee to spread the teaching of the Legion's doctrine of "100 per cent. Americanism" among veterans of the war and aliens in this country.

Demanding a "change in the Department of Justice from a passive organization to a militant, active branch, whose findings will be promptly acted upon by the executive authority."

Opposition to organization of societies for relief of civilian populations of Germany, Austria and Hungary unless these societies be authorized by Congress.

The convention closed at 9:30 o'clock tonight. The 1920 convention will be held at Cleveland, on Sept. 27.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Franklin D'Olier, first National Commander of the American Legion, is a wool merchant in this city. When America entered the war he offered his services and was commissioned a Captain in the Quartermaster Corps. He was sent to France, where he was assigned to organize the salvage system. He was successively promoted to Major and Lieutenant Colonel, and received the American Distinguished Service Medal and the French Legion of Honor decoration.

Since his return home last June he has devoted his time almost exclusively to the organization plans of the American Legion. His home is at Riverton, N. J.

STARTS PHONE RATE FIGHT.

Up-State Cities to Combine in Action Against Higher Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 12.—The fight to block rate increases by the New York Telephone Company in all districts of the State outside Greater New York was begun today by Corporation Counsel Stewart Hancock of this city. Uniform complaints, alleging profiteering, have been completed for every city and town except New York City, and will be filed with the Public Service Commission, Second District.

The plan is to have all cities and towns unite in the action. Experts are to be obtained and their pay allotted among the various cities and towns. It is contended by the up-State cities that they are being assessed to pay for down-State shortages.

A DISCOVERY THAT BENEFITS MANKIND

Two discoveries have added greatly to human welfare.

In 1835 Newton originated the vacuum process for condensing milk with cane sugar to a semi-liquid form.

In 1883 Horlick at Racine, Wis., discovered how to reduce milk to a dry powder form with extract of malted grains, without cane sugar.

This product HORLICK names Malted Milk. (Name since copied by others.) Its nutritive value, digestibility and ease of preparation (by simply stirring in water) and the fact that it keeps in any climate has proved of much value to mankind as an ideal food-drink from infancy to old age.

Big Drug Buyers Conservative.

Big consuming interests continue a conservative course in buying fine chemicals and drugs, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today. With the ending of the longshoremen's strike stocks of crude drugs are going into consumption rapidly, but prices are not affected because the imports are not offered on the market, having been mainly consigned to the manufacturers. Makers of heavy chemicals are unwilling to name prices for 1920 contracts owing to the difficulty of determining costs while labor is so restless. The market is advancing on caustic soda, alum, and potash salts. In the essential oils there is an acute shortage, and sharp price advances are announced in almost the entire list.

Leather Coats Taking Hold.

One of the features of local ready-to-wear sales at retail these days is the number of leather coats that is being sold, both "one-sided" and reversible, and both for men and women. Among the virtues claimed for these garments is that they give much of the warmth of a fur coat with less weight, and at considerably less cost. One thing against them is the way they show soil, though it is said the good coats can be cleaned readily. This factor, however, appears to have little effect on their sale, particularly with men. Like most of the other fashions, the vogue for leather coats is not a kindly one to stout women, especially the belted models that some plump women have had the hardihood to don.

Have Called In the Samples.

So completely sold up for the coming season are the productions of the leading manufacturers of men's straw hats that in at least one case the factory called in all the samples in order to make sure that no further business would be taken. Due to the general scarcity of labor, it was said yesterday, any factory that is now getting more than 60 per cent. of its pre-war production has something to crow over. The shortage of warehouse space in some of the producing centres is making it necessary for the retailers to take their goods as rapidly as they are made. What quotations to the consumer on the more popular-priced lines will be next Spring may be gauged from the fact that while not so very long ago a certain quality of hat sold at $10.50 a dozen wholesale, it now is held at $24 a dozen.

Gray Goods Prices Break.

Gray goods in this market got away to a pretty good start yesterday morning, and business was done in the print-cloths as follows: 39-inch 68-72s at 22¾ and 22 cents, 39-inch 56-44s at 16 and 16¼ cents, 38½-inch 64-60s at 19 cents, and 38½-inch 60-48s at 16¼ cents. In the sheetings 4-yard 48-square goods brought 20½ cents, while sales of 5 and 4.70-yard sheetings, respectively, were made at 17 and 18¼ cents. Things later went to pieces as a result of the snapping of the cotton and stock markets, and at the close it was impossible to tell just what buyers could do. It was known, however, that a number of second hands and some first hands were offering goods at concessions of a quarter to a half cent a yard. The weakness was more marked in printcloths than in sheetings, and appeared to be missing as regards fine-yarn cloths and the desirable styles.

Admire the Settings.

According to a waist manufacturer, who made a tour of investigation to see how the different stores were featuring blouse week, some of the window display experts in their desire to make a good showing are falling into the mistake sometimes made by theatrical producers. The setting is more imposing than the merchandise which ought to get the centre of the stage. Passersby are attracted to such windows without a doubt, he said, but they are more interested in the fixtures than in the goods which the fixtures are supposed to set off to best advantage.

Will Not Take Fall Orders.

Two things stand out in the shoe trade at the present time. One of these is the refusal of several leading manufacturers to accept advance business for Fall, 1920, even on the "at value" basis on which a good deal of the early orders for the coming Spring were booked. The other is the unwillingness shown by practically all manufacturers to take orders for high-topped shoes, regardless of the deliveries wanted. In most cases men out with Spring lines were instructed not to take any filling-in orders for Fall on shoes of this type, and also to keep their Spring orders for high shoes at a minimum. Some concerns, it was said, set a limit of 10 per cent. on sales of these goods for Spring shipment. The reason is that, with production in its present state, the only way deliveries can be got back on schedule is by reducing sharply the output of high shoes.

Bonus for Full Week.

In order to stop so much "vacation" taking by his employes, a manufacturer has established a bonus system that has proved quite successful. For a full week's work he pays a bonus of 30 per cent. An employe who is absent one day loses 10 per cent. of this and 20 per cent. for two days. Actually, the wage plus the bonus represents the wage of a faithful employe, but, instead of paying more money to his help and then fining them for absence, the raise which was recently given was provided in the form of the bonus described. The plan has stimulated production considerably.

Ordnance Silk Ready Soon.

It was stated yesterday that the Bush-McLane Syndicate, which bought a large part of the army ordnance silk, would have the new material on the market in about thirty days or shortly after that time. The fabric will be offered for sale in colors and also in the gray with the oil removed. Sales will be made to clothiers who are interested in the goods as a Summer suit fabric, to the garment manufacturers who will use the lighter weights for dresses, and to the retail trade. The material will be described as ordnance cartridge cloth—all silk.

Not Interested in Export.

Not many hosiery mills or jobbers are found to be very much interested in export possibilities at the present time. The principal reason is that prices show such rapid advances that quotations given now could not be used later on when orders are received from foreign sources. The demand for the better class of hosiery still continues a feature of the trade, and the mills seem no better able to give prompt delivery than they were before.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

DONALD CARL THOMPSON, a newspaper photographer, residing at the Hotel McAlpin, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $28,000 and no assets. Among the creditors are Michael Lebedef, money loaned on or about Sept. 19, 1917, $25,000, and Selfridge Department Store, London, England, $1,500.

AARON WAXMAN, a baker, of 239-241 Rivington Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $11,944 and assets of $185, consisting of fixtures, $75, and deposits on electricity, $110. Among the creditors are Lazar Nudelman, $1,000; H. Dworkis, $791, and Arthur H. Kahn, $700.

ALFRED RINALDI, pharmacist, at 206 Bleecker Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $1,884 and no assets. Among the creditors are Edward J. Emrich, a claim of 36 promissory notes aggregating $1,800.

JOHN M. RUHL and Lena J. Ruhl of 2,426 University Avenue have filed petitions in bankruptcy. His liabilities are $29,048, of which $17,465 are secured claims, and her liabilities are $17,910. There are no assets.

GABRIEL T. JASOUS, dealer in women's wear at 15 East Seventeenth Street.—Judge Hand has denied him a discharge from bankruptcy.

ALUMOBOARD COMPANY, INC., portable pressing boards, at 422 East Seventy-first Street.—Judge Learned Hand has appointed Percival H. Seward receiver in $15,000 bond in an equity suit brought by Minnie M. Stapleton of Hot Springs, Ark., a creditor for $15,463. Liabilities are said to be $30,000. Three judgments aggregating $2,497 have been entered against the company, on one of which, for $2,037, execution has been issued. The company was organized June 3, 1910, and has a capital stock of $200,000.

ORLEANS COUNTY QUARRY COMPANY.—Judgment by default for $156,892.35 has been entered in favor of Philip S. Hill, balance alleged to be due on sixty promissory demand notes made by the company between Oct. 30, 1912, and March 13, 1915.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Violent Break of Stocks Follows Call Money Advance to 30 Per Cent.

The process of correcting an overdone speculative position in the stock, cotton, and grain markets went on with great violence yesterday in respect to the first and with abrupt price changes in the others. Stocks which had led the advance of the last two months dropped 10 to nearly 70 points, the secondary favorites in the industrial list fell 5 to 10 points, and the whole market left off with prices in a highly confused state. The reaction of cotton was led by a break at Liverpool, where similar conditions of tight money for speculative use exists as here, and corn and oats lost considerable ground. In all the markets the extraordinary cost of bank credit was a primary factor in the retreat of quotations. Opening and renewing at 14 per cent., as on the preceding day, call money on the Stock Exchange climbed to 30 per cent. before the stock market session ended. This was the highest rate quoted since rates were shot upward by the credit stringency in 1907. There were rumors of loans being put through late in the day at 32 per cent. The volume of business in stocks caused worse congestion in the ticker service than had been seen in years, although there have been a number of sessions in the past with greater turnovers than yesterday's total in the neighborhood of 2,650,000 shares.

The Street was decidedly nervous over the money situation from the beginning of trading. The conference of Reserve Board officials with local bankers on Tuesday was provocative of uneasiness among traders with stocks on margin, and those whose nerves had been worn thin by the recent scarcity of credit with which to carry forward speculative plans were easily moved to let their holdings go when the initial call money quotation disclosed no signs of easement. The force of such liquidating sales was made all the greater by a steady output of sales for the short account, particularly in the last trading hour. So great was the outflow of stocks in this period that it carried the promise of short covering which was believed likely to impart a stabilizing influence to the market in the near future, following the experience of parallel occurrences in the past. The day brought nothing new in respect to improvement in the underlying credit strata outside of that contained in a drastic liquidation of the speculative account. Such substantial declines as occurred in high-priced stocks like General Motors, Mexican Petroleum, American Woolen, and Studebaker release considerable funds, and the heavy decline of the whole industrial group this week has had a broad influence in the same direction. The reserve position of the Federal Reserve Bank is understood to be more favorable than at the end of last week, and member bank loans have been reduced. These are items which will have influence in making the cost of bank credit lower, but until evidence comes of important contraction of speculation in other fields it may be difficult to see in advance when easier interest rates are due.

In some banking quarters the further declines of foreign exchange rates yesterday were directly connected with the money market. Sterling touched $4.10⅝ and francs and lire also recorded new low records. With money commanding unusual rates, both for call and time accommodation, it would be natural for owners of balances in London to seek to transfer a part of their funds back home, even though the process entailed a large loss in exchange. Certainly there has been a decided increase in offerings of sterling and the other exchanges here this week, which would lend color to the theory that American balances were being brought back, and at the same time the impression prevails that money rates will be high here for some time to come.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Market Prices Crash.

Prices on the Stock Exchange crumbled yesterday in a manner closely akin to panic conditions. Only here and there was there an issue which weathered the storm of selling which started in the afternoon. Prices melted whole points and more between sales, and the general list receded from 2 to as much as 68½ points, the latter being in General Motors. In the last two hours it appeared that stocks were being tossed overboard almost without regard to price, and the declines were heaviest in this period. The panicky condition was brought about by the soaring money rate, which touched 30 per cent., the highest recorded since 1907. When the renewal rate of 14 per cent. was announced at 11:30 o'clock, there was little cause for encouragement, as it was apparent the stringent money conditions of the preceding day were again in force. Within an hour money was 22 per cent., and from then on it went climbing.

More Than 3,000,000 Shares.

While the recorded transactions were nearly 2,500,000 shares, it was estimated after the close that the actual turnover was more than 3,000,000 shares. During such heavy trading there is always a goodly percentage of transactions which are not recorded on the tape, and this, in addition to odd-lot transactions, which are never reported, it is believed, brought the volume to that figure.

Ticker Tape Has Long Run.

Quotations continued to appear on the ticker for forty-one minutes after the close of the market, the longest time of which there is record. When it is remembered that the bonds no longer are carried on the stock ticker, but on a special bond ticker, it will be appreciated how far the ticker was behind the market. At 11:30 it was eighteen minutes behind, and this was increased as the volume of trading grew. As a guide it became useless. Baldwin Locomotive, for instance, was being quoted on the tape at 111, when it was selling on the floor of the Exchange at 108. The same was true of other stocks.

Steel a Bulwark.

Considering the violence of the break, the action of Steel common was amazing. It was the strongest feature of the list, considering the volume of transactions. When the market crumbled, there was considerable short selling of this issue, but even this made small impression, and the range for the day amounted to only 3 points, with the net loss 1⅛ points. There were only a half dozen issues traded in in excess of 10,000 shares that could show loss as small.

General Motors Crumbles.

The break in General Motors amounted to 68½ points, with the close at 280, the low for the day. As compared with a close Saturday at 389¼, the stock fell off 109¼ points in three days. The decline from the high for the year, made Nov. 5, was 126½ points. The stock was especially vulnerable in view of its advance from the low for the year, last January, when it was selling at 118½.

American Smelting Gains.

American Smelting and Refining succeeded in moving against the market trend, and registered a fractional gain. A big short interest in this was built up when there were rumors that the dividend would be passed. The declaration of the disbursement caught the shorts, and it was held that short covering was attributable in part for the strength shown. Other copper shares also were strong. Anaconda closing the day unchanged, and while some recessions were made the losses were slight by comparison with other groups.

Crucible's Position.

Although there was a decline of some 7 points in Crucible shares, it was as nothing compared to losses suffered by other high priced issues. The position of Crucible is less vulnerable to a market reaction. A fight for control has just been brought to a conclusion, and neither side in the controversy was prepared to sell stock. At present, the Wilkinson group is in the saddle, but to sell might mean the stock would be taken by the opposition and used to regain control. This makes for a small floating supply.

A Plumb Plan Change?

"We propose to issue bonds of the Government in such amounts as are necessary and at such rates of interest as will insure their acceptance," said the father of the Plumb Plan in a speech in St. Joseph, Mo., last week. Originally he proposed that Government bonds be issued at 4 per cent. to pay for the purchase of the roads, and it was then said this would mean a saving of some $10,000,000,000. The foregoing statement, indicating that under the Plumb Plan the rate at which the Government bonds could be marketed, shows the $10,000,000,000 estimated saving would be materially reduced. What the rate would have to be to sell such an issue as is proposed by the Plumb advocates make present prices for long time Government bonds interesting. Liberty 4th 4¼s are quoted around 93, as are other of the Liberty issues.

Temporary Railroad Legislation First.

Opinion in some railroad offices regarding the situation seems to be that the temporary measure which will be agreed upon and pushed through before the end of the year will provide, first, for the return of the carriers to private operation, and second, for an extension of the Government guarantee of standard return for six months from the return date. Apparently local corporate railroad managers believe the temporary legislation will do little more than cover these points, while the constructive legislation which it is hoped will evolve into real remedial law, will be agreed upon and passed during the Winter.

Rails Also Sold.

The liquidation which began early yesterday failed to pass over the railroad shares, and while these held fairly well as a group, when compared with the heavy losses in other groups, some of the rail stocks which are usually the most active felt the weight of selling and declined from fractions to more than 3 points. In some instances there were recoveries before the close, but last prices were generally the lowest for the day. In the case of those rails which were firm the display of strength was made largely on a comparatively small turnover.

Clerks Work All Night.

As the result of the heavy trading clerks in many brokerage offices worked through the better part of last night. In some instances brokers themselves canceled all engagements and stayed in their offices straightening out accounts. Had the big turnover come when the market was running at the rate of less than 1,000,000 shares a day the strain on the office forces would not have been so great, but yesterday followed several million-share days, and added to the confusion which usually results from a continued period of heavy trading.

United Fruit Makes Gain.

One surprise of the market was provided by United Fruit. The shares closed with a net gain of half a point after selling as high as 191¼. This was entirely out of line with the action of other shipping shares, which lost from 3 to more than 10 points. In the case of Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies, the big drop was considered proof of a large speculative following developed in the stock.

Three Specialties Move Together.

Stewart Warner, Stromberg Carbureter and Studebaker, which occur consecutively in the stock list, and recently have been moving together, moved together again, but moved downward. The first, on a turnover of small proportions, lost 2 points; the second dropped 17 points, with last prices low for the day, and Studebaker, on heavy sales, sold off to a low for the day at 111¼, later recovering part of the ground on short covering, the final net loss being 12 points.

Putting Up Margins.

In one conservative commission house it was asserted that, while the firm had had to call for more margin on many small accounts, it was provided in every instance. This was considered exceptional, as in other bad market breaks small accounts in this particular house have had to be sold out.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Bankers Trust Company and A. B. Leach & Co. are offering $3,000,000 Federal Sugar Refining Company, 5 year 6 per cent. bonds at 97¾, to yield 6½ per cent.

The Board of Trustees of the Dominion Oil Company have recommended an amendment to the company's charter whereby the right to issue preferred stock will be abandoned.

Imbrie & Co. have issued a letter on the advantages of investing in foreign securities.

The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company has been appointed Registrar of the preferred stock of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, and the preferred stock of the Graton and Knight Manufacturing Company.

The stockholders of the International Banking Corporation have voted to increase the paid in capital from $3,500,000 to $5,000,000, and the surplus account from $3,250,000 to $3,500,000, making a total capital and surplus of $8,500,000.

The definitive certificates for capital stock of the Consolidated Cigar Corporation are now ready for delivery at the main office of the Columbia Trust Company.

NEW STOCK EXCHANGE RULE

Governors Adopt Resolution Dealing with Syndicate Methods.

It was announced at the New York Stock Exchange yesterday that the Board of Governors had adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That in the opinion of the Governing Committee when a syndicate is formed to purchase or underwrite securities to an amount stated in the invitations to subscribe thereto it is not consistent with just and equitable principles of trade for the manager or managers of such syndicate to allot participations therein to an amount in excess of the amount specified in the invitations to subscribe unless all subscribers consent to such allotment."

COTTON REFLECTS BREAK IN STOCKS

Trading Practically Suspends Under Rule Limiting Fluctuations to 200 Points.

HIGH MONEY RATE A FACTOR

Prices Continue to Crumble in the Face of Bullish Crop and Weather News.

The cotton market, along with all others, suffered a very severe setback yesterday, prices falling so sharply in the late afternoon dealings that the 200-point limit of fluctuations was reached some little time before the closing hour and trading virtually was suspended under the rule. At the close, all options with the exception of December were quoted without bid price, so that the offering figure, which in all cases was at the 200-point decline of the day, was all that was available. How much further the market would have broken had it not been for the rule limiting a single day's movement is, of course, impossible to say, but brokers around the ring last night said that the nearest bid prices were considerably below the offering figures.

The decline yesterday was accomplished in the face of as bullish crop and weather news as has been received at any time this season. There was frost over much of the belt and the reports of freezing weather were rather more numerous than usual. But the upset in the stock market and the high rate for call money completely discounted all other factors. As the fall in security prices on the Stock Exchange progressed, selling of cotton contracts kept pace.

There was extreme weakness at Liverpool even before our market opened. Conditions there have been hurt, technically speaking, just as they had been here by the excessive speculation, and the determination of the British banking authorities to put a check to it, as evidenced in last week's advance in the Bank of England's minimum discount rate, and the belief entertained there that a further advance will be made either this week or next, had left the Liverpool market a bit shaky. The advices from this side, furthermore, undoubtedly played a part in destroying values over there, for after an initial loss of 19 to 32 points that market continued to break until at the close future prices were down 65 to 90 points and spots were down about 50d. on the day.

At the opening here prices were off 35 to 66 points. This break was followed by a recovery of 20 to 25 points from the call figures, but after that brief improvement our market turned heavy again and continued to decline, more or less rapidly, until the late afternoon, when it broke sharply, falling the maximum of 200 points.

MOVE TO SAVE DIVIDENDS.

Manhattan Railway Company Forms New Protective Committee.

It was announced following the annual meeting of the Manhattan Railway Company yesterday that a new committee had been appointed to protect the interests of the company and its stockholders, in view of the fact that there is the possibility of a default by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company on the payment of the Manhattan Company dividend due Jan. 1, 1920. The members of the committee are:

Alfred Skitt, Chairman; W. A. Day, Alvin W. Krech, J. H. McClement, S. J. Murphy, and Frederick Strauss. The committee decided that it was not necessary at this time to call for a deposit of stock. Mr. Strauss and E. L. Ballard were elected as new members of the Board of Directors.

TO HOUSE CURB MARKET.

Stock Exchange Said to Favor Giving Quarters in New Building.

A preliminary report by the special committee of the New York Stock Exchange which was appointed to look into the question of housing the New York Curb Market was made yesterday to the Governors of the Exchange and favored moving the outside market under a roof. A Governor of the Stock Exchange expressed the opinion that the primary market would eventually be moved from its present stand on Broad Street, and that it would surely move indoors, but he would not say where it would finally be established.

Nothing has finally been decided upon, but it is understood that the preliminary report favored housing the Curb Market as soon as arrangements could be made.

To the more conservative element which now does business in the outside market the news that the Stock Exchange Committee recommends the housing of the Curb Market will be welcome, for it has been agitating such a movement for several years. The conservatives have maintained right along that as soon as the New York Curb Market Association, the official organization, is moved under a roof, real regulation of this primary security market will be possible and the trickster and crook who now can mingle with the legitimate curb brokers and create their own markets for securities of doubtful value may be eliminated.

Ticker service may be installed and sales reported much after the fashion of the big board, and it is understood that the Stock Exchange favors the housing of the Curb Market under the same roof with itself.

FOR FEDERAL BANK BOARD.

J. S. Alexander and Charles A. Stone Nominated for Directors.

The Committee on Nominations for Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of the New York State Bankers' Association has submitted the names of James S. Alexander, President of the National Bank of Commerce, to succeed William Woodward, as a Class A Director, and Charles A. Stone, President of the American International Company, to succeed Henry R. Towne, as a Class B Director.

Both Mr. Woodward and Mr. Towne have served on the board since the organization of the New York Reserve Bank, in the Fall of 1914, and both are understood to have expressed a desire to retire. In submitting the two names above referred to, the committee says:

"The two vacancies occurring this year are at present filled by representatives of New York City, and the committee recommends that these vacancies be filled by the election of New York City men, so that there may be at all times a sufficient number of directors available for service on the Executive Committee, and because of the fact that the New York City banks contribute about 50 per cent. of the total resources of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

"The committee wishes to make it clear that by its action it does not wish to establish a precedent either for or against the principle of rotation in office."

Dealing in Necessities

Statistics have always revealed the fact that the consumption of those commodities essential to human comfort and the conduct of business suffer the least curtailment during hard times.

The earnings of companies supplying necessities are therefore doubly well fortified from shrinkage under adverse conditions.

Our booklet "T" describing the securities of a corporation whose income is derived from the sale of essential commodities gladly furnished on request.

French Exchange

The present generation in America has never had such unusual opportunities to obtain substantial profits as are now afforded by French exchange rates. Based on present prices, a profit ranging from 43% to 129% on an investment in the French Government 4% loan of 1917 is quite possible.

Automatic Payment of Bonds and Coupons

HOW many investors fully understand the monthly sinking fund deposit feature of the Straus Plan of safeguarding first mortgage bonds, which automatically ensures prompt payment of both principal and interest in cash?

It will pay you to post yourself on this unusual safeguard, which is one of the principal reasons for the fact that no investor has ever suffered loss of principal or interest on any Straus-protected investment.

Call or write for our booklet, "Safety and 6%," which fully explains the Straus Plan, and for circular describing a specific issue to net 6%, with 4% Federal Income Tax paid, and exempt from personal property taxes in New York State, secured by a closed first mortgage on one of the best properties on Fifth Avenue. Ask for

METAL OUTPUT TO INCREASE

More Production Expected to Follow End of Coal Strike.

An early increase in the output of pig iron and finished steel is looked for by The Iron Age due to the curbing off of the coal strike and the return to work of large numbers of steel workers. The publication, in discussing conditions further, says:

"A week of the coal strike had passed without the cutting down of steel production, nearly all plants having accumulated fuel stocks, but the taking over of coal in transit by the railroads was affecting current receipts at many works, and in the Chicago district several iron rolling mills were coming to the end of their supplies.

"There has been growing tension in the market in the past week, as various consumers have attempted to get hold of enough pig iron or rolled material to protect them against shutdowns. Believing that the mills would be wrestling for months with short deliveries due to the strike, a number of buyers of finished steel, including some large companies, tried to contract for the first half of 1920. The effect has been to disturb the market by the increased offering of premiums for early delivery.

"Interest in the export market has centred in a sale of 50,000 tons of billets to Belgian rolling mills at a price close to $43.00 Pittsburgh. The transaction points to the slow recovery of pig iron and steel production in Belgium and to the fact that the ability of German and Lorraine works to supply outside markets has been overstated."

The Iron Trade Review says:

"Little progress has been made in reducing deferred obligations, which have been piling up by reason of the loss of production during the past seven weeks; in fact, specifications still are pouring in upon the producers in a volume that affects the increasing output. It is clear large tonnages of undelivered 1919 orders must be carried over by the mills into 1920. One independent interest is credited with an order book of 150,000 tons in bars alone. In view of this condition, producers are almost a unit in declining or discouraging the placing by buyers of new contracts for the first quarter."

FORM FOREIGN FINANCE CO.

J. P. Morgan a Director of $10,000,000 Investment Dealing Corporation.

The Foreign Finance Corporation, with an authorized capitalization of $10,000,000, has been formed under the laws of New York to engage in the investment of funds in enterprises and securities, mainly in the foreign field. Arthur M. Anderson, head of the bond department of J. P. Morgan & Co., is to be President of the new company.

The Board of Directors will include J. P. Morgan and H. P. Davison, of J. P. Morgan & Co.; James S. Alexander, President of the National Bank of Commerce; George F. Baker, Jr., Vice President of the First National Bank; George W. Davison, Vice President of the Central Union Trust Company; Harvey D. Gibson, President of the Liberty National Bank; Seward Prosser, President of the Bankers Trust Company; Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company; James Stillman, President of the National City Bank; Albert H. Wiggin, Chairman of the Board of the Chase National Bank, and Mr. Anderson.

It was explained yesterday that the new company is to be in no sense a commercial institution, but will do a strictly financial investment business. Under its charter, it may engage in domestic investment, but it was said that investments of this character are not likely to be arranged. The company will purchase securities of foreign enterprises and as its business develops it may become necessary for it to issue its own debentures or other securities, or it may decide to increase its capital.

NEW STOCKS LISTED.

The following issues have been admitted to the list, according to an announcement made yesterday at the New York Stock Exchange:

Why Industrials are Safe

The problem of the world is production.

For many years, American Industry must face a demand which will tax its supreme effort.

American Industry, already great, already highly organized and soundly financed, is preparing for this tremendous expansion.

Because Industry utilizes the full resources of the Nation—its resources of materials, brains and money—it has acquired the fundamental strength of the Nation.

A modern way to finance an Industry is through the issuance of Preferred Stock.

Industrial Preferred Stocks constitute in many cases a first claim on actual physical assets several times greater than the stock issue. They are guarded by every means known to finance. They form a permanent investment. They are exempt from normal Federal income tax. And they earn relatively large dividends.

Dominick and Dominick offer to their clients a selected list of the most desirable Industrial Preferred Stocks and would welcome an opportunity to discuss them in detail either by interview or correspondence.

Federal Sugar Refining Company

Five-Year 6% Gold Notes

Amount Authorized and Issued $3,000,000

Dated November 1, 1919. Maturing November 1, 1924.

Interest payable May 1 and November 1 at Bankers Trust Company, New York, without deduction for any tax, assessment or governmental charge (except Federal income taxes in excess of 2%) deductible at the source. Coupon Notes of $1,000 denomination, registerable as to principal. Subject to redemption as a whole at the option of the Company (or to be drawn for purchase for the Sinking Fund) at 101 and accrued interest on any interest date upon sixty days' notice.

BANKERS TRUST COMPANY, New York, Trustee

These notes are the direct obligation of the Federal Sugar Refining Company and constitute its only funded indebtedness other than $2,000,000 five per cent. notes, due January 1, 1920, funds for the payment of which have been deposited with Bankers Trust Company.

The Trust Agreement under which these Notes are issued provides in substance, among other covenants, that while any of these Notes are outstanding:

Neither the Company nor any subsidiary will mortgage or pledge any real or plant property now owned or hereafter acquired, except that additional real property may be acquired subject to purchase money mortgages, or other liens, not exceeding 75% of the fair value thereof.

The Company and its subsidiaries will at all times maintain quick assets, as defined in the Trust Agreement, to an amount at least equal to their current liabilities, including the principal and accrued interest of these Notes then outstanding.

ASSETS

Net current assets as of September 20, 1919, after giving effect to this financing, amount to $3,632,178, and total net tangible assets, applicable to this issue of $3,000,000 Notes, which is the Company's sole funded debt, amount to $18,275,849.

EARNINGS

Average annual net earnings (after all expenses and taxes, including Federal taxes) for the last six years ended June 1, 1919, were $1,643,316, or more than nine times the annual interest requirements of these Notes.

Price 97¾ and Accrued Interest Yielding 6½%

Federal Sugar Refining Company 5% Notes due January 1, 1920, will be accepted in payment at 100 and accrued interest.

Trust Funds Under Voluntary Agreement

The establishment of Trust Funds under Voluntary Agreements is recognized as a most satisfactory way of providing for individuals, whether members of your family or not; or for organizations—just exactly the benefits you wish to bestow.

And, further, under this plan, you and not your executors do all of the arranging of details, fixing your gifts exactly as you wish to and thus avoiding any possibility of your matters being disarranged, which so frequently happens after death.

In other words, you can create either a Voluntary Revocable or Irrevocable Trust terminable at a certain date or at your option, or at the option of the beneficiary, or both.

Why wouldn't it be a good idea for you to drop in and let one of our Officers explain in detail just how great are the benefits under such an arrangement?

Finally, such a talk will cost you nothing.

You are cordially invited.

BIG GRACE BOND ISSUE.

Company to Invest $10,000,000 in New Steamships.

An offering of $10,000,000 Grace Steamship Company marine equipment first mortgage 6 per cent. serial gold bonds due serially from 1920 to 1934, inclusive, by the National City Company, Kissel, Kinnicut & Co., and W. R. Grace & Co.'s bank, attracted some attention yesterday as the first issue of its kind in this field for some time.

The bonds will be a first mortgage on the thirteen vessels of the company's present fleet and upon the additional property to be purchased from the proceeds of the sale of this issue. The total of 103,000 tons which will comprise the company's fleet when new vessels have been purchased is valued at $200 a ton, against which the new issue will be outstanding at less than $98 a ton.

The entire capital stock of the Grace Steamship Company, $5,000,000—with the exception of Directors' shares—is owned by W. R. Grace & Co. The present issue will be additionally secured by pledge of a charter party, or parties, entered into by W. R. Grace & Co., covering the operation of the vessels for the life of the issue and providing for the payment by the parent company of a minimum charter hire sufficient to meet the serial maturities.

The bonds are being offered on an it, as and when issued basis at prices to yield from 6 to 6½ per cent., according to maturity.

Allies Lend Austria $60,000,000.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 12.—The Entente has granted a credit of $60,000,000 to Austria, according to the Vienna Tagblatt. This will be utilized principally for the purchase of raw materials.

42d Street Merchants Meet Today.

The first luncheon of the Forty-second Street Property Owners and Merchants Association will be held today at the Hotel Commodore. Among those who will attend the meeting and luncheon today are Magistrate Henry Curran, President-elect of the Borough of Manhattan; Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright, Postmaster Thomas Patton, Dock Commissioner Murray Hulbert, M. F. Loughman, Commissioner Department of Public Works; Assemblyman Martin McCue, Martin Vogel, and John J. Delaney.

Form American Business Corporation

The American Business Corporation has been organized under the laws of Delaware with a capital of 250,000 shares of no par value by R. J. McClelland & Co., to act as a holding company. It already has contracted to take over several active industrial companies. The following officers have been elected: R. J. McClelland, President; Major H. C. Hequembourg and H. C. Hazzard, Vice Presidents; C. P. Hall, Treasuror; J. R. King, Acting Treasurer, and Thomas A. Sherman, Secretary.

Seek Reduced Factory Fire Peril.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters yesterday sent letters to 493 manufacturers associations and 2,973 labor unions asking their co-operation in decreasing the fire peril in manufacturing plants. The associations and unions are asked to take immediate measures to safeguard life and property, to eliminate carelessness, and to see that fire prevention laws are enforced.

Girl Scouts' Fund Reaches $55,000.

More than $4,000 in contributions and new associate membership dues was added to the fund of the Girl Scouts' campaign, according to the mid-week report yesterday for the third week of the city and nation-wide drive for leaders, members, and funds. The grand total is now $55,000. Manhattan's quota is $100,000.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 6,343 packages. A stronger market for all grades of fresh creamery, with the highest qualities running short and selling quickly. Storage creamery stiffening a little and renovated, ladles, and packing stock all favor the seller. Creamery, higher than extras, a lb. 70@70½c; extras, 92 score, 70c; firsts, 90 to 91 score, 65½@68c; firsts, 88 to 89 score, 61½@64c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 57½@60c; lower grades, 53@54½c; held, higher than extras, 66½@67c; extras, 65½@66c; firsts, 61@65c; seconds, 58@58½c; unsalted, higher than extras, 73@74c; extras, 72@73½c; firsts, 69@70c; seconds, 68@68c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 68@68c; good to prime, 63@67c; common to fair, 58@62c; renovated, extras, 67@68c; ladles, current make, firsts, 50@51c; seconds, 48½@49c; lower grades, 47@48c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 48½@49c; No. 2, 47½@48c; lower grades, 46@47c.

EGGS.—7,286 cases. The market holds a firm tone on new laid qualities and on day lots of fresh stock that shows a good to large proportion of such. For these prices still tend slightly in sellers' favor, but we find no sales to warrant any further change in quotations. Values are still irregular owing to the widely varying proportion of fine fresh eggs in the offerings, and the under grades of held fresh are still dull and rather urgently offered. Storage eggs are rather quiet, and, while fancy goods are held with some confidence, there is, in some quarters, a little more urgency to sell. Prices are not more than steady. Nearby white eggs of very fancy quality are scarce and firm, but the usual receipts are more or less mixed in quality and move slowly. Further receipts of California whites by express meeting a fair demand at $1 a dozen. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 72@73c; extra firsts, 69@71c; firsts, 66@68c; seconds, 62@64c; under grades, 55@56c; dirties, No. 1, 59@62c; No. 2 and poorer, 43@46c; checks, good to choice, dry, 43@45c; checks, under grades, 36@41c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 53@56c; firsts, 51½@52½c; seconds, 47@51c; under grades, 39@46c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 86@91c; fair to prime, 75@84c; gathered whites, common to prime, 70@76c; Pacific Coast, whites, express, fancy, $1; other Western and Southern, gathered whites, 66@90c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby, hennery browns, fancy, 76@78c; gathered brown and mixed colors, graded, fancy, 72@75c; fair to prime, 64@71c.

Congress to Consider Mine Nationalization Will Meet Dec. 9.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—A special congress comprising representatives of all organized labor was called today to meet in London on Dec. 9 to discuss the nationalization of the coal mines.

It will consider what action might be taken to compel the Government to bring into effect the recommendations of the Sankey Commission that nationalization be effected.

TO GET $421,194 INCOME.

Woolworth's Widow Will Get Dividends on 50,000 Shares.

Through an order signed yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Giegerich, on the application of Hubert T. Parson, committee of the property of Mrs. Jennie Woolworth, widow of Frank W. Woolworth, increasing his bond from $15,000 to $2,000,000, it become known that the income of property left to Mrs. Woolworth will amount to $421,194 a year, of which $400,000 is the dividend on 50,000 shares of common stock of the F. W. Woolworth Company and $21,194 the interest on Liberty bonds, amounting to $406,700, deposited by Mr. Woolworth during his lifetime to pay the income to his wife because of her release of her dower interest in his real estate.

The bond amounts to twice the income from this property for three years, but the 50,000 shares of stock is not bonded, because it is to be deposited in the Irving Trust Company. Mrs. Woolworth also got the city residence at 990 Fifth Avenue, worth $875,000, and the country place, Winfield Hall, Glen Cove, L. I., valued at $852,666, which yield no income.

To Run More Long Island Trains.

The Winter schedule of the Long Island Railroad, effective next Tuesday, has been published. It provides for an increased number of trains on several divisions, although the number is usually reduced at this time.

Notice to Holders of
NEW YORK SHIPBUILDING CORPORATION
First Mortgage Thirty Year Five Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds Dated November 1, 1916, due November 1, 1946.

Pursuant to Section 1 of Article Four of the mortgage of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation to The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Trustee, dated November 1, 1916, securing its First Mortgage Thirty Year Five Per Cent. Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, the undersigned Trustee hereby gives notice that the bonds of such issue will be purchased by the Trustee for the Sinking Fund provided in said mortgage to an amount sufficient to exhaust One Hundred Eighty-Seven Thousand Five Hundred ($187,500.00) Dollars, being the moneys now held by it in such Sinking Fund.

The Trustee hereby invites from the bondholders offers for the sale to it on November 25, 1919, of such bonds. As provided in said mortgage, such offers shall in each case be for all or any part of the bonds so offered. The lowest offers to the aggregate amount not exceeding an amount sufficient as nearly as may be to exhaust such moneys now held in the Sinking Fund will be accepted, provided that the price or prices accepted will in no event exceed, in addition to accrued interest, one hundred two and one-half (102½%) per centum.

As soon as may be on or after November 18, 1919, the undersigned Trustee will notify bondholders whose offers are accepted, so that delivery of the bonds covered by such acceptances may be made to the Trustee at its office, in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on November 25, 1919.

All offers must be in writing, be enclosed in sealed envelopes, state the number or numbers of the bonds offered, and name the price or prices at which the same are offered.

All offers must be received at the office of the Trustee on or before noon of November 18, 1919.

CAPITAL AND LABOR
SOLVED BY PERSONAL MANAGEMENT

The greatest difficulty of industry is the relation of capital and labor. The growth of great corporations has set up barriers between the employer and employee. The problem has become national and investors hesitate.

We suggest that safety lies in the small industrials. The owners are in daily touch with employees, understand their needs and anticipate their demands.

Protective Committee of Holders of 4% First Refunding Gold Mortgage Bonds
Due July 1st, 2002
OF THE
Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company

To the holders of bonds secured by the 4% First Refunding Mortgage of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company:

The company has defaulted in the payment of interest on the above mentioned bonds, and an action to foreclose the mortgage is pending.

At the request of the holders of a large number of these bonds, the undersigned have consented to act as a Committee for the protection of the interests of all of the holders of the above mentioned bonds who shall become parties to a deposit agreement which the Committee has executed and lodged with the Franklin Trust Company, No. 46 Wall Street, New York City, and No. 166 Montague Street, Brooklyn, New York, the depositary therein named, from whom may be obtained, at either of its offices, copies of said agreement.

The mortgage which secures your bonds constitutes a preferential lien upon much of the most valuable assets of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.

An attempt has already been made to subordinate the lien of your Mortgage to nearly Twenty Million Dollars of Receivers' Certificates authorized to be issued for the benefit of portions of the Rapid Transit System.

Through the efforts of the Trustee of your mortgage and certain bond-holders this attempt has been defeated, but the fact that it was seriously made and earnestly pressed suggests that other like attempts may hereafter be expected.

As the foreclosure action proceeds, many questions will arise seriously involving your interests, which can be adequately protected only by your united action.

The Committee therefore invites all holders of the 4% First Refunding Gold Bonds of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to deposit their bonds with coupons due July 1, 1919, and all subsequent coupons attached, with the above-named Depositary, thereby signifying their acquiescence to the agreement already executed by the Committee. Such deposit should be made as promptly as possible.

Transferable certificates of deposit will be issued for all deposited bonds. Application will be made at once to list the certificates of deposit on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Committee or its counsel will be glad at any time to answer inquiries from bond-holders, and to obtain for them such information as is procurable.

HENRY L. DOHERTY & COMPANY
SIXTY WALL STREET
NEW YORK

TO THOSE NEEDING OFFICE SPACE IN LOWER NEW YORK:

We were notified several months ago that we could not rent additional space in the building we now occupy. After weeks of effort we found ourselves unable to lease suitable space anywhere in lower New York.

This meant that we would have to purchase some existing building or buy land and erect our own building. The pressing need for more space would not give sufficient time for the erection of a new building. We knew of other cases similar to our own, and, therefore, concluded there were many more such cases.

We decided both to buy and to build for our own needs, and, in making our plans, to provide space for others in a similar predicament. We have now acquired a large amount of existing office space, and also a large area of land for the erection of new buildings.

The purpose of this announcement is to invite the co-operation of others who must secure office space, and especially those who need a large amount of space on a single floor.

We can provide by alterations and enlargements approximately 50,000 square feet by May 1, 1920, and practically unlimited space as soon as building operations can be completed.

This space will not only be exceptionally attractive, but can also be had at a moderate cost compared with present existing prices.

Prompt action is essential. We cannot deal with agents unless they will first disclose the identity of their clients, and can show credentials giving them power to bind their clients without further consultation. If the principals, however, wish to negotiate the matter with us directly, and not through agents or subordinates, we will give all information, and allow as much time for decision as circumstances will permit.

Kindly communicate with Mr. F. W. Le Porin, of our office.

Respectfully,
HENRY L. DOHERTY & COMPANY,
60 Wall Street.

PROPOSALS.

BIDS ARE REQUESTED BY THE VIRGINIAN Power Company, Charleston, W. Va., for subletting the construction of the following named transmission lines which are included in contracts between the United States Government and The Virginian Power Company as contractor.

(a) Government line No. 2, approximately thirty-three and eight-tenths (33.8) miles in length, from the Cabin Creek Junction Plant of The Virginian Power Company to the U. S. Naval Ordnance Plant at South Charleston, W. Va., this being a single circuit, 66,000-volt, steel tower transmission line.

(b) Government line No. 24, approximately six and one-half (6.5) miles in length, from the Charleston substation of The Virginian Power Company to the substation of the U. S. Naval Ordnance Plant at South Charleston, W. Va., this being a double circuit, 44,000-volt, steel tower and wood pole transmission line.

The necessary rights of way and all material which will be a part of the completed lines to be furnished by The Virginian Power Company. The sub-contractor will be required to load, unload, distribute, and erect all material necessary to complete the lines, and to furnish for this purpose all superintendence, labor, tools, plant or equipment.

One total lump sum bid is desired for all the above. Bids will be opened at the office of The Virginian Power Company, Charleston, W. Va., November 25, 1919, at 12 o'clock noon. The right is reserved to reject any or all bids. A certified check for 2 per cent. of the total amount of the bid is required.

Plans and specifications may be examined at the office of The Virginian Power Company, Charleston, W. Va. Contract forms can be obtained at the same address.

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, Washington, D. C., Nov. 4, 1919.—SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at this office until 2 o'clock P. M., Nov. 24, 1919, and then opened, for the purchase of grease recovered from garbage, collected by the Commissioners, D. C., from Dec. 1, 1919, to and including Feb. 29, 1920. Blank forms of Proposals, Specifications, together with necessary information, may be obtained from the Chief Clerk of the Engineer Department, Room 427, District Building. Louis Brownlow, W. Gwynn Gardiner, C. W. Kutz, Commissioners, D. C.

DISSOLUTION NOTICES.

THE FIRM OF A. & A. FEATHER COMPANY, copartners in the manufacture of ostrich feathers at 42 East Ninth Street, has dissolved partnership by mutual consent. Louis Altschuler, one of the partners is retiring from the business, which will be conducted hereafter by the remaining partner, Harry A. Alpert, at the same address.

B & CO. had large orders for staple hardware on their books. Expansion was absorbing their funds on hand.

We financed them in their purchasing and were repaid from their receivables. Thus their business continues uninterruptedly to expand.

The personal study of our clients' problems by one of our executives reduces many an unusually baffling situation to simplicity.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Completing a deal begun last August, Norman S. Riesenfeld, and Elias A. Cohen, operators, yesterday, purchased from the Haight Estate 154, 156 and 158 Broadway, opposite the Singer Building.

The property which consists of an old six-story iron front building forms an "L" around the northeast corner of Liberty Street and Broadway fronting 47.8 feet on Broadway by 140 feet deep and 25 feet on Liberty Street.

It adjoins 152 Broadway which Mr. Riesenfeld purchased last August giving him a total of about eleven thousand square feet. The entire deal involves about $2,000,000, the Haight property being assessed for taxation purposes at about $925,000, and 152 Broadway for about $425,000. Negotiations are pending for the resale of the entire parcel to a syndicate of bankers as a site for a tall commercial structure. The Haight building is one of the few remaining old buildings of the commercial type on lower Broadway. It was erected in about 1870 and for years has housed many of New York City's prominent real estate firms and brokers including L. J. Phillips & Co., Bryan L. Kennelly and Samuel Goldsticker. Until a few years ago, Pease and Elliman occupied part of the Broadway front.

Bing & Bing Buy $1,100,000 Fifth Avenue Loft.

The Eugene A. Hoffman estate sold to Bing & Bing, operators, 122 and 124 Fifth Avenue, a ten-story loft building, with 18,000 feet of floor space, measuring 73 by 110 on Fifth Avenue, 50 by 92 on Eighteenth Street and running through to Seventeenth Street, 60 by 92. The structure was erected by Henry Corn about fifteen years ago and sold by him to the present sellers. It was held at $1,100,000 and carries a mortgage of $700,000. Henry L. Dinel was the broker in the sale.

Close to $1,000,000 Obtained for Properties in Vesey Street Auction Room.

Close to $1,000,000 was obtained yesterday by Bryan L. Kennelly in the Vesey Street Auction Room for properties located in Manhattan, Long Island, and Yonkers. The feature of the sale, however, was the Manhattan properties, many of which went at bargain prices. The private dwelling at 121 West Sixty-third Street, 16.8 by 100, bought $13,000, while the plot fronting 143 feet on Crosby Street, 84 feet on Prince Street, and 138 on Lafayette Street, on which stands the building in which James Monroe, the fifth President of the United States, died, was sold for $138,000. It was bought in by the Charles F. Noyes Company for a client. The thirty-five acres of land at Robinswood, Whitestone Landing, Long Island, sold for a total of about $124,000, while thirty-four lots in the residential section of Yonkers brought $36,650. Lots on North Broadway sold for $1,725 and $1,750 each, while those on Palisade Avenue brought from $1,050 to $1,350 each.

Operators Active in Tobacco District.

Continued activity in the tobacco district was marked yesterday by the sale of the Traders' Exchange Building, a seven-story office structure, with a frontage of 25 feet at 136 Water Street and an "L" extending to Pine Street, with a street line of 39.11 feet. Morris Weinstein and Samuel Greenstein were the buyers and the sellers are the Pierce estate, represented by Brown-Wheelock Company. All leases expire May 1, 1920.

You don't enjoy grinding valves

Use real gasoline that is uniform in quality—that will allow you to adjust your carburetor so as to give quick, complete, clean combustion—and you won't have much valve grinding to do. You'll have less carbon trouble of all sorts.

Standardize on SOCONY Motor Gasoline. It is high grade, carefully refined gasoline that is always uniform in its carburetting qualities.

Adjust your carburetor to SOCONY and you can be sure of getting big mileage from each gallon of fuel—sure of reliable power for quick starting, strong acceleration and dependable power and speed when you call for it. Makes motoring pleasanter and keeps down repair and overhauling costs.

At filling time look for the red, white and blue SOCONY Sign.

Every gallon the same.

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT TO WOMEN WHO WANT TO MAKE MONEY.

Selling education in the form of the Book of Knowledge is to the right person a profitable and agreeable occupation; backed by the largest educational publishing house in the world, you are bound to make good if the seed of successful salesmanship is at all in you.

We are not looking for "agents" nor for "canvassers," but for a few men and women who are big enough for the proposition. The remuneration is on a commission basis. Book of Knowledge salesmen and saleswomen throughout the country find their work most congenial and most remunerative, simply because all parents are interested in the welfare of their children.

If you have sold goods, or if you believe you have the ability to sell, submit your application by mail or in person.

THE GROLIER SOCIETY,
2 WEST 45TH ST., NEW YORK.

FIGURERS WHO CAN ANALYZE
AND LEARN HOW TO HANDLE
audits, budgets, cost analyses, "balance of stores," income tax reports, &c.
If you have an aptitude for figures and a level head, you need not remain long at a high, small desk. We can put you in line for and help you to secure within a year's time a position paying
$2,500 TO $6,000 A YEAR.
If you have ability apply it. The world needs it. America is calling for trained men—PARTICULARLY for trained accountants.
The accountancy field is steadily enlarging as more attention is being given by city, State, and Federal boards, by banks and trust companies, and by business corporations and auditing procedure of varied and complicated kinds and to income tax regulations and reports for hundreds of thousands of individuals and firms.

YOUR TEACHERS AND LEADERS.
You can study during your spare time at home (about an hour a day,) without interfering with your present position. Your training will be by the famous "La Salle Problem Method," which has made more expert accountants and C. P. A.'s than any other plan. You will be under the direction of William B. Castenholz, the best-known accountancy teacher in America, and a large staff of expert accountants, including several members of the American Institute of Accountants. And when you are qualified you will be connected with big business.
